THE BOAT RACE-DEATH OF RENFORTH. On Wednesday the great Anglo-Canadian boat race was contested on the waters of the Kennebecasis. A great concourse of people was attracted there from all parts of the Dominion and United States to witness what was called a struggle for the championship of the world. The morning was very fine, and the water smooth, so that a start was effected shortly after seven Both crews it appears were working well, with St. John crew leading, as they neared Appleby's Wharf, when Renforth was seized with a fit and fell into the arms of Kelly. His comrades rowed ashore above the whart, and sent the unconscious man to the Claremont House, where he expired a few minutes before nine The St. John crew continued over the course, and won the race in a little over 39 minutes The death of Renforth has excited the sympathy of all classes, and cast a gloom over the whole community.
