Auction Sale of London's Finest Office Building

There will be offered for sale by public auction on the premises, on Monday, the 18th day of October, 1933, at 2:30 p.m., the property known as the Dominion Savings Building, which may be legally described as part lot 11, on the north side of King Street, London, having a frontage on Richmond Street of 142' 3" more or less, a frontage on King Street of 110' more or less, and running back to the Market Square. On this property, situated in the heart of the city, is erected a four-story office building with basement, comparatively new and a modern structure. The ground floor is divided into eight stores and offices fronting on Richmond Street. The second, third and fourth floors are divided into offices and are well lighted and contains a good steam heating plant and elevator equipment.
It is said to be the finest office building in Western Ontario, and is in excellent condition throughout.

Viewed from the standpoint of an investment, the proposition would appear to be excellent.

Particulars of the rent roll and other information may be had on application to the undersigned.

Terms of sale 10% on the day of sale, sufficient to make 25% within thirty days, and the balance in sixty days. Other conditions will be made known at the time of sale.

are to press for legislation for the protection of labor through the international labor offices in Geneva.

The Federation was conducting a big "no war" campaign, which was bearing fruit. When Poland prepared to make war on Russia, affiliated members were asked to refuse to handle munitions for Poland, and war was prevented. When the monarchists in Germany attempted a coup, a general strike had spoiled their plot in a few days.

is Patriotic.

Trades unionism was contributing a great deal to the national well-being.
True patriotism was not mere hatred of the alien nor mere flag waving. It consisted in each citizen taking an interest in the welfare of the community.

The labor movement was based on brotherhood, and the most extraordinary fact in later years was the increasing support to the movement not only by intellectuals, such as Wells and Shaw, but by various Christian denominations. "If you accept the fatherhood of God, you accept, as a natural corollary, the brotherhood of man," he declared.
