FROM RANCH TO FARM

The Days of Ranching in Texas Are No More—The Cow Country Is Now a Grain and Cereal Raising Land.

Conditions on the great "X.I.T." ranch in Texas are representative of the transformation that is going on in the "panhandle" of Texas, where the cattle barons are being forced in-

Fifteen hundred miles of fencing were needed when the "X.I.T." ranch was first inclosed, and this amount was increased to 2,000 miles when cross fences were set up later.

Those who are familiar with land laws will recall that Texas maintained her public land when admitted to the union and that there has never been any government acreage in that state.

The corner stone of the capitol was laid in 1885 and the structure which has no superior in the country except the national capitol at Wash-

As the work on the building progressed the three million acres were gradually deeded to the syndicate that had put up the structure at a cost of $3,250,000.

The syndicate was made up of Chicagoans at whose head were former Senator C. B. Farwell and his brother J. B. Farwell. An English company was formed and $5,000,000 was borrowed on a bond issue.

The era of the rancher began in 1880, when cattle were turned loose on the big ranch. At that time no one had any opulence in the land, as no effort had been made to bore wells.

The first cattle were the "long-horns," once characteristic of the plains, but today the herds are made up of the shorthorns, Herefords, and Aberdeen-Angus varieties, or almost pure blood.

At that time there were no roads and everything had to be freighted across the prairie, 150 or 175 miles. The ranch was so remote from civilization that it became a haunt for refugees, each of whom had a "summer name" and a "winter name."

The annual meeting of the Western Canada Press Association was held in the city last Thursday and Friday. This is an organization of publishers located between the Great Lakes and the Rocky Mountains.

Hon. Pres., Hon. Walter Scott, President, Geo. Paterson, Deloraine Times. 1st vice president, E. S. Zing, Wapella Post.

When these sales are completed the final transformation in this part of the Panhandle will be brought about and an era of steady development as a farming district will be in full way. The springing up of new towns, the steady growth of those already established and the success of the farmers furnish proof that the development is now in full swing.

All the way from Dalhart to the New Mexico line towns are springing up to care for the trade that is developing with the settling up of the country.

The days of lawlessness and of free and easy ways have vanished with the cowboys. Years ago it was the custom for a man to go to any ranch in sight and take his place at the table uninvited.

They would be employed for instance for a number of weeks in the busy fall season at the north end of the syndicate tract, and would then begin to wander southward.

In order to put a stop to this, the owners of the "X.I.T." ranch ruled that everyone must pay for his meals and for the care of his horses unless he was a bona fide traveller.

H. W. Campbell, the "father of dry farming," started experimental farms some years ago at Bovina and at Perico, and there are few places where the utility of his teachings has been more forcibly demonstrated.

As the work on the building progressed the three million acres were gradually deeded to the syndicate that had put up the structure at a cost of $3,250,000.

The Panhandle is chiefly used for grain and stock raising, but other products can be grown to advantage. Apples and grapes are among the favorites with the farmers, and melons are grown, without irrigation, that are similar to those raised at Rocky Ford.

Experiments tried with beet seed imported from Germany have proved successful. Experts have claimed that the beets grown in the Panhandle contain a higher percentage of saccharine matter than those from other localities.

Alfalfa, kaffir corn and milo maize are profitable and bring good returns. In fact, anything that does not require tropical heat can be grown in this district if it receives proper attention.

ATTEMPTS TO STEAL WIFE

H. M. Hill Got Letters for H. Hill at Kenora and Writes Latter's Wife in London—Caught in the Trap at Last.

"I am sorry to take the privilege to write you to tell you that your husband is dead. He got blown to pieces in a rock cut on the new Grand Trunk Pacific railway."

The culprit, owing to his own lack of tact, in confidence with clever shadowing on the part of post office inspectors, is now in jail at Kenora, awaiting trial on several charges of theft from his Majesty's mails.

It was about the middle of January that Mrs. Herbert Hill, in her home in the British metropolis, anxiously awaiting a letter from her husband, from whom she had not heard for some time, received the following communication, which gave her a terrible shock, and which when shown to her husband's mother nearly resulted in the elderly lady's death.

Dear Madam—I am sorry to take the privilege to write you to tell you that your husband is dead. He got blown to pieces in a rock cut on the Grand Trunk Pacific railway.

The information and the letter's connection with the case may, as yet seem vague, but when it is ascertained that there were two Hills, one Herbert, husband of the woman, to whom the letter was addressed, and another Harry M. Hill, its author, and when it is known that Herbert Hill had not met with an accident, but was struggling away for a livelihood in the rock cuts of the great Transcontinental railway, all the time with the prospects of bringing his wife and aged mother to Canada, then the deviltry of the mind which could evolve such a plot can be left to the imagination.

Late last November Herbert Hill, an Englishman, short of stature and of cash, but tall of energy and determination, drifted into Winnipeg, from the last life whole matter before W. McLeod, postoffice inspector.

He failed to notify the postal authorities of his address, and as a result his wife's correspondence continued to be sent to Kenora.

During the second week of December a man stepped into the Kenora office and asked for mail addressed to H. M. Hill. Shown two letters addressed to Herbert Hill, he immediately claimed them. Both were from Herbert Hill's wife. One with a date mark of Dec. 6, gave information to the effect that the next mail would bring him a remittance of three pounds, which the wife was about to secure.

All this time Herbert Hill, husband of the London woman, continued to work from dawn to sunset in his rock cut, and close upon the New Year he wrote to the post office at Kenora inquiring for any letters.

In the meantime H. M. Hill called regularly, and each time took away from the office a letter addressed to the man in the camps. Incidentally he signed for the registered letter containing the money already mentioned, and took it away with him.

The woman's husband in answer to his letter received notice from Kenora that another person had been taking his mail. He was advised to come at once to the office. A late letter which had not fallen into the hands of the mail crook, was forwarded to him. It was written shortly before Christmas and contained a New Year's greeting. Allusion was made to the money which had been sent, and immediately Hill became suspicious. He claimed his time check and proceeded to Kenora.

Inspired at the success with which he had met, the thief decided upon a much larger coup. It was then that the letter announcing the husband's death which caused such suffering and grief was penned.

Four days after it was written a letter by the "genuine" Hill followed it. The counter action which it caused was almost as terrible a blow to the shattered nerves of the two women as its predecessor.

Immediately on learning of her husband's "death," Mrs. Hill wrote his "friend" asking that a death certificate be forwarded so that insurance might be collected. The impostor and crook was naturally nonplussed.

It was the husband, however, who supplied the next move on the complicated board. Immediately upon receiving word of Hill No. 2, and the attempts to wreck his home he wrote to his wife to keep in correspondence with the latter. She did, and in the interval Hill came to Winnipeg, where he hid the whole matter before W. McLeod, postoffice inspector.

UP TO THE DOMINION

The Legislative Assembly of Manitoba Adopts Resolution Regarding the Grain Question—Parliament Asked to Supply Relief.

The following resolution has been adopted by the Manitoba legislature: "Resolved, that a memorial be presented to his excellency the governor in council setting forth that:

"Whereas the farmers of Manitoba are dissatisfied with the present arrangements for storing grain at initial points, the elevators being in the hands of the grain dealers;

"And whereas the farmers believe that it would be in their interests and the interests of the public generally, that the initial elevators be publicly owned and controlled;

"And whereas under our constitution the power to control and regulate the storage and handling of grain, the weights and grades, the power to control and regulate transportation companies and maximum rates for the granting of elevator sites on railways, as well as the distribution of cars and generally all matters relating to the grain trade of Canada, rests in the federal Parliament and not in the provinces, as provided in the British North America act;

"Therefore, this assembly begs to call your excellency's attention to the desirability of the government of Canada dealing with the initial elevator system, either by (a) making provision for government ownership and operation of the grain elevators in Manitoba, or (b) by having conferred upon this province, either by Dominion or imperial legislation, the power to deal with the question of storage, transportation and grading of grain."

INDIGESTION ENDS.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of indigestion or dyspepsia or that food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will occasionally take a little Diapiesin after eating.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in the stomach), Bloating, Heartburn, Water brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapiesin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangle will digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour. Get a large 50-cent case of Pan's Diapiesin from your druggist and start taking today and by tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong stomach, for you can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every article of impurity and Gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

TO EMPLOYERS OF LABOR.

Farmers or manufacturers who will be requiring help of any kind will do well to correspond with the Toronto Free Employment Bureau, 71 Victoria St., Toronto, an institution operated for the benefit of the farmers and manufacturers, as well as for men seeking work, where one can apply and secure the help required without cost.

They can arrange for any kind of a man that is required. Particular care is taken with each case in order to secure the man best suited for the position offered. In this way better satisfaction will be had by those wishing to secure help, and it is quite easy to see that it will be a great benefit to everyone concerned.

We take pleasure in announcing that such an institution is being operated in Toronto, as considerable dissatisfaction has been felt in the past, owing to the system at present used in supplying men for the western provinces.

LANGVIN AT OTTAWA.

Ottawa, March 9.—Archbishop Langvin, of St. Boniface, was in the capital for a few hours on Monday on his way to Montreal. It is understood that during his stay here he saw several members of the government, and discussed with them the claims of the Catholics of Manitoba in the case of the boundaries being extended. He asked that provision should be made for protection of the interests of separate schools. At these interviews it is understood that the attitude taken by the ministers was that these questions will have to be settled by the government of Manitoba, which has control of the provincial school system. It is understood that his Grace also discussed with several members of the opposition.

Wairus Drew is Policeman. Ottawa, Feb. 22.—From reports that reached the Mounted Police Department today, it would seem that Sergeant Donaldson of the police detachment at Fullerton on Hudson's Bay, whose death was reported in a recent message from the north, met his end in an encounter with a walrus. The sergeant with Corporal Reeve and an Indian interpreter named Ford were making their way from Fort Churchill to Fullerton, travelling in a small sail boat which is used by the police for this hazardous trip.

Near Marble Island they encountered a number of walrus and killed several of them. The three went ashore to collect them and had towed some of them to the sailboat, but on one of their trips a walrus attacked them, and put his tusk through the dingy in which they were making the short trips.
