MME. GUILBERT SINGS HISTORY OF FRANCE

Famous Artist, Visiting Toronto, Tells Tales of Heroism.

LAST SPRING IN PARIS

Left the War Zone One Year Ago to Work in America.

Yvette Guilbert is thrice endowed. She possesses the rare and beautiful voice of a great artist, she fairly radiates with a personality born of genius, she has the warm sympathetic heart of a woman. And she has a wonderful pair of eyes, this Madame Guilbert.

Altho she has been in New York since last January, scoring triumph after triumph in her picturesque recitals of French folk songs, and songs from the Golden Legend, this great French artist lived fourteen months in Paris after the outbreak of war, and spent many hours daily singing to the wounded heroes who filled the hospitals.

Mme. Guilbert is warm in the praises of her countrymen and women. One is almost fascinated by her musical voice, her quaint mannerisms, her sad, eloquent eyes when she leans eagerly forward to tell the story of her beloved France. Madame Guilbert is playing in the fight for freedom.

"It was spring when I left Paris," said Guilbert. "I was ordered to England because of poor health, the result of that terrible winter. One lovely morning just before I said good-bye to Paris I was walking toward one of the big hotels which had been like many others, converted into a military hospital. I saw a great mass—'crowd' you call it here—forming in front of the steps. There were thousands of soldiers drawn up, and then I saw them forming a procession down the wide stone steps, gleaming in the warm spring sunshine. In the flash of a second everyone in the streets was pressing coins into the hands of the flower vendors, grouped about the building. Then fresh, dew-kissed posies of violets and primroses commenced to rain upon the heads of the marching soldiers. The air was filled with the perfume of flowers and the prayers of mothers. I shall never forget that scene—it was magnificent."

When Mme. Guilbert arrived in New York it was an unexpected treat. "I adore England, and would love to have stayed there, but it was so damp that I suffered with my rheumatism," said Madame. "I arrived in New York without any advertisement to give one recital. I was forced to give one recital. It was wonderful in the manner in which the great American public received by work. And they were so appreciative of the songs relating to the early history of France."

Little wonder, really Yvette Guilbert has ability that commands attention; she has personality that inspires understanding, her language is foreign to the great majority of her audiences, and she is an artistic who has won world-renown with her beautiful songs of medieval France.

PLAYS, PICTURES AND MUSIC

ALBERT BROWN IN "THE BLACK FEATHER."

"The Black Feather," a play of war diplomacy, in which the purpose is to depict the play of a hero of romance, not one cast touch Lou Tellegen, who comes to the Alexandra next week. They stage the play a romantic comedy, and in it Tellegen plays the part of a Celtic knight in the time of Henry VIII, who, as a prisoner, has such courage and force of will that all who come in contact with him call him "king." Through the story runs a strong love interest, and the heroine is played by Madeline Demore, who has the beauty and youth so essential to the part.

AT THE MADISON.

The last public appearance of the Duke of Connaught at the "Pageant of the Allies" in Ottawa will be shown at the Madison Theatre, commencing Monday evening. The regular feature will be Mae Murray in "The Big Sister," a story of New York life, played by the "Parson of Panamint," will be seen for the last time tonight.

THE REGENT'S BIG BILL.

Florence and Maurice Walton, the world-famous dancers, are the attraction at the Regent today, where they are playing in a splendid feature, "The Quest of Life." No lovers of the dance should miss this wonderful picture.

AT THE STAR.

The coming week at the Star will be a gala one, because the "Grown-Up Babies" will be playing their sparkling program of mirth, melody and dance, to say nothing of the female impersonations of the "Grown-Up Babies" group of living pictures, representing the masterpiece, and the sensational Hawaiian Mussey Mussey dance, which is new here.

SHEA'S.

Houdini, the man who for the past decade has defied the police of two continents, will headline the bill at Shea's next week. Bert Lamont and his Cow-boys offer a round-up of mirth and melody. In "Rocking the Boat," Mrs. Taylor and Lawrence Gratian have a delightfully funny sketch. Rae Eleanor Wilkins, Seabury and Price, Dyer and Perry, Dyer and Perry, and company feature film comedies complete a bright, well-balanced bill.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE, JR."

The final test that demonstrates that the theatrical season is really under way in earnest is at hand—the coming of the first musical extravaganza of the year. This honor falls to the new Winter Garden spectacle, "Robinson Crusoe, Jr." with the effectiveness and altogether delightful Al Jolson, and which comes to the Royal Alexandra Theatre on Monday, Oct. 23.

AT LOEW'S.

George Kinkaid Davis and his celebrated Kinkaid Kitties will be the big feature attraction at Loew's next week. Another big attraction will be Charles B. Lawlor and His Daughters, presenting their "Made in Canada" show. Mack, Abright and Mack show unusual ability as funmakers. The Bell Theater Brothers, Marshall and Gordon, Dunbar and Virden, together with a five-act photo production, featuring Virginia Pearson in "A Tormented Heart," complete the bill.

LOU TELLEGEN NEXT WEEK.

All signs point to the growing popularity of the costume-play, the play that is primarily romance. And of all the actors fitted to play the part of a hero of romance, not one can touch Lou Tellegen, who comes to the Alexandra next week. They stage the play a romantic comedy, and in it Tellegen plays the part of a Celtic knight in the time of Henry VIII, who, as a prisoner, has such courage and force of will that all who come in contact with him call him "king."
