diocese a circular from his grace, Archbishop McNeil, was read from the pulpits yesterday morning reminding the people of their duty in the present crisis. All were asked to pray for peace, and to this end special prayers will be said daily in the churches. The congregations were reminded of the call of patriotism and of what they owed to their country and the Empire. No one had to be a mere spectator. There is work for all.

All were urged to retrench in the matter of unnecessary luxuries and festivity, and to remember that those who had were to provide to help those in need. Secondhand clothes should not be cast aside, but gathered together, and later provision would be made for taking it to the different institutions where it would be used for those requiring it.

People were reminded too that "Charity Day," when the special collection for the poor is taken up in the churches, is near, when it is expected all will do their best as well as assist the St. Vincent de Paul Society in the many calls which are sure to come upon them during the approaching season. All were asked to pray for peace, and
