AND ALL THE BOOTFUL STATES

The electoral machinery is the latitudinal given to the legislature in regulating the manner of choosing Presidential electors. What seems necessary is an amendment to the constitution providing that the people have the power to vote directly for President and Vice-President, each state to be entitled to as many votes as it casts under the system now in vogue. A provision that no more than a plurality of State Presidential votes should be required for a choice would avert the contingency of an election by the House of Representatives in such a contingency the vote is taken by States as represented in all of the States being required and each State having one vote, which must be cast by a majority of the delegation (if consisting of more than one member) or cannot be cast at all. Such a contingency has arisen but twice—in 1801 and 1825.

Returns showing how the candidates will stand in the Electoral College. If the results are as indicated in the appended table of the Electoral College will be cast as follows:

THE MAJORITIES. Cleveland has New York by 45,000 majority. New York, Nov. 8. Private advices received from Governor Hill at Albany to the effect that in his judgment the Republicans will come down to the Hamilton vote of 86,000 majority. Cleveland meets them there with 110,000 majority, including New York Kings and adjacent counties, thus making Cleveland's majority at least 45,000. Chairman Harrity of the Democratic National Committee issued a statement in which he says: "There is no doubt of the election of Cleveland by the popular vote of the United States. The result of the New York City vote gives Cleveland 174,885, Harrison 98,760; Cleveland's majority, 76,125."

WHERE THE POPULISTS WERE. Weaver carries Kansas, Nevada, Colorado and Nebraska. The surprise of the campaign has been the strength of the Populist or People's Candidate, General Weaver. Nevada was conceded to Weaver, but it was not thought that the "fusion" between the Democrats and the Populists, which was attempted by the leaders in Minnesota, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, Oregon and Nevada, would result in much. The returns, however, show that in three of these states the Populist candidate has captured the electoral vote. Two of the states, Kansas and Nebraska, were among the doubtful, but Colorado was always gone Republican heretofore. CLEVELAND WILL GET THERE. Even if he has to be chosen by the House of Representatives. While it is practically certain that Cleveland will have the necessary 223 electoral votes to give him the election by the people's vote, it is also conceded that his election is assured by the choice of President being thrown into the House of Representatives, which has a large Democratic majority.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 9 1892.

Cleveland without a doubt. Indications here point in that direction, but nothing definite is known. Under the new election law no official returns will be given before tomorrow. The Republicans claim the election of Davis for governor. THE PRESS SAYS. Opinion of Whitaker's Paper—Other...
