

If you are ill you need a doctor in whom you have confidence.

If you need a remedy you want one that has been tested for years; not an obscure, untried thing that is urged upon you, or on which you save a few cents—that is no consideration as against health.

For wasting in children or adults, Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites has been the recognized remedy for twenty-five years.

OUR LADY OF THE ROSARY.

Fearless thou art, O maiden mild, Anna's and Joachim's sweet child, Who came, in calm old age to bless Their way through this life's wilderness.

And, day by day, in beauty thou Didst grow apace, and on thy brow The brightness of God's glory gleamed, And o'er thy virgin girlhood beamed.

And thou, as others of thy race, Didst enter His all-holy place, Where, fairest in His sanctuary, His wondrous love enfolded thee.

For thou wert destined from all time To crush the head of serpent crime, And bring again joy back to those Who daily toiled amidst earthly woes.

Thou on this earth wert set apart To give to man the Sacred Heart, Which he created, Who above Is measureless in boundless love.

Own Mother of the Lord divine, No greater honor could be thine; On thee our thoughts in wonder dwell, God's love seal, indelible.

Didst thou thy infant Jesus see? Didst thou, upon his knee, Fondle the child of Bethlehem— His daughter Mary's priceless gem?

Al! this we know not; yet must we Bend knee and bow most reverently Before God's heaven, and declare, Of all His fairest, thou'rt most fair.

A Man Who is Tired

All the time, owing to impoverished blood, should take Hood's Sarsaparilla to purify and enrich his blood and give him vitality and vigor.

This condition of weakness and lack of energy is a natural consequence of the coming of winter weather, which finds the system debilitated and the blood impure.

A good spring medicine is a necessity with almost everyone. Hood's Sarsaparilla is what the millions take in the spring. Its great power to purify and enrich the blood and build up health is one of the facts of common experience.

A Letter from Spain.

(Written for the Catholic Register.)

Some fourteen months ago the readers of the Catholic Register were favored with a description, however humble and unpretentious, of the immense and equally profitable and productive Spanish thread factory which the Messrs. Coates & Co., of Paisley, Scotland, had erected by the verdant banks of the Ter—in the centre of one of the most picturesque Pyrenean regions of North Catalonia, Spain.

The general weather of this year's spring, and the repose from literary labors during the Easter holidays, combined with the still greater inducement and attraction of being present at the truly imposing ceremony of the benediction of the New Catholic Church, which this truly popular and no less truly liberal company have erected and endowed for their Spanish operatives and for such of their countrymen as may be Catholics, within their own grounds, induced me to return to the scene of my former visit and renew the acquaintance then made of dear and respected friends, whose kindness and hospitality, I can neither easily forget or still adequately return.

And although I missed the kind familiar faces and cordial and courteous presence of its former director, Mr. R. Cornthwaite, I found to-day to replace him as my host and cocooner, a worthy substitute, Mr. R. Scott, who is one of the most efficient, intelligent and respected of its staff, for his popularity has won for him the esteem and respect not only of these humble persons who daily labor under his superintendence and direction, but he too has earned the friendship of no less a personage than one of the leading and revered figures, in the episcopacy of the Peninsula—His Excellency the Bishop of the diocese and Senator to its national congress—as well as that of the clergy and laity of this district. Eighteen months ago amidst scenes that inundated with torrents of gladness this mountainous district, amidst the remembrance of which the poor of the whole district can never blot out from their memory, when the directorate feasted and feted them with a banquet that left nothing to be desired, no want to be satisfied, the illustrious prelate, Dr. Morgades y Gali, solemnly blessed the foundation stone of this beautiful new church, which to-day delights the eye and gladdens the hearts of Catalans, since to-day it supplants the old, dilapidated and rudely constructed chapel and hermitage which once pictorially crowned one of the heights of those adjacent hills, that overhang the factory, and in which our sinless Mother Mary was honored and generated under the title of Our Lady of Borgona, thus adding to her long list of sanctified, high Mass, coronation, was commenced, the celebrant being the very Rev. Ramon Vila, chaplain of the sanctuary. At the Gospel, his Excellency arose in the pulpit, and taking the text from the Gospel of St. Matthew, the gifted prelate for over an hour held captive the vast audience by a sermon in the provincial dialect, in the tongue of their ancient country and sainted abbots and bishops, overflowing with a sweet convincing eloquence that is rare, with a brilliancy of description that was admirable, with the logic of facts that was unanswerable, as he treated of the great problem of the hour, the vexed perplexed thesis of the day—the "social question." He dwelt on the relation of man and master, of lord and serf, the necessity of labour in order to obtain the means of subsistence, since those days of creation's dawn when man was condemned to earn his bread by the sweat of his brow; the example of 2,000 years of torments shown by our divine Saviour himself during his hidden life of eighteen years in St. Joseph's workshop of Nazareth; in the fulfilment of this precept given to our first parents; the present division of the human family after the fall; unto those who actually labour and those who by capital contribute to its support and continuance; the absolute necessity of harmony between these great elements, in order that peace, wealth, and tranquility may flow to both. Each fully and with the lucidity of a master mind was laid clearly and concisely before the minds of the vast audience, so that the most illiterate could reflect on the prudence and wisdom which his teachings inculcated on the poor and the laborer, whilst from the rich and the affluent he sought a generous and an honest sympathy and assistance with the working man, from the employer of labour, a broad-minded charity and a kindly consideration for the employees. And when to-day he eloquently and earnestly solicited others to follow the footsteps and imitate the example so laudably furnished by British capitalists in their midst, for their liberality and Christian philanthropy. He said the greatest cordiality that existed between the employer and employed afforded a panacea for the clamorous discontent in the workshop, for the incessant strikes of the factories and factories of other districts, and which when timely applied, as it to-day within our view, visibly turns at once wells of bitterness into springs of freshness and content, and of commercial life, and thus robbing the "May day" procession, the assemblages and demonstrations of labor of their terrors and of those of well founded fears, which in the past had possessed unshaken the "hated bourgeois." His Excellency having descended from the pulpit the high Mass was proceeded with, and at its conclusion the orchestra included a "Salve" to our Immaculate Mother, followed with "Te Deum," in which the congregation joined with a joy, a happiness and a satisfaction which at once displayed the flavor of gladness that this glorious event had carried to their souls. A few days after this auspicious event His Excellency Dr. Morgades y Gali was unanimously selected as Senator to the National Congress, to take his seat in the blue benches of the House of Lords with the nobles and exalted of the land, the chosen representative of the ecclesiastical province of Taragona, a selection that at once demonstrates his popularity and fitness to be the spokesman of his native province in the highest assemblage of the nation, "Ad multos annos." Juan Pedro.

None more heartily, none more sincerely gave the welcoming "bienvenida" to the Christian philanthropy of this foreign syndicate of Messrs. Coates & Co. than His Excellency the Bishop of Vich, in whose diocese the factory is situated. When once he was convinced that they came solely to manufacture and dispose of their vast Spanish clientele their world-prized thread, and not in the smallest way to be the propagandists of a religion alien to the people, hostile to their faith, distasteful to their convictions and opposed to the customs and traditions and natural religious habits of this truly Catholic province. With this assurance, then, that their industry would never be tainted with the nauseous odor of bigotry, and that it would never be made the cloak of proselytism, or its directorate or its managerial staff become the patrons and supporters of a religious tyranny to its Spanish artisans; in fact to use the expressive words of His Excellency they at once disavowed carrying "negro garbano," or blackbean, with a view to plant it, and that ultimately it might throw out its roots, even in a hostile soil. Dr. Morgades not only laid the foundation stone, but for two years watched carefully and paternally over the progress of the works, and today (Easter Monday) had the extreme happiness of raising within its spacious aisles and beneath its lofty dome, his voice in thrilling tone and eloquent sentences as a "Te Deum" of gratitude to Almighty God and to His immaculate Mother, for the spiritual and material happiness British capital and British liberality had brought into their midst, scattering over their homesteads material benefits that years ago would scarcely be dreamt of, spiritual blessings that would be deemed visionary and unattainable, schools established for their children, an hospital for the sick, sanitary and spacious homes for themselves and for their families, and finally to crown the litany of their good and noble works, a church in the form of a Latin cross, spacious and highly ornamental, in which the Unbloody Sacrifice of Calvary will be daily offered, in which the divine prisoner of love, our Lord and our God, the eternal Son of the eternal Father will ever find a hermit home in the tabernacle of their beautiful and artistic altar, over which rises to complete its beauty a masterpiece of the artist's chisel, the exquisite statue of our Lady of Borgona. The ceremony of benediction was announced for 10 o'clock a. m., and to the minute the illustrious prelate was seen approaching. His arrival was the signal for an outburst of popular enthusiasm, which neither the solemnity of the ritual nor the sacredness of the site could suppress, so dearly loved is this patriotic prelate by rich and poor, equally by his clergy and by the laity, not alone by those scattered over the vast diocese of St. Olive, but by the entire people of his native province. The town councillors and "alcaide" of the neighboring "aldeas" of St. Vincent de Torelló, the priests of the adjacent district, together with the very Rev. Jose Wilson of the monastic church of Santa Maria de Ripoll, received him at the entrance of the church, and at once the ceremony commenced.

His Excellency, rooster in hand and mitre on head, performed personally the blessing, in order to at once prove his gratitude, not alone in concerning this district of once clamorous poverty into a region of "milk and honey," but particularly to evidence that the generous liberality of Messrs. Coates in adding spiritual blessings to the material happiness of the district found a response in Spanish hearts, and was therefore sought to be fully appreciated by him, at a value which this world cannot estimate but which eternity will reward. The presence of a congregation that not alone thronged to overflowing the new church, but even crowded along its terrace and filled its approaches with the ever-increasing vastness of its numbers, at once bespoke the local interest the ceremonies had evoked in every grade of its society, in a locality in a mountain region quiet as a sweet evening landscape, and surrounded on all sides by the poetry of nature. The ceremony being concluded, high Mass, coronation, was

Where "Atrocities" are Made. An interesting exposure of the "fake" despatches in the sensational newspapers about the withdrawal of the Americans from Havana three weeks ago is made in the Independent by a trustworthy correspondent of that journal in Washington, who had gone to Cuba expecting to spend Easter Sunday in Havana, but had to leave, with the other Americans, the evening before. It will be remembered that it was given out by the "yellows" that 2,000 Americans would be in danger if the President sent his message to Congress before giving the Consul-General time to get Americans away from Havana. As a matter of fact, there were not at the time 200 Americans in Cuba, including naturalized citizens. The Captain of the Mascotte, upon arriving at Key West a few days before Easter, on his regular trip to Havana, found a despatch from Washington ordering him to proceed at once and bring over all the "American refugees" and everybody else desiring to leave Cuba, "without regard to numbers if they could find standing-room on the steamer." All that the Captain could find ready to come when he reached Havana were seven native Americans, fifteen naturalized American citizens, and about fifty Cubans and Spaniards who were going north. When the Mascotte arrived at Key West, the Captain received orders by telegraph not to go on to Tampa as usual, but to coal at once, go back to Havana the same night, and "bring over everybody who wanted to get away from Cuba." The second "crowd of American refugees" by this vessel consisted of seventy-four passengers, all of whom were Cubans and Spaniards going north, not a single native or naturalized citizen of this country. And yet a despatch was sent from Tampa, and widely printed, that the Mascotte brought over on her first trip 920 passengers, and on the second trip "about the same number," although the steamers of the Plant Line are by no means ocean liners, and everybody in Tampa knew that neither the Mascotte nor any other steamer of the line was capable of carrying 920 passengers. As for the situation in Havana down to the very end, this writer testifies that "quiet and order prevailed in Havana and had been maintained all along, while reports to the contrary were printed far and wide in the United States," and that "while some Americans were anxious to get away, others felt no anxiety about staying another week or two, or at any rate until it was quite certain that war would be declared." —N. Y. Evening Post.

Pope Leo and Don Bosco. Don Bosco himself has furnished us with an anecdote relating to his first meeting with the present Pope when yet a Cardinal. The incident—which we transcribe as we find it in a little book published on the election of Cardinal Pecci to the throne of Peter—took place in those anxious days when the Church was weeping over the fresh grave of Pius IX. A priest—thus Don Bosco hides his personality in the pamphlet alluded to—urgently need of an audience with the Cardinal Secretary of State, was passing through the silent corridors of the Vatican (then steeped in the deepest mourning), when, on a landing on the stairs, his guide exclaimed: "This is the most eminent Camerlengo, Cardinal Pecci." The priest's eyes were lifted to the noble countenance of the Porporato, and advancing with filial affection, "Your Eminence," he said, "will permit me to kiss your hand." "And who are you that present yourself with such assuring freedom?" "I am a poor priest, who now kiss your Eminence's hand, hopefully praying that after a few days I shall be permitted to kiss your foot." "Beware of what you are about; I forbid you praying for such a thing." "You cannot prohibit my praying to God that His will be done." "If you pray for the intention you have expressed, I shall inflict on you the ecclesiastical censure." "Your Eminence has not the authority of inflicting censures yet. When you will have it, I shall not fail to respect your authority."

But who is it, may I ask, who dresses me with such assurance?" "I am [Don Bosco]." The name does not appear in the publication aforementioned. "For charity's sake," the Cardinal rejoined, "keep your lips sealed on this subject. We must think of working now and not of jesting." Before Don Bosco's audience was terminated his heart was overflowing with filial affection for the future Pontiff, and this affection, coupled with the most profound veneration, often afterwards drew him to Rome to see the Pope, hear the Pope and place himself entirely in the hands of the Pope.—Salesian Bulletin.

"THOUGHT MY HEAD WOULD BURST."

A Frederickson Lady's Terrible Suffering.

Ms. Geo. Downey tells the following remarkable story of relief from suffering and restoration to health, which should be read by all who are afflicted with nervous headache, and the pain was so intense that sometimes I was almost crazy. I really thought that my head would burst. I consulted a number of physicians, and took many remedies, but without effect. I noticed Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills advertised, and as they seemed to suit my case, I got a box and began their use. Before taking them I was very weak and debilitated, and would sometimes wake out of my sleep with a distressed, smothering feeling, and I was frequently seized with giddiness and dizziness. In this wretched condition Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills came to the rescue, and to-day I smile, with gratitude, that I am vigorous and strong, and all this improvement is due to this wonderful remedy.

MISCELLANEOUS. A man who had been up for an examination in Scripture, had failed utterly, and the relations between him and the examiner had become somewhat strained. The latter asked him if there was any text in the whole Bible he could quote. He pondered and then repeated, "And Judas went out and hanged himself." "Is there any other verse you know in the whole Bible?" the examiner asked. "Yes," "Go thou and do likewise." There was a solemn pause and the proceedings terminated.
