MORE DELAY CAUSED. The City Council last night referred back to the committee the question of the purchase of the Rogers dock, it heing the desire of some of the aldermen to ascertain definitely to what extent the acquisition of the property would affect the work the Government has in siew on the bay front. There is no objection to be made to the postponement of the Council's decision, save that it causes considerable further delay in beginning the work, which has already causes considerable further delay in be-ginning the work, which has already been unnecessarily delayed. The sug-gestion to accure the dock originally came from the Department, it being re-garded as important to the general scheme of improvement. The Minister will now be asked to state concisely what will be the consequence of the al-dermen refusing to adopt the sugges-tion. In the meantime, of course, nothtion. In the meantime, of course, nothing will be done. The attempt to terrorize the aldermen by threats of personal penalties if they vote for the purchase, has had no effect; Mr. MacKelcan treats it lightly, feeling sure of his ground. It has even led some of the shrawder on his to be through the ground. hrewder ones to see through the game on the property. The opponents of the bay front improvements are persistent and resourceful, but when the aldermen are fully aware of the situation they cannot hope to succeed in hindering their being carried out.

A CANADIAN MAIL ROUTE.

New Yorkers do not like the predic-tion of Sir William Mulock, Postmasterral, that Canada will ultimately command the entire fast mail traffic tween this continent and Britain. Sir William pointed out that by delivering the mails from fast steamships at Syd C. B., and there transferring them rect steamship at New York. It is said and sentiment would militate against be cheaper. via Canada. But when the interests at stake are considered, it is doubtful if these would stand in the way. On the vessels of the American, White Star and Cunard lines there arrived from Great Britain during May 15,685 sacks of mail, containing about 78,425,000 letters, while the White Star line alone during that month brought 8,220 sacks, containing about 41,100,000 letters. If Sir William can make it profitable to carry out his plan he will get much of this business.

The Montreal Gazette's advice to the Tory party is, boiled down: "Quit your nastinegs and obstruction and try to behave like men." And it's good advice, too. The party is dominated by small-souled men, and its performances have stake are considered, it is doubtful if

TALKING OF LIST STUFFING.

The Times recently referred to a case of voters' list stuffing in Philadelphia which it was shown that 510 fraudulent names were placed on a list on which the total was 777, and remarked that it was hardly possible that such a fraud could be committed in this country under our present system. The Brantford Courier profeses to feel no such assurance, and cites three or four cases of alleged irregularities as to voting.

A Chicago philanthropist who died recently left $400,000 to provide fuel or heat for the poor of Chicago, annually, during the winter months. This fuel will be distributed among the poor people. It will be a godsend to many, for Chicago is a cold city in winter and be permitted to recall to mind the infamous gerrymander, as means to disfranchise the Courier as means to disfranchise the Courier well remembers that act, and the purpose for which it cases that act, and the purpose for which it cases a corner of the editorial general country and could be committed in this country under which that in a little note in English up in the northwest corner of the editorial general cases of the editorial general country and could be committed in this country under when we sought to decipher the editorials we saw our finish.

It will be a godsend to many, for Chicago is a cold city in winter and the Revising Barrister, with which the Tories supplemented the infamous gerrymander, as means to disfranchise the Liberals and throttle public opinion. Of course the Courier well remembers that act, and the purpose for which it is a little note decided to continue to have the editorial general for Mr. Barker by representing him as the guardian of our cotton trade in Japan, rousing the Government to its dury in regard to protecting our people's trade interests there, is rather was heard from make apital for Mr. Barker by representing him as the guardian of our cotton trade in Japan, rousing the dovernment to it will be a godsend to many, for call on Mr. Fielding and discus that act, and the purpose for which it was passed and enforced, for didn't it "always vigorously hold up both hands" for the party that planned the infamy? Didn't it approve of the method, and fight for its retention? If it thod, and fight for its retention? If it and she is considering the laying of a will look up the record in Kent, where the act was worked in friendly hands, it may get a fine illustration of what it, might fairly designate "sickening" and it might fairly designate "sickening" and it might fairly designate "sickening" and it make the Philadelphia crooks throw up their hands and own that they are greenhorns. The act provided for non-resident voting, and in anticipation of election day thousands of names were stuffed into the lists. There were "tenants" of sand scows, names of men over whose graves the grass had long been growing; names of boys of eight years old; scores of unqualified men, and names of men whom the oldest inhabitant could not recall to memory, but for whom an army of outsiders from Michigan came in and voted—"right," of course. The list was in every particular to the hands of the Tory machine; the Gifts were to be dished. Well, the Gifts made an heroic fight, and in the town of Chatham alone succeeded in striking off over 400 names of these fraudulent voters. There they stuck, however. The Revising Barrister balked and refused to remove more names. A day was wasted at one court, over one mane; then ed at one court, over one name: then a week of legal argument in the town of Chatham followed, but he refused off. Then the Grits appealed to the High Court, and a writ of mandamus was ispelling him to remove the name.

Drunken Brawl at Brantford

Brantford, June 27.—James Adams, a middle-aged man, has been arrested on a charge of shooting at a young man named McIntyre, about 7 miles from this city, with intent to do bodily harm. McIntyre, it seems, was trespassing on Adams' property, when the latter gave him a charge of bird shot in the legs. The injuries are not very serious.
