

ITS PROBLEM this furnishing a home, and the newly wedded couple who have difficulty in doing so, if they attempt it in their own way. It's our business, this furnishing, and our advice will be valuable, unless we can save you something in the buying of the needed goods. You'll be surprised at the purchasing power of a little money in this store, as goods are all marked away down to almost cost price. We're clearing our stock to receive new goods. That is the reason of this reign of cheapness.

One of the most dashing novels that even William Le Queux ever wrote is named with characteristic daring "The Sign of the Seven Sins," by which he designates the gaming place at Monte Carlo. This novel, entire, appears in the New Lippincott Magazine for August, and as we weather reading nothing better could be conceived. It carries one along in spite of ennui or interruption through the dangerous pleasures of the Riviera, on a smart yachting party across the Mediterranean and into a wild railroad chase to Paris, where a mystery is luckily solved. The novel alone would make a vacation or a day of travel, but the New Lippincott gives four shorter summer stories, each chosen for its seasonableness, besides Stephen Crane's last work—a masterly description of the battle of Leipzig.

Mrs. Mason, of Stratford Sanitarium, will be at Mrs. M. H. Gray's King street east, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, where she will be pleased to meet her former patients and any others who may desire hygienic treatment.

When you run up the cost and trouble of baking at home and compare the product with our bread the advantage will prove to be on our side. Few, if any, cooks can equal the bread made by our bakers. They have the finest ingredients to work with, fine shops to work in and nothing else to work at. Why shouldn't the result be satisfactory? If you fancy Home-made Bread, we have it, none any better.
