WE HAVE CROSSED the dividing line between Summer and Autumn. To be sure it's a broad line and it's hard to tell just the precise point where one season begins and the other ends. The 21st of September is where the calendar puts it, but to the majority of folks summer's ended when the first frost touches the maples.

So we say that autumn is here, for already the first maples have turned, and to-morrow is a great day of autumn bargains. The season for autumn shopping is open. We are all ready. Start to-morrow with this auspicious bargain programme which is thoroughly in accord with the spirit, energy and preparation in the air.
