Homestead Inspector Watson has been active in collecting the farm specimens, and the entire exhibit is of great educational value, and reflects credit on W. D. CHURCH COUNSELS CONCILIATION.

Archbishop Bruchesi, in Pastoral Letter, Discusses Difficulties Between Capital and Labor.

"The church desires that your strength, your aptitudes and your talents be not abused. She condemns labor that is too severe and too prolonged, which would be harmful to your health. She commands that you be treated like a free intelligent being; that your salary be just, proportioned to your work and, as much as possible, equal to the legitimate needs of your family.

JARVIS STREET PAVEMENT

Editor World: Wnat is the matter Editor World: What is the matter with the contract for re-asphalting Jarvis-street? Work has been at a standstill for a couple of weeks, and the street presents a very unsightly appearance. It seems too bad that work should have been suspended, especially with the exhibition at hand, and so many critical visitors about to and so many critical visitors about to

Resident of Jarvis-street. A RICK AT THE CUSTOMS.

Editor World: Can nothing be done to introduce some system in the way business is conducted at the Custom House on the Esplanade? This is a long standing grivance with business men in Toronto, and one of the worst to be encountered in the course of a month's business. Indeed I know of no more business. Indeed I know of no more exasperating experience than to have to do business there. There is not the slightest attempt to handle the people in order as they come in, a condition that could be paralleled only in Bob-caygeon or Coboconk. Indeed I will take that back as neither of these places would be guilty of such a chaotic state of affeirs. By those not familiar with of affairs. By those not familiar with this place, it will scarcely be credited but there is no rail or other method of handling the people in order, and the man who is first served is the man who absolutely no value to most of the em-ployes, tho it is generally very valuable to the business man who has to do business there. It is a question, too, how one or two of these men got there, not being any too bright metally. Seriously speaking tho, it is a question if more than one or two of the staff could hold their jobs on their merits, tuberculosis is preventable and curable. Since tuberculosis is more a social than a medical problem the entire community is interested.
