PRICE OF SCHOOL BOOKS

Very Practical Illustration—Low Prices of Ontario School Books-They Will Stand Comparison.

The Simcoe Reformer has the following: Our esteemed Robinson street for $3,985. contemporary, the British Canadian, There we g ows hysterical this week on "the price of school books." In a lengthy editorial, taken from some other equally rabid Tory journal it says:

The example set forth by Mr.Garvin, of Peterboro, is convincing enough without going any further. Mr. Garvin has been a public school inspector and knows whereof he speaks. At a public meeting he produced a fourth reader, which cost 40 cents, and alongside of it a novel by a popular author, precisely alike in bulk and the quality of material, which costs only 16 cents wholesale and 21 cents retail. The inference is that the parents of this province who have children of school age are mulcted of double the value of these school books, and this for the debt. benefit of the government chest and to line the pockets of the men whom lawyer, whose case was to have been vored with a monopoly of the trade. We do not know where Mr. Garvin obtained his books. In all probability he purchased the cheaper one at a departmental store.

However, we do know this. Mr. W. Y. Wallace, publisher of the Canadian, keeps a bookstore. His bookstore would be a fair place for a representative of the Reformer to investigate the price of school books as compared with

We don't think so, and will guarantee that it will not stand the same amount of wear and tear. It contained 174 pages, the paper was thicker, but not such good quality, and the printing was not a bit better. When Mr. Wallace divined our object he said Annie Swan's was an expensive publication, and produced a thicker book, by a writer named Whitney-not James Pliny. # East End Rally.

Meeting in the Interests of Mr. Adam Beck.

Bitter Address by Ar. Edmund Meredith, Q. C.

Mr. Beck Says Col. Leys Doesn't Know Anything But How to Live Well-Other Speeches Made - Plenty of Personalities.

The Conservative meeting in the east end hall last night was, like the Leys rally, largely attended, and from Beck's standpoint was favorable enough. It was notable for a savage and abusive address by Mr. E. Meredith and for Mr. Beck's insulting references to Col. Leys and the sixth ward. The speeches of Sir John Carling and Mr. Beattie, M.P., were milder in tone. Mr. Fred Harding was the chairman, and among those on the platform were Sir John Carling, J. R. Minhinnick, I. F. Hellmuth, T. H. Smallman, Ald. Winnett, William Burleigh, William Pring "It gives me great pleasure to be here being so stormy an evening, for the good of the cause." Mr. Harding accused Col. Leys of being fond of dogs. Mr. E. Meredith spoke in a vituperative strain. He referred to the Liberal speakers at the east end hall a few evenings ago as Mr. Hobbs, Mr. Hyman, Mr. Cameron and some other smaller fry. Mr. Meredith ridiculed Mr. Thos. S. Hobbs for saying that he and Col. Leys went to church together in South London in the earlier days. It reminded one of old times, said Mr. Meredith, to see these two Puritans, Hobbs and Leys, with their Bibles in their hands and no guile in their souls, wending their way to church, full of peace and happiness and good-will towards all men. But there was one Sunday that Col. Leys was not at church, and that was when a neighbor's cow got in his yard and he sent a policeman to a church to bring the neighbor out. (Laughter.) Thomas S. Hobbs had sat dumb in the legislature, and there were not enough jack-knives terruption. He characterized the new normal school as a bribe, but said that all Leys' gold and all the normal schools in the country could not corrupt Conservatives. All Mr. Hobbs had done since he went to the legislature was to make a contract for binder twine with the Central Prison, and go around selling corkscrews and jackknives. "If you elect Col. Leys," said Mr. Meredith, in a burst of characteristic eloquence, "you will require more corkscrews—a great many more, and probably Mr. Hobbs will get the contract for supplying them." The speaker asked what "Hyman" had done for London. Hyman was trying to build a railway himself. He wanted to have another Yukon, and the corrupt government at Ottawa would doubtless give it to him. Several of the men who sat on the Grit platform at the recent meeting supplied goods to the asylum without tender. Ald. Greenlees, the chief of Tammany Hall, had howled because the $200 or $300 Job for repairing the city hall had been let to Jones Bros. without tender, and yet this same Mr. John Shore sold his 100-acre farm of Ontario. After speaking some time said it would be a shame to send Col. for any of the Windsor school teach- there meet Sir Oliver Mowat, with whom at one time, years ago, he had had a difference. Col. Leys had also differed with the minister of education.

Now he wanted to go to Toronto to be force, $3,419,500; bringing the total to go to Toronto to be force, $3,419,500; bringing the total to go to Toronto to be force, $3,419,500; bringing the total to go to Toronto to be odious? Mr. Meredith also threw a hundred and forty-seven death claims verbal bouquet at Mr. Robert Boston.
It was said that "Bob could kiss all the babies and their mothers and everybody else, but the colonel stuck the knife in him. The colonel summoned his warriors at Tammany Hall and the following members of the execuand then went down to Mount Brydges. They kicked out Boston, and now Col.

Leys wanted to crawl back to To-A Voice-He's going there. (Cheers "No, never!" said Mr. Meredith, glar-"Fire him out" yelled some heelers. Continuing his exalted oratory, Mr. Meredith said that if Col. Leys was the charitable man he pretended to be, it Leys had said that he (Mr. Meredith) was not an honorable man. "Good God!" shouted Mr. Meredith, "when he talks about honor the words ought to choke him!" The speaker then re-up with further denunciation of the Sir John Carling said he was a colleague of the late John Sandfield Macdonald, the first premier of Ontario. Mr. I. F. Hellmuth said the men who had made fun of Mr. Adam Beck's who had made fun of Mr. Adam Beck's speeches would be sorry to run up against him on the platform. They had men like Sir John Carling, Mr. Meredith and Mr. Beattie, "and we are not going to put up with men like Thomas S. Hobbs and Col. Leys," added Mr. Hellmuth, catching the tone of expenditures, was the most shameler rorism over the people of the province at Ottawa. The license holders were about the little girls-one of whom then presented him with a bouquet-being fond of him, and said it was bringing form with Mr. Hardy. The Advertiser condemned the one, and why not the other? Sir Charles Tupper had never been on Mr. Whitney's platform. Sir Wilfrid Laurier was not a citizen of Ottawa, but of Quebec, and he should vote there and not in Ontario. He denied he had called Col. Leys a bad man, as had been charged. Mr. Harcourt had said the Ontario Government was much more economical than the late government of the Dominion, and turned round to Mr. Hyman to con-firm the statement. Mr. Hyman had not been in the house long enough to find his seat without a page. Mr. Beattie said he had learned from a high authority that a certain party was going round intimidating letter carriers and customs officials, and telling them they had not better vote. Mr. Beattie read figures to show that the cost of government had increased. The Ontario Opposition, he said, had far abler men than the government.
