THE LARGE 103, YONGESTREET

Daily the tideage are brought from afar Of the noise, the confesson, the havoc of war; And the topics now heard in the periour and street Are the strength of the army and force of the fleet.

But Britain decides, and decides not in vain-That she shall the peace of the Nations maintain, That while Nicholas thunders, or his camone roat, Her standard shall float o'er each threatened shore.

And the tn-colored flag and the ensign are joined, Their armies united, and their fleets are combined; And the sons of each nation in this awful strife Are determined to conquer or forfest their life.

Yet tho' the war rage the thing is quite clear, You must have new clothes at this time of the year Nor would it be prudent or wise to delay In making your purchase much later than May.

Now, PEARSON has studied as statements below In reference to fabrics and prices will show— By securing the products of various climes. To make large provisions for these wonderful times.
