

THE HIDDEN MYSTERY SOLVED!
PERPETUAL MOTION DISCOVERED AT LAST.

HEPHERNAN BROTHERS ALWAYS BUSY!

Our less energetic neighbors are unable to comprehend how we have managed to build up such a large and prosperous business. The answer is simple: We import direct from the leading manufacturers in Great Britain and the United States. We buy for cash, and are not compelled to seek the support of some wholesale establishment that will give long credit and charge heavy interest. We save a second profit and interest, the benefit of which we give our customers. This is the secret of our success—the reason why HEPHERNAN BROTHERS are always busy.

Fall & Winter Importations for 1870 & 1871

To meet the demands of our increasing trade, we have imported much heavier this season than at any former time. Our Stock is now complete. We have a finer display and a better and cheaper class of STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS than any House in the West.

Dress Goods, Shawls, new Satin Cloths (plain & figured in all the leading Shades), Empress Cloths

Crape Cloths, French Merinos, French Twills, Plain and Figured Alpacaes, Twilled Serges, New American Tycoon Repps for morning wrappers, &c.—TRIMMINGS to match every Dress. Over 1,000 Wave and Broche Shawls embracing all the novelties of Pattern and Color. Beautiful show of Breakfast Shawls, including the newest American styles. WOOLLEY GOODS—Red Flannels, Welsh and Saxony Flannels, Plain and Fancy Canadian Flannels, Heavy Farmers' Flannel, Knitted Drawers and Undershirts, Nubias, Scarfs, Knitted Sentags, Jackets, &c.

HOUSE FURNISHINGS—Velvet and Brussels Carpets, Crossley's best Tapestry Carpets, Axminster and Kidderminster Carpets, Dutch, Union and Kemp Carpets, Stair Carpets, Matting, Velvet and Tapestry Rugs, Door Mats, Crumb Cloths, &c. All-wool Curtains, Repp and Damasks, Union Damasks, Curtain Holders, Fringes, &c. Lace and Muslin Curtains, in sets and by the yard, Cotton Fringes (white and mixed colors), White Marcelline Counterpanes, Colored Quilts, Cotton and Linen Sheetings, Pillow Cottons, Canadian and English Blankets, Satin Finish Table Damasks, heavy Scotch Table Linens, Table Napkins, Antimacassars, Diaper and Huckaback Towels, Glass Towelling, Turkish Bath Towels, &c.

Domestic and Staple Goods—500 pieces Factory Cotton at 6c. per yard; 770 pieces do. at 8c. per yard; 1,490 pieces do. at 10c. per yard; 12,312 pieces do. at 12c. per yard. Somerville & Carpet Warps, 12,019 pieces Past Color Lino and Regatta Shirtings, German Check Ginghams, Cotton and Linen Tickings, Canadian Cotton Bags, Colored and White Cotton Warps, Tweeds, Cloths, &c., ever held by any Retail House in Canada. In READY-MADE CLOTHING we are prepared to suit every man and boy in the county. The Order Department is under the management of an experienced Cutter. We employ none but first-class workmen, and flatter ourselves on being able to turn out the best fitting and most stylish suit of any House in Guelph.

MILLINERY and MANTLES. OPENING of SHOW ROOMS. SATURDAY, 1st OCTOBER.

We need not particularize the novelties of this Department—the Ladies of Guelph and vicinity are fully convinced of its superiority both as regards elegance, taste and fashion. We will merely state that we have made arrangements with Mr. C. A. McELDERRY, of New York, who will enable us to procure all the new designs at least a month sooner than any other establishment. Ladies, remember our Show Rooms will be open on SATURDAY the 1st of OCTOBER.

 CHAPTER III.
FRANCIS CHARLES AND HIS FRIENDS—THE RESOLUTION BROKEN—A LOVER'S HEART BLOW.

"I will be candid with you," returned Charles. "I have come to Britain unaccompanied by French troops. Since the expedition of last year, which was frustrated by the storm, which sent back the fleet and wrecked and damaged so many of the vessels which we had barely put to sea, France has constantly delayed to fulfil her promise of aid, till I resolved to hesitate no longer, but to throw myself at once into the hands of our friends in this country, and strike a determined and decisive blow for our rights and the independence of our nation."

My Prince! my gracious Prince! faltered Lochiel in a broken voice, as on bended knee he kissed the hand which Charles extended to him.
 Charles gazed earnestly for a moment at the kneeling form, then ran his eye rapidly over the faces of the others with a glance of recognition, and reverted to his gaze towards the Chief who stood closest to him, and who held his hand.
 "It is Lochiel!" he exclaimed.
 "It is Lochiel!" he exclaimed.
 "It is Lochiel!" he exclaimed.
 "It is Lochiel!" he exclaimed.

The group now in the Royal presence could only gaze at each other in utter bewilderment, wholly at a loss to comprehend the meaning of the Prince's words and mournful mood. Of the stranger who had appeared and disappeared so unaccountably at the festival they had never heard, with the exception, of course, of Allan, who, overwhelmed by confusion at the recollection of all the circumstances, could only stand with crimson face and downcast eyes, till Charles took his hand and shook it warmly, then slapped him familiarly on the shoulder, and put him so far at his ease that he was able to raise his eyes to the Prince's face.
 "I beg your Highness's pardon a thousand times," stammered Allan.
 "My pardon! and for what?"
 "For the familiarity and freedom I used at our former interview."

"Tush, man, if the knowledge of my rank is to change you so, I shall wish you had never known me better than you did to-day. But the shyness will pass in time. I thoroughly like you, and am resolved that we shall be close friends. (gentlemen), he added, turning to the others, "I perceive you are still in amaze. I shall, therefore, relate the circumstances which made this youth and myself acquainted, and you will see that I am already a favorite with a large portion of the Clanranald."
 And forthwith the Prince, with great gaiety and animation, informed his listeners how, after they had cast anchor in the bay, the desire had come upon him to set his foot on Scottish soil and pay a visit in recognition to the scene of the festivities which he had been informed were going forward at Borradale. Attended by Sir Thomas Sheridan, one of the gentlemen who had accompanied him from France, he had landed and proceeded over the heights till he came to a knoll where he was a spectator of the scene, and where he beheld Allan stationed at a distance, a prey to feelings which the Prince was at no loss to interpret. He related how he had accosted Allan and elicited information which he had a particular interest in receiving, and how afterwards he mingled with the throng, and shared in the enjoyment till an opportunity occurred of his withdrawing without observation.

The narration given with such hearty pleasantness served to put his visitors at ease in his presence, and soon the conversation turned into a gayer channel.
 "Well, gentlemen," exclaimed the Prince at length, addressing himself more particularly to Lochiel and Clanranald, "I have come from France to endeavor to win the throne of my father from the possession of the usurper. I need not say that I look for the aid of all the loyal friends of our House, and my special dependence is on the brave Highlanders, who have ever shown themselves devoted to our cause. Chief among these is my confidence placed in Lochiel and Clanranald, and proud am I to find them the first to meet and welcome me."
 "Your Highness," responded Lochiel, "does not overrate our zeal and loyalty. Both Clanranald and myself, with other Highlanders, are ready to run every risk and make every sacrifice in any hopeful attempt to secure for His Majesty his rightful inheritance. But your Highness will pardon me when I say that without aid from France we do not think success is possible."

"I will be candid with you," returned Charles. "I have come to Britain unaccompanied by French troops. Since the expedition of last year, which was frustrated by the storm, which sent back the fleet and wrecked and damaged so many of the vessels which we had barely put to sea, France has constantly delayed to fulfil her promise of aid, till I resolved to hesitate no longer, but to throw myself at once into the hands of our friends in this country, and strike a determined and decisive blow for our rights and the independence of our nation."

FALL & WINTER TRADE.

We have pleasure in announcing to the Trade of Guelph and Merchants in the County of Wellington and its vicinity that we have added to our already large business a WHOLESALE DEPARTMENT. We have bought largely in the best manufacturing districts of England and Scotland, and at a time when goods had fallen to their very lowest point (through the war). We bought all of our stock for ready money, thus placing ourselves in the best possible position. We are determined to sell all classes of Goods at the lowest Montreal Wholesale Prices, which we trust will be an inducement to our Western friends to give a preference to our efforts.
 Our stock in every department is complete. Soliciting the pleasure of a call, We are, yours truly,

IT IS ADMITTED THAT A WELL-FITTING PAIR OF SPECTACLES
 Is one of the great blessings which modern science has conferred upon those needing optical aid; hence more and more perfect should be used, as by that means frequent changes and the fatigue which the wearer of the ordinary spectacles experiences is avoided; the least costly are those which are found to be the best.
 Mr. D. SAVAGE claims to have for sale the most perfect Spectacles and Eye-Glasses in the world, viz: The Concentrated Perfected Spectacles, manufactured by combining in their structure the same of transparency with the greatest accuracy of focus, and are mounted in the most durable and finest finished frames, in Gold, Silver, Steel and Steel; every pair is fitted on optical rules, and thus the eyes are enabled to fix these famous Spectacles and Eye-Glasses also by correspondence.

 Every pair sold by the agent is warranted from one to five years.
