

BRAVE RESCUE BY FRANK PRIEST

Dove from Steamer to Drowning Man's Aid

Fred Allen Had Fallen Overboard and Gone Down
Twice

After a high dive from the top deck of a ship into the cold water, Frank Priest, a stevedore on board the Salacia, saved the life of Fred Allen on Saturday.

About four o'clock in the afternoon Allen was arranging some fittings on one of the scows at the new McLeod wharf and accidentally fell overboard into the sea. He could not swim a stroke and soon his cries for help were heard by the men on the Donaldson boat Salacia. Allen was almost exhausted and had gone down twice before his plight was observed.

Allen's chances looked very slim, when his wild, despairing cry reached the ears of Frank Priest, who was at work on the deck of the Salacia. Priest ran to the end of the vessel and with great quickness leaped overboard to the rescue.

Diving into the water, which was closing over Allen, he reached him and brought him up on his back, telling him to hang on and keep still.

For some time Priest strenuously labored to keep himself and his burden above water, and for several minutes a struggle was witnessed from the shore. Finally the boat was manned and the courageous rescuer relieved of his burden.

Allen was taken on board the Salacia, and after getting warmed was able to go to his home.

Those who watched Priest's brave act are loud in their praises of his courage and of his prompt response to the cry for help.

Allen was unable to keep himself above the surface, and when reached by Priest, was sinking the third time. Priest, who was hurt on the Athena a week ago.

BOY HAS REVENGE FOR WRONGS OF MOTHER

Walks Coolly Into a Restaurant and Shoots Director,
His Stepfather, Dead

MILAN, March 25.—A sensational tragedy was enacted in a restaurant here yesterday at an hour when that popular resort was thronged with diners.

A pallid youth, who seemed to enter hurriedly, and in an excited manner to make his way toward a table where Sigisfredo Piffert, the director, was sitting with a party of guests. A moment later a revolver shot was heard, and the director started up, exclaiming: "I am assassinated." He then staggered, fell heavily to the floor and died before medical assistance could be obtained.

The murderer, who is barely 16 years of age, made no attempt to escape. He turns out to be the victim's stepson. His mother, the Milanese Countess Vitali, contracted a romantic second marriage with the director five years ago, when the latter was head waiter at the Olympia Theatre here. For a while things went well, but it is alleged that the director and began recklessly squandering the countess' fortune, and ill-treating her and his stepchildren, so that recently a separation became imperative.

The boy assassin, Bertrand Vitali, declares that he was goaded to the deed through his stepfather's shocking cruelty to his mother and his conduct toward his young sisters.

Before leaving home to execute his vengeance, Bertrand embraced his mother and sisters with exceptional tenderness. This incident aroused anxiety in the countess' mind when she noticed her son's absence was unaccountably prolonged. After searching vainly for him in his favorite haunts, she happened to pass the restaurant, and from the crowd before the closed doors she first glimpsed the terrible tragedy.

Lately there has been quite an epidemic of similar cases in Italy. Only a few days ago a similarly respected youth at Urbino shot dead the father of his fiancée, a prominent citizen there, whose conduct with his children was in question.

LATE BISHOP FOWLER

ULLMO, THE FRENCH NAVAL TRAITOR, IS DEGRADED AND REMOVED TO PRISON

While Admitting That He Stole Naval Secrets, He Protests That He Did Not Sell Them to the Agent of a Foreign Power, and Faints While Being Stripped of Insignia

LAST SCENES IN THE TRIAL AND CONVICTION FOR TREASON OF LIEUTENANT ULLMO

PARIS, March 20.—Lieutenant Ullmo, the naval officer found guilty of treason in selling foreign secrets, including plans of French harbors, and even the complete naval code, to some foreign power, was yesterday degraded from his rank and conveyed to a fortress, where he will spend the remainder of his life.

There was a pathetic scene as the one-time officer was publicly stripped of all insignia of his rank. During the ceremony he was very poor, and at length shouted out in a harsh voice: "I am facing men in the uniform of my country, and I know that this is the last time I shall wear it. I know how low I have fallen and I realize the enormity of my crime; but I swear most solemnly that I never sold nor tried to sell," and the wretched man fainted.

Although the wretched man confessed in court that he stole the secrets from the strong box of the ship's captain, there is some degree placed in his repeated assertions that he did not actually sell them. This is a matter of doubt, however, so that it will be necessary to completely alter the naval code.

Like many another man, Ullmo was ruined by a woman. Until he met the beautiful but unscrupulous Miss Lison his reputation was blameless and he was regarded with respect and esteem by all who knew him. After their acquaintance he spent all his money on her, and exhausting all his resources, decided to become a traitor. He met the agent of some foreign power (which was not disclosed) at Toulon, and arranged to sell the secrets to him. Curiously enough all the negotiations were conducted in the newspapers, appearing under the guise of advertisements in the personal columns. Suspicious circumstances led to his arrest and he was convicted of treason by the Council of War. He appealed to the court with the result that he was again found guilty and sentenced to imprisonment for life.

The judge advocate, in asking the court to find Ullmo guilty of treason, said his argument would be enforced by all who knew him. After their acquaintance he spent all his money

WHITES COVE, N. B., Mar. 19.—The warm weather which has set in is doing very much to weaken the ice, which is already very poor, and the people of this place are looking forward to a very early opening of navigation.

The work of building the new steel bridge at the Narrows has had to be abandoned for the present on account of the weak state of the ice, which would not give sufficient foundation to drive the piling. It is understood the work will be again undertaken in the early summer.

ENGLISH WOMAN "DOES" HALIFAX

Then Left for St. John, Leaving a Number of Creditors Behind

HALIFAX, March 23.—The sudden disappearance under discreditable circumstances of an English woman, who came out to Canada some years ago, and was very kindly received here, is at present interesting a large number of people. Towards the end of last week the woman in question disposed of the furniture in her house.

On Sunday she was at the North End hotel, driving there in a cab to Rockingham, where she took the train for St. John, her ultimate destination being, it is believed, Vancouver.

The circumstances of her flight are in a high degree discreditable—her creditors are many, and during the past year stories in regard to her private life have shocked those to whom she was first known as the capable head of a department in a leading Halifax establishment.

The story of her life here is a sad one of retrogression.

Landing at the immigration building a stranger, and apparently friendless, her excellent dress attracted the kind people of the type always to the attention and engaged the interest of those following her in the street. Obviously well educated, claiming to be of good family, it was apparent to all who met her that she was a woman of exceptional ability to make her way in a strange land.

Through the disinterested kindness of a leading firm she was given a respectable position in their employ, holding it for two or three years, but being dismissed about a year ago. Her subsequent history seems to strongly point to the wisdom of caution in befriending immigrants. She has unmistakably and grossly abused the kindness of all who since her arrival here have taken an interest in her welfare.

Soon Saturday, the proprietor of the north end hotel referred to stated that about half-past five o'clock on Sunday afternoon the woman came to the hotel, remaining for tea. She stated that she was going to Boston, asking to be recommended to a good house there. She was recommended to the Crawford House. The woman asserted that she had been in Halifax only three months, and was comparatively unacquainted here.

Subsequently she ordered a cab, giving orders to drive her to Rockingham. It is, however, thought that her ultimate destination is Vancouver.

TROUBLE OVER SAYS ALEXIS

Peace Will Reign
When Warships Go.

So States Hayti Ruler Who is in Many Respects a Remarkable Old Man

PORT AU PRINCE, March 22.—A correspondent interviewed President Nord Alexis at the palace here. The building was guarded by a regiment and a half of brilliantly uniformed troops. At the staff of officers and the members of the cabinet were present in the amazingly gaudy, but dilapidated reception room in which the president received the correspondent. Gen. Alexis said:

"There will be no more trouble, and there is no necessity for the warships remaining here. When they depart the country will be very peaceful. Beyond the punishment of disloyal soldiers there will be no more drastic action taken by the government. The men, who sought refuge on the warships, and consulates are at liberty to go to their homes when they want. I have taken no measures that were not necessary to protect the government from revolutionaries. I believe, thoroughly that in the future tranquility will prevail and every one will be safe."

President Alexis, in many respects, is a wonderful man. He is over 90 years of age and his appearance is typical of an old man. He is a believer in voodooism, which spreads its baneful influence everywhere in Hayti. Despite his years he is alert and active and dominates everything.

HINDUS CLAIM PROTECTION AS
BRITISH CITIZENS

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 23.—Five hundred Hindus met yesterday in the Sikh Temple and after many exciting speeches, protesting against their exaltation and deportation from Canada and emphasizing the fact that this would be a strong weapon in the hands of those preaching sedition in India, sent the following cable to John Morley, secretary for India:

"We protest against the deportation and exclusion from Canada. As British subjects we claim protection throughout the Empire. If our interests are overlooked by others, those in India must necessarily resent your government's neglect."

The cablegram is signed by Uday Ram, who is a nephew of Dr. Davis Chaud, a Hindu of high caste, who came to British Columbia to spy out land, but who is now agitating in India.

His right arm was badly burned. Dr. Hay of Chatham was telephoned for and arrived here by the evening express and amputated one arm. WAS WOUNDED BY A KOREAN

Because He "Had Helped Japan"

Victim Was Formerly Counsellor to Japanese Embassy at Washington.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 23.—With a revolver concealed in a handkerchief, L. W. Chang, a Korean, today shot and severely wounded D. M. Stevens, formerly counselor to the Japanese embassy at Washington, and now diplomatic adviser to the Korean government, as Stevens was about to leave for Washington. Three shots were fired at Stevens by Chang, the first bullet, perhaps, fatally wounding M. W. Chun, who, with Chang and another Korean, attacked Stevens as he was leaving an automobile to enter the ferry building. The other two shots took effect in Mr. Stevens' back, one bullet striking under the right shoulder blade near the spinal column and the other a few inches lower. While the wounds are serious, it is said that the chances for Mr. Stevens' recovery are good.

The motive for the attack apparently arises out of the resentment of a small group of San Francisco Koreans to the Japanese protectorate over Korea, and to the part played in the reorganization of the Korean government by Mr. Stevens.

Last night Stevens was attacked at the Fairmont Hotel by four Koreans who called to see him in reference to an interview in which Stevens had praised the work of the Japanese in Korea. After a fight with fists and chairs, Stevens stood off the assailants until they were arrested.

As Stevens and Consul General Kolke stepped from an automobile at the Ferry building today, three Koreans were waiting for him. As the Japanese consul general went to the front of the automobile to look after some baggage, Chun struck Stevens a blow in the face and ran. The diplomat immediately started in pursuit of his assailant.

Chang, standing near, drew from his pocket a revolver, wrapped in a handkerchief, and fired three shots in rapid succession at Mr. Stevens. The first shot brought Chun down with a bullet through the right lung. The other two bullets struck Mr. Stevens. Police men arrested Chang and Chun, but the other Korean escaped.

Chang, who is about as large as a twelve-year-old boy, says he is thirty years old and has been in this country for two years, coming from Hawaii. "Yes, he shot him," he said to a representative of the Associated Press. "No sorry? No. Him no good. Him help Japan. Blimey Korea alle same Japan."

He said he had read about Stevens in the Japanese newspapers and had recognized him from a picture. It was learned today that a small band of Koreans had been hunting for Stevens since he arrived from the Orient last Friday. Inquiry was made at all the principal hotels yesterday until one "committee" found him at the Fairmont last night. Hearing of the failure of that "committee" to assassinate Stevens, another group waited for the diplomat at the Ferry building.

Chang is in a cell at city prison. No charge will be placed against him pending the outcome of Mr. Stevens' injuries.
