HILLS PROPOSALS.

(By Associated Press.) LONDON, Dec. 2.—At the Canada Club banquet to-night, Lord Strathcona referred to the suggestion made by James J. Hill, to the New York Chamber of Commerce of free trade with Canada. He said that Canadians were not yet United States citizens, and he did not believe that they would receive such proposals with favor.

Continuing, Lord Strathcona said that while he hoped the mother country would consider the whole matter very carefully, he trusted that the Dominion would never have free trade with the United States unless it had free trade with the mother country.

The British postmaster-general, Sydney C. Buxton, in the course of his speech, made reference to the question of cable rates. He favored a practical reduction in the rates, but any scheme to be acceptable must be on a business basis.

POWER OF MONEY.

No Nation Can Go to War Without French Sanction. ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 2.—James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern Railway, and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, secretary of the League of Nations, were the principal speakers at the annual dinner of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce to-night.

Mr. Hill's address was principally on the value of intelligent cultivation of the soil. He referred to the power of the French bankers, who, with the savings of the men of the soil in Europe could go to war unless by their sanction.

Mr. Butler, in speaking at Allegany, N. Y., last night, said that the difference between Germany and France had been settled. What happened, why, the French bankers said they would not say, but the Germans were not able to meet them. That is the inside of how that matter was settled.

BOOK AGENT WINS OUT.

Purchaser of Set of Volumes Claimed Misrepresentation Was Used. Judgment was given for the plaintiff in the county court yesterday before Judge G. E. H. Sutherland, trading under the name of Virtue & Co., to recover $405 from J. H. Gray of St. Catharines, who had sold a set of Scott's novels, consisting of 54 volumes, on payment of $20 monthly. Gray had refused to take the books after signing the contract, claiming that his signature was obtained under fraudulent representations. He said that Dina, an agent for the Boston firm, had published and had him buy the books for him, promising to protect Gray in every way. When the first payment fell due, however, Gray could not find Dina. His honor maintained it was a matter between Gray and Dina and that there was nothing to indicate fraud on the part of the plaintiff.

CONTENT CAPITAL STOCK WAS LESS THAN STATED

Plaintiff Firm in Winnipeg Fruit Syndicate Litigation Says Figures Misled.

In the action of the Winnipeg fruit and grocery firm of Foley, Locke & Larson against the Distributors' Company, which was resumed yesterday before Justice Magee in the non-jury court, the evidence showed that the Toronto business of Hubbard & Co., the owner of the business was permitted to be his own, and that he placed the goodwill at $50,000.

The contest of yesterday was whether the paid-up capital stock was $24,000 or $125,000, as the claim of the Distributors' Company falsely placed the capital at the latter amount. They also claim that the goodwill was $15,000 worth of stock unowned to the firm, and asks to have it upset.

Hubbald, formerly an officer of the defunct Distributors' Company, admitted that there was not enough money to pay carpenter of Winnipeg for his work, the evidence showed that the transactions became an endless chain, in which the money each man put into the business was used to make a payment on behalf of the company in the purchase of another fruit or produce business.

J. U. P. Carpenter, president of the company and one of the defendants in the suit, said he received $15,000 in cash, his business and $30,000 in stock. According to preliminary statement, he was to receive $50,000, but in later agreement he had heavy debt and that he did not disclose this fact to Locke.

Argument in the case will be heard to-day.

CHIEF MALONE'S ALIBI NOT IN LYNNWOOD PARK

If He Shot Constable Wilkins, He Had Time to Reload Revolver.

SIMCOE, Dec. 2.—(Special.)—Constable Wilkins, who was murderously attacked in Lynnwood Park early Tuesday morning, is holding his own and chief Maloney, who is attending him, said to-night that he would likely recover. There is the ranger, however, that blood poisoning may set in.

At 10 p.m. the wounded man was reported "doing nicely," and there are hopes of his recovery.

There is no bullet in his brain. The first shot, according to Dr. Stanton's report, entered beside the left eye, destroying the sight and traveled down the neck, where it could not be located. None of the bullets have been located.

Malone's hearing takes place Saturday. So far as can be ascertained, no bill has been asked for.

Interviewed in jail, he persisted he did not shoot Wilkins; Wilkins and he were good friends, he protested, and he always been such.

His defence will evidently take the form of an alibi. He says he was at home at 1 o'clock, when the shooting is supposed to have taken place; but refused to discuss his defence tactics further, in accordance with the advice of his counsel.

T. R. Slaght, crown attorney, has communicated with the attorney-general's department as to the advisability of despatching a special officer to investigate the whole case. On the existing facts beyond the statement of Wilkins, the crown has no evidence to support a charge of murder.

PEMBROKE FIRE INQUEST.

Witness Tells of Attending Supper in National Coal Works. PEMBROKE, Dec. 2.—(Special.)—A little stir was caused to-night at the inquest before Coroner G. E. Joseph into the Pembroke fire of Nov. 4, when Andrew Bulmer, Victoria Steamer Company, told of taking part in a mid-night supper in the National Manufacturing Company works, where his bias seems to have started. The witness, however, said it happened in the company of a party of town companions, and there was no drinking or negligence that would cause a fire.

Evidence was given showing that many fires had occurred in the works of the National Manufacturing Company in the past few years. Alex. Bow, manager of the new Ottawa branch of the works, who acted as superintendent one year at Pembroke, testified that the National Company plant was surpassed for up-to-date fire protection and modern equipment only by the Canada Foundry Company in Toronto. Two fires occurred in his time at the National.

Michael Lafontaine, the last watchman who acted from Sept. 22 to Oct. 2, extinguished four fires, but reported none of them to the management. Witnesses summoned by J. Travers Lewis, K.C., Ottawa, who testified that the fire started in the National Manufacturing Company's plant, but under cross examination by Gleason De laisne, secretary and solicitor of the company, they admitted they had not surveyed the whole of the Wright factory, where the National Company think the fire may have started.

The conviction, however, of Richard McGuigan, charged in the police court with stealing a quantity of sod from the city property, near Ashbridge's Bay, was quashed on the ground that McGuigan's plea of guilty was to be the teamster but not of stealing the sod.
