Where Tired, Weary City Workers Find Their True Rest.

Blessed symmer holidays, blessed for the health of body they bestow, and thrice blessed because they bring men's minds nearer to those things in life which are enduring, says The Toronto Star. The slowest lesson that we learn is the right proportion of things, the true relation of living to succeeding. In the city here we that we learn is the right proportion of things, the true relation of living to succeeding. In the city here we easily get them confused, and once in confusion it is a difficult matter to get them straight again. Nature herself is our best teacher. In her school is neither disproportion nor confusion. She keeps us in mind, when we will give her the chance, that whereas the thing we call success promises us the sum of all happiness, it can do very little in that direction. That, on the other hand, the ceaseless pursuit of it separates us from life's most enduring pleasures, and ultimately destroys the power itself of enjoyment. The streets of Toronto are thronged by men who are all making the supreme mistake, the world-old mistake of toiling along the road to wealth, thinking it the path to happiness. To these men Nature, if she had them in one of her great summer schools, would find no better question to put than that of old, "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his soul." A man's soul; is it not that part of him which is made up of his deeper consciousness, his higher aspirations, and tenderest affections? That part of him which gives sustemance to his faith, his better hopes. That part of him which gives suste-nance to his faith, his better hopes, his charity, all three of which, un-happily, are in the gravest danger of his charity, all three of which, unhappily, are in the gravest danger of starvation in the process of getting even a very small part of "the whole world." His soul, moreover, is that best part of him which is reawakened when, beside some northern lakeside, he sits under the stars while he hears Nature's quiet broken only by voices the dearest to him in all the world. A man came back to the city yesterday after a week spent with his family in the holiday country up north. His friends, when they met him on the street congratulated him on the scoat of tan he wore on his cheeks. What they might also have seen, and perhaps did, was a certain contented expression in his eyes which he had also brought with him from the country. Away from the treadmill, or the game, or whatever you care to call it, fer only seven days, and yet it was long enough to refresh the very soul of him. The effect will wear away, of course, but it must be there still, and we warrant you that to-day, as he sits at his deak his mind looks in a little it must be there still, and we warrant you that to-day, as he sits at his desk, his mind looks in a little different way at the problems and bargaining of business, and that for some days, at least, those better things which cannot be bought and sold, and are not listed on the exchanges, will have a strenger hold upon him. In one of Nature's summer schools he had renewed his knowledge of certain simple pleasures, and refreshed those domestic affections which are the source of the most satisfying happiness Mother Earth offers to her business-ridden, success-pursuing sons.

IN ONTARIO'S SCHOOLS. Decrease in Neble Army of Pupils From

Some interesting statistics were announced the other day at the Department of Education, Torento, showing the salaries of school teachshowing the salaries of school teachers to have been a little higher in 1902 than they were in 1901. The total number of pupils enrolled in the Public schools of the province in 1902 was 408,124 of whom 209,566 were boys and 198,558 girls. These figures show a decrease of 6,495 compared with the preceding year, when the total was 414,619. The decrease is noticed in the townships, in many the total was 414,619. The decrease is noticed in the townships, in many of the towns, as well as in all the cities, with the exceptions of Chatham and St. Catharines. The district of New Ontario alone shows an increase. The average daily attendance was 57.01 per cent. of the total as compared with 56.00. total, as compared with 56.69

1901, a slight increase for last year.
The attendance at the Roman Catholic Separate schools shows a total of 45,964, of whom 23,814 were boys and 22,650 girls. The increase for 1902 over the total of 1901 is 1,977.

Teachers' salaries show a considerable increase for both male and fe-male, and, although still low, are higher than at any former period in the history of the province. The following table speaks for itself, as showing the average salary. The counties, of course, are exclusive of cities and towns:—

The number of teachers with Normal school training increased from 4,427 in 1901 to 4,601 in 1902, or a little over 53 per cent. of the total of the total only 81 teachers were university graduates, or about 1 per cent.

were university graduates, or about 1 per cent.

The total amount paid out in teachers' salaries in 1902 was $2,987,933, an increase of $113,460 over 1901. The total expenditure for all purposes io 1902 was $4,359,976 as against $4,328,682 in 1901, an increase in expenditure of $31,238.

No man looks his best when he is laughting heartily. A woman, on the other hand, may not enjoy a joke or a situation a why less, nor really laugh less, but she manages to do so, as a rule, without disarranging her features or her collette, and smiting disagreeably on the tympanum of other people. The tinkle of feminine laughter is generally pleasant to listen to; sounds well across water, it floats pleasantly on the breeze.—Lady's Pictorial. Tinkle of Feminine Laughter.

DIRECTORS OF THE LAKE SUPERIOR COMPANY.

Declaration of Dividends that Were Not Earned-Report that Speyer & Co. May Foreclose Their Mortgage.

Philadelphia, Aug. 27.—The North American News says: It was reported hat members of the old Board of Directors of the Consolidated Lake Su-perior Company would be prosecuted un-lier the laws of Connecticut for declarperier Company would be prosecuted unler the laws of Connecticut for declaring dividends on the preferred stock of the concern which were not sarned. The hompany is a Connecticut corporation.

The last dividend was declared in Nofember, but was not paid, the company being forced to seek financial assistance lust before payment was due. Subsetuent revelations have led to diligent insuiry as to the basis of the reports of sarnings. It was alleged that evidence had been discovered showing that a profit of $400,000 which appeared in a report could not be found in the books, and that this was excussed on the ground that it was "a clerical error." A profit was also reported on the pulp mill, but the new President in a recent report declared that this had been eperated at a loss.

It was suggested that such proceedings as may be begun would probably result in an addit of the company's books. This, it is addited the company's books. This,
that addited the company's artairs that the companisation details of the proposed reorganisation of the company were made known officially.
It is said by interests well informed upon the company's artairs that Speyer

The plan of reorganization, it is understood, will provide for the purchase of the properties at auction by the syndicate properties at auction by the syndicate being formed to underwrite the 18,000,000 which it is proposed to raise, and the speyer syndicate, which includes many Philadelphia banks, will be paid its full 36,060,000.

Perils of Ballooning

Balloon ascents are attended by, many dangers, but a novel peril was experienced by an aeronaut in India some time ago. As night came on the aerial traveler found himself nearing a jungle and resolved to descend on a marshy spot at the edge of a lake.

As he came down into the rushes, however, a crocodile appeared and made straight for the balloon. The aeronaut by throwing out some sand managed to rise a few feet, but the crocodile rushed round and round the grappling rope, clearly disproving the fallacy that a crocodile cannot turn quickly. It would probably have made short work of the unlucky voyager had not some natives come up just in time.—Golden Penny.

THE SONG SPARROW

Hall: little bird, in brown and grey, That in the earliest spring-time first Comes north, to greet us with thy lay, Though March winds blow and long deig The purple Illac buds to burst.

How cheery, then, sounds thy trill!
How spirited its brave attack!
As if ye dured the lingering chill
Of slow-dispersing snows on hill
And solitary woodland track.

Our messenger of hope, art thou, Of slowers and sunskine yet to be, As from the bare and bending hough Thou pourest forth thy ecstasy, So Joyousir, so kwishly.

From thy full repertoire of tre-sure, Our own Canadian Philomel, Theu beingest forth no stinted measure; The gushing founts of song that well Within thy heart thy strains impet From morning star to vesper bell.

High on the spray, thou liftest thy head When April wakes the violet, And when the summer days have sped And autumn dons her robes of red And trosted sheen, thou singest yet,

Thine is no pessimistic wall,
Glad spirit of perpetual s.ne;
The earth is thy enchanted vale,
Whose beauties all to thee belong:
Thou drinkest from the nectated g all,
And thou must sing, sweet night.neals.

J. C. FRANKLIN, AGED 109. Inmate of Toronto Asylum for the Insa—Recalls His Youth.

— Mscalls His Yeath.

Mr. John C. Franklin, an inmate of the Toronto Asylum for the insane, can probably lay claim to being the eldest man in Toronto, says The Star of that city. Last fall he was brought from Bowmanville to Toronto, and has since that time been at the Queen street asylum.

Although there is no means of accertaining his exact age; since one of his sons claims him to be 97, while the other says he is 114, it is probable that Mr. Franklin's own statement, that he is 109, is correct.

Mr. Franklin says he was born on the Bay of Dublin on Hallowe'en night, 1794, before the great Irish rebellion, and that his birth is registered in one of the English churches in Dublin. On account of his being born on Hallowe'en his grandmother made him promise never to play any game of chance, as he would always be made win by the fairies and his winnings would always bring him any game of chance, as he would al-ways be made win by the fatries and his winnings would always bring him harm, and so, durng his whole life, he has never played any game of he has never played any game of chance.

When 19 years of age he went from Dublin to the Loch Erne country to avoid being enlisted against Napoleon, and from that time till 1830 he remained in that part of Reland. About that time and the period immediately subsequent Mr. Franklin's memory is most clear. He remembers well the excitement in Ireland regarding the threatened Napoleonic invasions and the misery which followed the close of the wars. In 1830 he sailed from Dublia to Montreal, where he lived for a year, working at his trade as a mason, and then removed to Cornwall, where he remained until the outbreak of Mackenzie's rebellion. At that time he joined the militia, and was present at the attack on the insurgents at the windmill at Prescott and later fought against the insurgeats in Lower Canada, where he was wounded in the thigh by a musket ball and had his knapsack cut off by a sabre slash.

"I was a sharpshooter." said Mr.

had his knapsack cut off by a sabre slash.

"I was a sharpshooter," said Mr. Franklin, "and give me three fingers depth of whiskey in a glass and I would never miss."

After the close of the rebeliion he went to Marmora, where he remained several years, and since then he has lived at Belleville and Bowmanville. Mr. Franklin was married twice, having in his first family three girls and one son, who was in the Life Guards, and in his second family two girls and four boys.

In spite of his great age, Mr. Franklin's mind is fairly clear and his memory accurate regarding events

Franklin's mind is fairly clear and his memory accurate regarding events which took place in his youth. He is full of anecdotes of his early life in Canada and in Ireland, and is fond of relating tales of those times. Mr. Franklin has always been a hard worker and has been idle scarcely a day until he became too old to work. "If I were to live as long again," Mr. Franklin said this morning, "I think I would enjoy life as well as ever, and if I had my strength I think I would enjoy life as well as ever, and if I had my strenght I would take more recreation and less work in my life."

Mr. Day was born in London, England, in 1837, and was educated at Dublin and at South Kensington. He came to this country in 1862 and was for many years draughtsman in the royal naval yard at Halifax, whence he was transferred to the Royal Millitary College in 1879. Here he remained until the end of the college year, 1897, when old age and ill-health compelled him to retire. In 1880 he was made a member of the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts by His Excellency the them Governor-General, the Marquis of Lorne. The picture that earned him this distinction was a landscape—his forte—"Scene on the Nouvelle River, N. B." Two of his other most celebrated works are "The Grand Pre" and "Louisburg." which gained for him favorable notice in Paris.
