Make the Meetings Interesting.

Very few branches, we venture to say, are conducted in such a manner that the majority of the members are at all times anxious to be in attendance. We will of course have to admit that if the Order of Business is gone through with in the manner provided for in the Rules of Order, the meeting has been conducted properly. But is there not something still wanting? We all know how dreary it is to sit out the meeting in some of the hranches. One after another is called out the different headings under which a discussion may arise, and no move is made, no word spoken, until the time comes for payment of dues and assessments, after which the balance of the headings are called out, prayer is offered up, and the meeting declared closed. This rule of procedure, while perfectly legal and in excellent order, is, neverthele-s, very monotonous. We do not wish to find fault. It is our purpose to write some thoughts with a view to filling up the vacant chairs, and we would be delighted to have some of our fellow members send us suggestions tending to bring about what seems to us to be a very desirable end, namely, making our gatherings so attractive that large, interesting and instructive meetings will be the result. In a well-regulated branch there is no reason why the ordinary business may not be transacted in an hour; and a similar time could be devoted to readings, essays and debates, five minutes being allowed each speaker in which to deliver his ideas either pro or con on the questiou at issue. The main objects of the associations are fraternity and insurance; or, rather, insurance and fraternity; for after all, it is the financial benefit which gives motive power to the driving wheels of the C. M. B. A; but untold good would ensue were variety introduced into the meetings. In addition to those modes of whiling away the time which we have already noted, we may now and then invite a priest or layman to deliver a

A Few Plain Facts.

An esteemed American brother, Mr. J. J. Hynes, of Buffalo, who has been for many years a hard-working member of the Committee on Laws of the Supreme Council, has written a letter to the Buffalo Inquirer concerning the Canadian question. This newspaper, it seems, made the assertion, which was an erroneous one, that the "Canadian C. M. B. A., but six days old, was fighting among themselves." The article was evidently written by one who knew little of the association. Bro. Hynes' letter was eulogistic of the illegally-constituted Grand Council of Quebec, the first meeting of which be thus refers to: "There never was a more harmonious meeting of delegates, and there was great difficulty in getting members to accept office in the new council." As there were present but nine delegates from that number of branches, and as there were more offices vacant than there were members to fill thom, it would be a wonder indeed if unanimity did not prevail. We are glad, at all events, that there was accord; for disagreements and bickerings form an unlovely sight in all societies.

bickerings form an unlovely sight in all societies.

It is with regret we have to note that Bro. Hynes has stated the case unfairly, with a view to bring discredit on the actions of the Canadians. He advances the statement that "the officers and deputies of the Grand Council of Canada have for a long time past been working to bring about total separation from the Supreme Council," Just here is where we have to complain of unfairness. If the Canada Council, or rather, the Canada membership, whose voice was represented by the Canada Council, years ago desired total separation, what was to provent its attainment? They could have very easily made a declaration of independence, and that would have been the end of it. There would have been un arrests, no pains or penalties, no trials for treason felony, or anything of that sort. Claims might have been made for the Grand Secretary's books and other property, and a little worry, dic-

There would have been no arrests, no pains or penalties, no trials for treason felony, or anything of that sort. Claims might have been made for the Grand Secretary's books and other property, and a little worry, dictated by a spirit of revenge, might have been our portion, but we would soon get over the tromble, and put on all canvas on our own cresier. Total separation, then, was not the object in view. When the seed of the association was planted in the Dominion, we were approached in this fashion: "Come and join us; we have a grand mutual benefit association; and if at any time you desire Home Rule or separate beneficiary, still remaining part and parcel of the parent society, you may make application for it when you have 2,500 members." This was the picture set before us. We were not asked to join for better for worse until death doth us part. When we attained our majority we made application for separate beneficiary. It was denied us. When we were 4,000 strong, 5,000 strong, 6,000 strong similar requests were sent in to the parent body, but the answer in each case was "No." And to crown all, the separate beneficiary clause was hastily wiped out of the constitution altogether.

But we experienced greater unfairness still since the Supreme Council meeting in Montreal in October. It was admitted on alt sides that to fulfil the law, separate jurisdiction had to be granted. A provise was, however, agreed to by the Canadians, that if at any time one or more Previnces outside of Outario desired to establish a Grand Council in affiliation with the Supreme body, they should be accorded that privileve, It was known that two, and only two, 'mches in Quebec Province were desirous or retaining their old status; and the delogates from these branches set on foot an agitation fer the establishment of a Grand Council in fafiliation with the Supreme Dody they should be accorded that privileve, It was known that two, and only two, 'mches in Quebec Province, here, there and everywhere, attending branch meetings and harangoin

The Drink Question.

To the Editor of the Catholic Record:
Sin-1 have been following with interest a few letters recently published in your journal, referring to the ipso facto nullity of beneficiary certificates where the insured died of some disease directly referrable to the excessive use of sleoholics.

There is no use in disguising the fact that this question is too lightlydreated by the association. The question of sentiment and charity (bless the mark!) prevents us from doing to ourselves that justice that must be done if the C. M. B. A. is to continue a useful and long-lived society. There is no doubt whatever that a certificate in the cases mentioned is null and void. Nay, more it is certain that the duty rests in the branch, where a member persists in the excessive use of intoxicants, to strike the offender's name from the register. Every applicant for membership signs an agreement that he will not "practice any pernicious habit that obviously tends to shortest life;" he, further, agrees that should his death be caused by intemperation of the control of the con

4. Place a physician in charge of a district which shall not include the territory in which he practices, and to facilitate matters let the branches have a number of applicants ready to be examined at periodical visits.

The future is full of danger for us unless the examinations are made more strictly. Where is the hurry in forming new branches? Let us have good risks, and, if needed, let us wait. If each member who dies is replaced by a new one, we can survive and be useful. But for the good of the C. M. B. A., and the continuance of its truly charitable and Christian mission, let doctors, trustees and branches shut out. If necessary, their dearest friends, and not soothe their consciences with this criminal comfort as they admit bad risks—"after all, it will be only a few cents on each of us."

Concert in the Pavillon. Toronto.

The concert given under the auspices of the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association in the Pavilion on Monday evening, 3-th Jan, met with a very hearty reception, with a few exceptions every seat, both on the main floors and in the galleries, being occupied. The event was under the patronage of His Honor Lieut. Governor Kirkpatrick and His Grace Arch bishop Walsh, and it is the intention of the association to apply the proceeds in aid of St. Michael's hospital. The programme was of considerable length and excellent throughout. While it is a matter of much difficulty to make any comparison of the other talented ladies and ge-tilemen whose names appeared on the programme. It may be stated safely and with justice that Mr. George Fox's admirable playing on the violin was the feature of the evening. His "Souvenir de Haydn," in the early part of the programme. completely charmed his hearers and earned for him an encore, to which he responded with the nuch more simpley but none the loss pleasing "Belleve Me if all I hosendaring Young Charms." Later on he gave a "Valse Capricto," which met with an equally flattering reception. The others who appeared were Mrs. Klein, in two very sweetly sing solos; Mrs. Mackelean, also in two sones; Miss Sullivan, in a plano solo; Mr. J. P. HAMILTON SEPARATE SCHOOLS.

THE GOVERNMENT INSPECTOR ON HIS OFFICIAL TOUR.

Hamilton Spectator, Jan 27.

of Hamilton:

"Theg leave to inform you that I have just completed an official inspection of the schools in your charge, and that copies of detailed reports on the same will be forwarded to you in a short time from the Education department, from the Education department of the city. The Education of the best schools in the Province. The St. Thomas' and St. Vincent's schools are handsome structures, and seem to be placed in exactly the right places. The main building in the St. Lawrence district is quite up to the mark; and it is to be hoped that the frame house now in use will soon give place to a more suitable structure. St. Patrick's school, the patriarch of the city, still creditably holds its own in spite of well-nigh forty years of conflict with time and weather. The playgrounds for some schools are abundant, and for all as ample as can be expected in city schools.

"The class-rooms, almost without exception, are of the regulation size, commodiously arranged, well provided with facilities for light, the at and ventilation. I must request you, however, to be on the alert to meet the sudden arrival of cold spells, such as we have recently experienced, otherwise many of the rooms will be inhabitable during the best part of the day. Besides being generally comfortable, the rooms are made pleasant and attractive by many neat decorations secured by the teachers themselves, with due regard for the beautiful, which is characteristic of the female sex. Furniture of the most approved quality is fully supplied throughout, except, perhaps, in the matter of blackboard accommodation, of which it is hardly possible to have too much. There is no library att

ENCOURAGING REPORT FROM INSPECTOR DON OVAN-HE IS EXTREMELY WELL PLEASED. Expositor, Feb. 3.

Expositor, Feb. 3.

Cornelius Donovan, M. A., Separate School Inspector, made an official visit to the schools in orantford last week, and has sent to the trustees the following report, which would indicate that excellent work is being done:

GENTLEMEN—In accordance with the regulations of the Education Department, I beg leave to report upon your schools in the following particulars:

The main school (St. Basil's) a plain brick building, is strong and well preserved. The rooms, four in number, wear a cosy, comfortable, tidy appearance, more or less beautified by the teachers. They are all large enough for classes of the ordinary size, but, although recently relieved by the new school, the primary room is still overcrowded; in fact, there is work enough here for an additional room and teacher. In the matter of equipment, there is no essential requisite wanting—desks, scats, blackboards and maps being well and fully supplied. As is usual in cities, the play-grounds are not extensive, but are kept in good order, and well separated for the sexes. The closets are, on the whole, of a suitable character, and seemed to be well cared for. City water for drinking purposes is on the premises. The rear entrance to the class rooms requires to be repaired.

The new school (St. Joseph's), situated near the east end, is a well formed, well proportioned and handsome brick building. The rooms are capable of accommodating sixty pupils each with the greatest ease and comfort. They are bright, airy, cheerful apartments; their heating and ventiliation are on scientific principles, which will bear a favorable comparison with those of the best actions in the province. The furniture, too, is of the best quality, but the supply of maps and other apparatus is yet to be provided. The yards are amply large, neatly fenced, properly separated and duly accommodated with two sets of closets. Looked at from any point of view, the establishment of this school was an excellent arrangement.

As to educational standing. While at all former visus I could speak in complimentary terms of the classes as a body, find it more gratifying to be able to say this time that all the classes, individually, as well as collectively, are doing their work in the various branches of the school programme in a highly satisfactory manner. The detailed report coming from the Education Department will fully substantiate this staiement. In like manner with the state of discipline and order-vigorous and skilful management earnest and orderly conduct, and a healthy professional tone are not confined to the Sister's department alone, but are clearly observable throughout. Moreover, the number of pupils has increased by at least 5per cent; so that on all counts, accommodations and equipments, pupils and teachers, Brantford school affairs were never before in such a satisfactory and flourishing condition; and from careful observation I feel safe in saying that the future prospects are equally encouraging. Vour obedient servant.

Since, then, we profess "to prefer the glory of God before our own interests," we must not wish to deprive Him of your services where He wishes to use them.

Most selfish, too, would we be to wish to deprive you of any of the blessings promised by our Lord to those who are devoted to His divine Heart.

We promise you that, in matter where your field of labor may be, the members of the society of the Sacred Heart of Jesns, and the members of the Sodality of Our Blessed Lady here will daily invoke Heaven's choicest blessings on your undertakings.

The separation will only be in body—our love and gratitude to you we will place in the unchangeable Heart of God to be purified and to last throughout the great eternity.

BUSINESS MEN OF MARK.

ACHIEVEMENTS OF MESSRS. M. AND N. K. CONNOLLY.

Kingston News, Jan. 31. In this issue we present to our readers a short sketch of two men whose energy and business ability have placed them in the front rank of Canada's men of enterprise. Both the Messrs. Connolly are self-made men; both owe the position they now occupy to their zeal, foresight and great business capacity. They were born in the county Monaghan, Ireland, but when quite young removed to England, where their father had contracts for supplies from the Derwin Iron Works Company, of Durham county. At an early age they came to this country, and settled in the oil regions of Pennsylvania, where they tried their 'prentice hand, and where they acquired some valuable property, thus gaining their first success in the commercial world. Then came the building of the Welland Canal, where fortunes were made and lost. In this huge enterprise the Connolly brothers took a large part, and the greatness of the work revealed the powers of the men, their mechanical skill and engineering ability. After this work was completed, they, in company with Captain Larkin, of St. Catharines, secured the contract for the Levis graving dock. When this was completed they engaged in that great undertaking known as the Quebec harbor improvement. This immens- work, costing somewhere in the neighborhood of two millions of dollars, was successfully carried out, and stands forth today the most complete of its kind on the continent of America. Before this contract was finished they undertook the completion of the Eequimault graving dock, at British Columbia. Though the extent and difficulties of this work had already proved too much for a firm then well established, yet the Connollys knew no such word as fail. They surmounted every difficulty, bore down all obstructions, and the dock, as now completed, stands forth today a fitting mounment to their unflagging energy and unceasing determination. The Kingston dry dock was their next field of labor, and the completion of the Eequimault graving dock, at British Columbia. They are the properties which has marked

THE MONTHLY "OWL."

The Owl, our Ottawa University eriodical, is gaining rapidly in public estimation, but not more so than its literary merit deserves. The Ottawa Citizen says, alluding to the Christmas number: "It is by far the finest issue of that journal that has yet appeared. It is highly creditable not only to the institution, but also to the city, being replete with interesting essays on contemporary subjects from many gifted pens; whilst some of the poems are written over the names of noted Canadian bards. In prose may be especially noted 'Uganda,' by the Yery Rev. Æneas McD. Dawson, V. G., LL. D., etc.; 'The Schools,' by John D., of Winnipeg; 'Christmas Eve, 1872,' by J. K. Foran; and 'Panama and de Lesseps,' by Q. P. Smith; while in verse Archbishop O'Brien, of Halifax, contributes 'Picture of Brightness;' etc. Canada's new Premier is also treated of, and the article is accompanied by a full page engraving of Sir John Thompson

The Free Press, of Ottawa, is no less eulogistic. It says: "The Christmas number of the Owl, published by the students of the University of Ottawa, contains an immense amount of enter taining matter. Among the contribu tions are a Christmas hymn by Mr Frank Waters; an article on the Communion of Saints, by Very Rev. Æ. Mc-D. Dawson, V. G., LL. D. ; etc.; a poem on Samuel de Champlain, by Dr. S. E. Dawson; an argument for religious education in schools, by Mr. J. K. Barrett, of Winnipeg; a description of the Red River country half a century ago, by E. J. It would be quite superfluous to add anything to the eulogies passed on the Owl by the local papers. Whoever takes the trouble, or, rather, gives himself the pleasure, of perusing its pages will certainly acknowledge that all that has been said is more than justified by the variety and excellence of the essays and poems presented. We have never met with college publication so ably and tastefully prepared.
