

COL. DOMVILLE ON THE CLONDYKE

Address on New Gold Fields at Cannon Street Hotel, London, by Col. Domville.

Difficulties of Access and Residence Not Greater Than Canadians Have Often Overcome.

(From the Financial Times, Aug. 1.)

At the Cannon street Hotel yesterday afternoon Colonel Domville, a member of the Canadian Dominion parliament, gave an address on the Clondyke, Yukon and Stewart gold fields. The chair was occupied by Mr. Edward J. Howell.

The chairman, in introducing Colonel Domville, said he had been invited by various friends to give them some particulars of the Clondyke gold fields. It had been his pleasure to know Colonel Domville in Canada, and he could assure them that no one was better able to give the information than himself.

THE BEST ROUTE TO THE FIELD

To-day, by a short cut of some thirty-six miles from what is known as Lynn Canal, the headwaters of the Yukon are reached. Now, planning men and their supplies in the Yukon, and thence transporting them down the river to the gold fields, means the thorough organization of a force which in itself must be self-dependent.

rush into that country, and will be fully equipped for the year to follow. It must be borne in mind that individual explorers, while they may have gold, will in many instances be without food, and as gold cannot be eaten, they will gladly exchange it for the necessaries of life.

THE PIONEER PARTY

will look to other points—pegging out claims, buying points, trading generally, establishing trading posts, as far as in their power lies, throughout Yukon district. The success of such an expedition must largely depend upon the means at its disposal, and the men employed to carry it out; that might be disastrous on one occasion might be eminently successful on another.

It struck dead in the dirt. I caught sight of bright yellow color of pure gold. "Excited" said Napier, inter-ly. "I cannot describe to you what I was, especially when you said I was last got free. I was all right, and I saw a solid, pure gold. It was two inches long, by ten inches wide and 1 1/2 to 3/4 inches thick. It weighed 146 pounds four ounces pennyweights, and was actually the largest and finest nugget of pure gold ever found anywhere in the world or two others were found that as much, but they were not pure gold."

"You knew that it was a value" I enquired in a speculative tone. "Certainly I knew that it was, and the very knowledge was enormously valuable made that some one would discover it had found and seek to rob us. I thought we did to cover it off some dirt, and then we set down how we could get it out so as to have no knowledge of it. We did as we passed the hole we ourselves into a great state of how could we get that nugget out some one seeing it? Had unearthed a fortune to find our piece of looting it."

"At last we hit upon a plan," said Napier. "We remember we had loaned a tub to a tolling man. We would go down and get the tub on a wheel and as we passed the hole we would lay, we would place it tub. We arranged the whole carefully. We were to take it wheeling, and if anyone spoke to us to stop and talk to him, we
