That the greatest Canadians are not those who are born in Canada, but those who come across the sea, bringing their families with in being born outside of Ontario was demonstrated by the speaker when he stated that it gives a chance for historical background and taking his audience with him to the bank of the Thames, pointed out to them the remains of Druid stones, the spot where the first great fight for the possession of England took place; the Carmelite priory, built 700 years ago, the cathe-dral to which the Canterbury pilgrims traveled in the days of Chaucer, the resort of the first organizers of the U.F.O., the place where charters were framed, and other items that went into the making of history. Coming back to the present, Mr. Hawkes said it was better to know the things done by your ancestors in a new country than to talk about what had been done by others five hundred years ago. There are great things to read about that were done in Canada. No fight was ever more pregnant than that made by Lyon Mackenzie in this coun-try, said the speaker, who also referred to the fight made by Joseph Howe in Nova Scotia. People in Canada should have the same devotion to their coun-try as the English have to England, the Scotch to Scotland, and everyone to the place of his birth. What would anyone think, of the man who said that any other had the first place in his heart? While we look back with affec-tion to the place where lie the bones of those we knew and who have gone before yet we can say that we'll help to make Canada the great place it de-serves to be, vaid Mr. Hawkes. Cake bakers, at a largely attended meet-ing, held Wednesday night at S.O.E. A general meeting of all the bakers under the Can-adian Federation of Labor will be held on Saturday night to take up many mat-ters of extreme importance.
