CHARLES HUTTON,
Fancy Department.Mrs. Tucker On The Warypath

Mrs. Tucker who has been suffering from a severe attack of influenza, learns with delight the joyful tidings that a Halifax hockey team is on its way to our city, for, she says, it is a sure sign of a good old-fashioned thaw. Mrs. Tucker can't understand why they haven't been sent for long ago. For 'twould mean a great saving of coal and minimize the hardships which poor people have to undergo who have scanty opportunities of raising nineteen shillings for a box cart of dusty mineral usually called coal.

Mrs. Tucker says the coal experts who know where to lay their forefinger on the "great deposits" in the interior must all be suffering from influenza this winter also, for although she is nearly ice-blind from scouring the papers she has failed to locate any news of there whereabouts, and although a lecture is announced for everynight in the week no one seems to have sufficient courage left to give us an hour's spasm on that ancient topic: "Coal Boring in the Interior."

Mrs. Tucker says we are a very drifty people, we hop from one thing to another with the agility of a year-old kid and never remain long enough on any one public matter to become sufficiently acquainted with it to know its name. We are always ready to tussle with a problem, but just as soon as we "get in stroke" and know a little about what we are starting out to accomplish, we suddenly drop it, forget all about it and again go forth in quest of some new trouble. Our "country-savers" lack the stick-at-it-iveness which is essential to the successful accomplishment of any great task. The common, everyday men like Tucker notices this. They have noticed it for years, and hence they show very little interest in the "big movements" trotted out now and again with a flare-up like that of a procession at the eve of an election.

Mrs. Tucker says this is regrettable, but until the leaders of still-born improvements start in and finish one of the many tasks that they seem to be playing with, we cannot expect the ordinary citizen to lose much sleep in trying to arouse the old-fashioned interest in public matters like we used to see around here in days gone by.

The "Cute Man" says 'tis no use winking out of sight the fact that at the present time the ordinary workman has little or no faith in the well-to-do when they start out to do anything, and the only way that this feeling can be changed is for the would-be philanthropists to start in and be actual philanthropists on a small scale at first. Little by little the workman will have the scales removed from his orbits, but we can't expect all the scales to drop off by the promise of wet times ahead or by mere starting out with a report that everything is going to be "lovely on the Bowerly." Up to the present our philanthropists in this country can be counted on one thumb. Unlike every other country those who get hold of the dough hang on to it till they kick the bucket. How, then, can we expect men like Tucker to tumble head over heels with excitement when we hear of men coming forward to give us improvements. You can't expect it and you won't get it in wholesale quantities until you draw the people nearer you by doing something as a start.

Mercantile Chambers, St. John'sTrial May Solve Murder Mystery

Mysteries of an Unusual Character Remain to be Solved in this case.

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 7.—Mysteries of an unusual character remain to be solved in the case of the murder of George Dietz, for whose death Mrs. Augusta Dietz, widow of the slain man, and her friend, George Nurnberg, will be placed on trial before Judge Kerston on Monday.

Dietz, fifty-nine years old, owner of a woman's tailoring establishment and reputed to be a man of wealth, was found murdered in his home, 73 Aldine Avenue, on April 14, 1911. Following the discovery of the murder a mass of bewildering facts were brought to light from day to day, some of the conjectures raised seemed almost beyond belief, so melodramatic, so out of the ordinary were they.

Skull Crushed.

The skull of the murdered man had been crushed and he is believed to have been beaten to death with a man's hammer, which was found in the room. The handle of the hammer had been wrapped with a red handkerchief looped in such a way that the murderer could keep a firm grasp in addition to the hammer a letter was found in the room indicating the revenge was the motive for the crime.

On the night of the crime, Mr. Dietz occupied a bedroom adjoining that of her husband. When questioned by the police she said the first she knew of the murder was when she went to wake her husband. The letter found in the room was unsigned, written on a typewriter of yellow paper and was ungrammatical to a degree that led the police to suspect that this feature of the crime had been planned to confuse investigators. It read, in part as follows:

"I feel like a man that do right. I'll him like we kill beast. Gerl, I'll me all when she was sick. I work hard and he is rich man. He treat my little girl. Poor gerly she's not bad she is foolish and like good clothes he gave her. He not think she tele me. These I writ if get killed young friend not done it not give name. If I get chance to I'll old pig we all saved."

The police at first worked on the theory that revenge was the motive for the crime and that either the father or the sweetheart of some girl committed the murder. Mrs. Dietz was taken into custody and questioned, but was not detained. She told the police that she knew nothing of the circumstances mentioned in the letter.

Lack of evidence of a forced entrance to the Dietz home, as well as rumors of a quarrel between Dietz and his wife and of friendly relations between Mrs. Dietz and George Nurnberg, a harness maker, first directed suspicion against the accused. The testimony before the coroner's jury, by Mrs. Dietz, Nurnberg, and Charles Hass, a private detective who revealed Fashions.

I wear the same old trusty hat I bought six years ago next May, and no one she's a brick thereat, or calls me down in any way. With tollers in the busy mart I mingle, as I always did, and hold discourses heart to heart—and no one seems to note my lid. I go to church on Sunday morn, to hear the eminent divine, and no one speaks with blighting scorn, about that good old tile of mine. I wear it always out of doors, though it is old and out of style; my credit's good at all the stores, and people greet me with a smile. But Sister Jane must buy a hat when'er new styles are advertised; if she should make refusal list, she surely would be ostracised. They'd freeze her out of all the clubs, and she would get, to her distress, the ice tongs from the lady dubs who never think of aught but dress. And so I'm glad I'm not a dame, that I can wear just what I please in ancient hats, and clothe my frame in shelf worn hand-me-downs like these, and 'still be greeted by my friends with cordial grasp and cheerful smiles; for all our dear bought freedom ends, when we are martyrs to the styles.

Dorothy, N.Y., N.Y. (Dorothy Mearns)

ed to the police the friendship of Mrs. Dietz and Nurnberg, was highly sensational.

A Suspicious Wife.

How a suspicious wife, Mrs. Nurnberg, had telephone wires tapped, intercepted letters and her husband's name, was revealed in the testimony of Hass, the private detective. The friendship between Mrs. Dietz and Nurnberg charged by Hass, was later admitted as true by Nurnberg under loose cross-questioning by the coroner. Mrs. Dietz, however, has denied the alleged relations with Nurnberg despite the testimony of detective that she had been in the habit of meeting the harness maker in a certain house on Ontario Street.

The evidence of the detectives, as said, had been revealed to Dietz by a friend, a short time before his death, and it is the general belief at the prosecution will endeavor to prove that the husband was murdered to prevent his taking action to obtain a divorce.

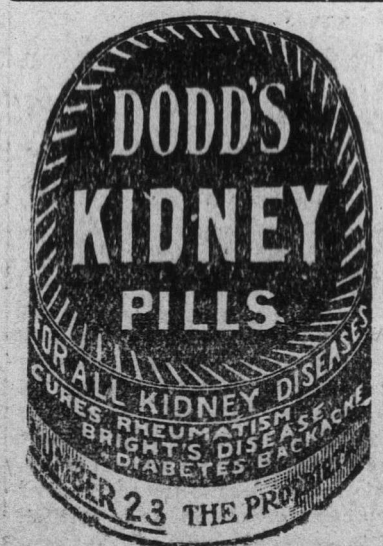

There is much speculation as to whether an effort will be made to prove that the wife was the actual slayer of her husband. Physicians who testified before the coroner's jury expressed the opinion that great strength would not be required to wield the hammer with which Dietz was killed. Mrs. Dietz is a large, powerfully built woman.

So far as is known there is no evidence to connect Nurnberg with any physical action in the murder. Mr. Nurnberg stated before the coroner's jury, and will probably give the same testimony at the trial, that she occupied the same room with her husband and throughout the night on which the murder was committed.
