VETERANS' FAIR PROMISES TO BE GREAT SUCCESS

Large Crowd Liberally Patronized
Many Attractions on Opening Night — Mayor, Hayes Makes Important Announcement

The grand opening of the Great War Veterans' Fair took place last night in St. Andrew's Ring with opening addresses by His Worship Mayor Hayes, and General Macdonell. The Veterans' band made their first public appearance and dressed in their khaki uniforms with their fine repertoire of both classic and light selections, made a great hit. The Veterans must surely have discovered a means of reducing the high cost of living, for they were selling bags of flour at a dime a bag, with tea and sugar at the same rates. The rink really never looked better for it was beautifully decorated with hundreds of yards of bunting and flags of all the Allies were profusely hung in every available spot. The many booths were well patronized, the people attracted by the sweet voices of the fair young ladies and forced to listen by the heavy masculine basses and baritones.

Veterans' Band Popular.

The Great War Veterans' Band led the way and crowds followed to the rink attracted by music played with an expression and style that the people of this city have seldom had an opportunity to hear. Thirty-six strong, with Lieut. C. A. Worrell at their head and under the direction of Bandmaster Murray Long, the band formed up outside the rink and delighted the crowd that soon gathered with a choice selection. The hall at once began to fill and soon after 8 o'clock Mayor Hayes and General Macdonell came to the bandstand. Order was called and Mayor Hayes addressed those present. He said that he was called upon to perform a very pleasant duty in speaking at the opening of the fair, that the Veterans had chosen a very fortunate time when the many people in the city would be glad of the diversion offered them by such an event and he went on to tell of the big week that the city was planning for the returned boys and for the prince. He said that he felt sure all would be only too anxious to help along such a laudable cause. The mayor then said that he wished to make one statement, and that was that he would take it on himself to say that men receiving pensions would not have to pay taxes on their pension at least for this year, and he hoped they would never have to do so. He then introduced General Macdonell who, he said, had much more to say than he had.

General Macdonell spoke of the great pleasure it gave him to speak before the veterans, saying "Wherever they are I would always like to be." He went on to speak of the great fight they had won and how much they deserved all the people could give them. He officially declared the fair open and paid a very nice tribute to the ladies who were helping the fair along, saying that without the ladies we could not have won the war and in fact could do nothing.

Well Decorated.

After the opening speeches the fair started in full swing. Many stopped to admire the decorations. Overhead for the whole length of the fair was a veritable sky of red, white and blue and above the bandstand a canopy had been erected of interlaced bunting. Flags bedecked all the booths and hung from the walls so that there was scarcely a space of the roof or walls visible. Many expressed the opinion that the rink never looked better and certainly never had such lavish decorations ever been seen in it.

The amusement hall at the end of the rink attracted a large crowd. Here were Zeke, the head hunter, with snakes twining about his neck and the wonderful freak, known as the three-headed man called King-Jack-a-Loe-Pa, with three toes, fingers, arms and legs. He is credited with having owned 1,000 wives, 600 of whom he buried before he finally passed away.

A mouse circus was also quite an attraction.

The Y. W. P. A. conducted a booth where fortunes were truly told and also attended to those wanting ice cream. Bean boards with fine prizes for the winners were also run by these ladies. The fish pond was conducted by the turned nurses and V. A. D's, and many wonderful catches were made here. Wheels of fortune where bags of flour, packages of tea and sugar, candles, vases and electric irons went to the lucky ones, spun merrily and many other games of chance made and lost money.

Valuable Door Prizes.

The door prizes are well worth the winning in these days of high prices. Last night one-half ton of coal went to the holder of the lucky holder of ticket No. 1730, on Tuesday a plate glass mirror; Wednesday, five pounds of Red Rose tea; Thursday, one-half barrel of flour; Friday, one pair of men's rubber boots, and Saturday another half-ton of coal, will go to the one holding the lucky number.

The fair certainly promises to be a great success for last night despite the lovely weather outside, a very large crowd attended and the enjoyment they derived was visible on their faces. No doubt they will return to try their luck again and listen to the G. W. V. A. Band which besides the usual repertoire has a fine selection of pieces from the

RECENT WEDDINGS

Stillington-Calvert.

A wedding of much interest took place Saturday morning, August 9, at the Reformed Baptist church, when Rev. W. W. Howe united in marriage Miss Alice P. Calvert and Ray P. Stillington, both of this city. The bride was becomingly gowned in a blue silk suit with hat to match. Miss Kathleen Harding, the bridesmaid, was attired in a brown crepe-de-chine suit with cloak to match. She was made the recipient of a pair of silver ear rings, and Joseph Harding, the groomsmen, was presented an opal pin. A dainty luncheon was served at Bond's after the wedding ceremony. Mr. Stillington was a member of the Opera House orchestra staff. The young pair left for Boston, where the groom has accepted a position with the Keith Theatre Co. They will reside in Stoneham (Mass.).

WANTS QUARTER MILLION

FROM FATHER-IN-LAW

White Plains, N. Y., Aug. 12.—An action for $300,000 damages has been begun in the supreme court by Mrs. Fanet Olive Wallach against her father-in-law, Joseph G. Wallach, of No. 380 East Fifty-ninth street, New York city. Mr. Wallach is head of a chain of laundries of that name and is reputed to be wealthy.

In the papers filed Mrs. Wallach alleges that her father-in-law has alienated from her affections of her husband, Moses Uriel Wallach, and that since last June he has "acquired improper influence over him and enticed him to leave her without support or protection." In another action begun by the young woman she asks $300,000 damages for the loss of furniture which she alleges she owned in the premises at No. 777 West End avenue, where the Wallachs lived, and which she declares Mr. Wallach, the father, has refused to return to her after removing it on June 25 last.

In the papers Mrs. Wallach recites that from the time of their marriage, with her husband until the elder Wallach interfered with things last June. She alleged that her father-in-law "ever since has harbored and retained her husband against her will."

Mrs. Wallach was Miss Fanet Olive Hein daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hein of Manhattan. At the time of her marriage she was known as a poster artist and writer of one act plays. She was then a member of the West Side Art and Social Club.
