

TALK OF BOUT,
M'TIGUE AND JOHNNY WILSON

New York, Jan. 24. — (Canadian Press) — An announcement by Joe Jacobs, manager of Mike McTigue, middleweight champion of Canada, declares that arrangements are being made for a bout between Johnny Wilson, middleweight champion of the world, and the Canadian champion, to take place in Montreal on March 17. Tom Duggan, Montreal promoter, is declared by Jacobs to have the bout in hand. According to Jacobs, Duggan proposes to put on the battle at the Mount Royal Arena on St. Patrick's Day. The price, it is declared, will be from $3 to $25 a seat, which Jacobs says will yield approximately $150,000. The announcement adds:

"It is the intention of McTigue to accept a large percentage of gross receipts and to guarantee Wilson $50,000 for defending the crown against him." Local sporting writers cast doubt upon the possibility of arranging the bout. One calls it "Joe Jacobs' dream," but says: "This announcement, if any seriousness can be attached to it, is the best news of the day. Mike McTigue is likely to do that which Wilson knew Harry Greb would certainly do if he mixed with him in the proposed and much discussed bout at Madison Square Garden, which is a way of intimating that Mike would relieve Johnny of his singularly troublesome title."

Montreal, Jan. 24. — Sport promoters in Montreal announced this morning that there is very little chance of McTigue and Wilson fighting here. McTigue is in bad odor with Chief of Police Belanger, head of the local boxing commission, for failing to keep an engagement here to fight Jeff Smith.

PLAN ADDITION TO ROYAL MUSEUM

(Toronto Mail and Empire). The provincial government is considering the building of an addition to the Royal Ontario Museum, on Bloor street, at an estimated cost of between $500,000 and $800,000. Sir Edmund Walker, chairman of the board of governors, and Professor C. T. Curran, curator, and director of the Archeological department of the Museum, waited on Premier Drury yesterday afternoon in point out the pressing need of an addition to the present structure. They asked that work be commenced as soon as possible, the premier, although non-committal, stated that the government would give the project its earnest consideration. It is understood that the government is thinking of the proposed construction in relation to museum exhibits. The plan presented to the government calls for the erection of a wing running east along Bloor street from the north end of the existing building. "We have literally tons and tons of unopened exhibits lying in the basement because we have no place to put them up," stated Sir Edmund Walker last night. Sir Edmund pointed out that the Museum at the present time was exhibiting three times as much material as should be shown in the space available. The Museum was a provincial asset, and invaluable to the general public from the educational standpoint. It also occupied a large place in the development of the arts and crafts. ROAD LEADING TO NORMALITY LONG BUT SURE

Expert Preaches Doctrine of Caution and Faith to Builders.

High Tariff Obstacle — Predicts Trade Fluctuations in North America by Light of History.

(Staff Correspondence of Toronto Globe)

Hamilton, Jan. 18. — Through the medium of one of his experts, Roger Babson, the analyst of trade and commerce, who takes facts and figures and puts them to the acid test, points the way of progress from this wilderness of doubt and uncertainty. In a word, he commends to Canadian business men the eternal fact of history — that trade has ever moved and had its being in cycles. Hot on the heels of inordinate prosperity has inevitably followed decline, unrest, uncertainty, a depression, depression and stagnation. This has, in turn, been followed by alternating periods of temporary recovery, but these were only seasonal; they gave way to the inescapable downward trend of things until a normal basis was reached. Sometimes the process was spasmodic and unbalanced. Usually, however, it was a gradual operation, consuming years of time. Business improved, but prices continued to decline until a normal basis was reached. It was the unflinching law of action and reaction. Such was the story history gave.

Recovery Slow, But To Canadian business men, therefore, Mr. Babson's message is this: "The worst of the slump is over there is no doubt of that. The process of recovery will be slow and gradual for perhaps 10 or 15 years; you must be prepared to work out your own industrial salvation, with the price of commodities steadily falling until a pre-war level is reached. Depression will not last a great while longer, but prices must continue to fall for many years." Herbert N. McGill, commodity statistician for Mr. Babson, outlined his chief views to delegates to the Association of Canadian Building and Construction Industries at their fourth annual convention in the Royal Connaught Hotel today.

Babson's Cycle.

He quoted Mr. Babson's business cycle, which stressed 12 points, and showed the moonlight of peak prosperity, reaction and recovery. Peak prosperity means large profits, inefficiency and declining bond prices. There follows the slump, with its attendant crime wave and decline of commodity prices and confidence and general unemployment, the breaking up of consolidated homes by economic pressure, and declining real estate values. Recovery means lower money rates, general efficiency and increasing land values, improved stock and steady stock market, religious revivals and increasing commodity prices, activity in property and declining bond prices. Babson's cycle, which is a great trouble, follows the slump, with its attendant crime wave and decline of commodity prices and confidence and general unemployment, the breaking up of consolidated homes by economic pressure, and declining real estate values. Building Materials Down.

It was interesting to observe, he said, that the price of building materials had declined 40 per cent from the peak, while labor had declined only 10 per cent. Most other commodities, however, had shown a drop of 60 per cent from the peak. The cost of industrial construction was only 68 per cent over pre-war days, while the cost of residential construction was 100 per cent over pre-war levels. The great regret was that these latter conditions would tend to stabilize industry. It was an active programme of house building. "I have tried not to be pessimistic, nor unduly optimistic. The message I leave with you is to be cautious, have faith in your country and your industry. Be prepared to accept declining prices for your commodities for some years to come. Forget the fat days that were. Work harder for smaller profits. If we will all do that, the long, gradual ascent back to normal days will be far less arduous than if it is attempted by any short-cut," concluded Mr. McGill.

Hundreds of the clergy ranking from a cardinal prince and papal delegate, to the junior religious and a throng of laymen gathered in the Basilica.
