IN COMMONS YESTERDAY

At Ottawa yesterday the Commons succeeded in clearing off a fair number of items on the order paper. A Liberal caucus will be held this afternoon to discuss the situation with regard to the election bill with particular reference to the condition of the new lists as prepared this month in Manitoba. At the afternoon session yesterday the third reading to the government bill to place the Yukon council on an elective basis, was given, and a bill to give the immigration branch authority to deport Chinese who have entered Canada contrary to law, was reported.

Hon. Mr. Templeman moved the second reading of the act respecting proprietary and patent medicines and said there was a public agitation in favor of some such legislation. He proposed that after the bill was read a second time it be referred to a small committee of the House before whom the interests involved would be heard. The bill, among other things proposed the suppression of cocaine and prohibited the excessive use of alcohol as a drug, and provided that where a manufacturer of patent or proprietary medicine put on the label the formula of the medicine it would not come under the act, and also that if any of the noxious medicines mentioned in a schedule to the bill were used they would have to be named to the label.

The bill was referred to a committee consisting of Hon. Mr. Templeman, Mr. McIntyre, of Perth, Dr. Sproule, Bland and Chisholm, Huron.

Hon. Mr. Fisher's bill to amend the sales act was taken up, and with some alterations was reported.

The House at 8 o'clock went into committee on agricultural estimates, and Mr. Fisher explained that Canada was expending $200,000 at the Anglo-Franco Exhibition and would expend $35,000 at the Scottish National Exhibition.

MOTHER SLAYS SIX CHILDREN AND HER HUSBAND, ENDS LIFE

Chloroforms Her Victims, Then Shoots Each in Head—Parent of Murderess Makes Tragical Discovery When Calling at House

CADILLAC, Mich., June 13.—Temporarily insane, Mrs. Daniel Cooper last night killed her husband and her six children and then ended the tragedy by putting a bullet through her own brain.

Developments indicate that the crazed mother first chloroformed the members of the family before shooting them. There was no sign of a struggle in any instance. Neither was there any marks which indicate that the woman stood some distance away in firing the shots. A four-ounce chloroform bottle was found in one of the rooms.

One shot sufficed in each case, the aim of the wife and mother being true. These are the dead: Daniel Cooper, 48 years old; Mrs. Cooper, 42 years old; Fred, 17; Harry, 14; Inez, 11; Samuel, 10; Georgiana, 5; Florence, a baby.

Mrs. A. Kealy, the mother of Mrs. Cooper discovered the terrible tragedy this morning.

As was her custom, Mrs. Kealy made an early call on her daughter today.

All doors were locked and there was no sign of activity about the house. Summoning neighbors, a window was torn out, and Mrs. Kealy was the first to enter.

In the first room lay the lifeless bodies of two children. Blood, still warm, reddened the parlor carpet.

Crying to her friends to come to her, Mrs. Kealy continued the tragic inspection.

Every room brought to view another body. Some were found in beds, while the investigators stumbled over others lying on the floor.

The body of Mrs. Cooper lay across that of Florence, the baby.

Nearby was a revolver, with every chamber empty.

Mrs. Cooper was once confined in an asylum for the insane. Of late she has been brooding because her husband was out of work.

"Only a few days ago she said she would end it all."

Until a short time before he died, Fred Cooper, the only one alive, insisted that he was all right except for a hard cold and the measles.

Just as he was about to pass away, however, he said, "mother did it."

It has also developed that the woman has been mentally unsound ever since the birth of her youngest child, 18 months ago. She was sane at intervals, and during her lucid moments brooded over her mental condition.

She frequently cursed the baby, even in the presence of her pastor, Dr. Johnston, of the Presbyterian church here.

Dr. Johnston had expressed the fear of such a tragedy as that of today.

Mrs. Cooper apparently had premeditated the wholesale killing. Last night she made a festive occasion. She took all her children to a theatre.

She bargained with the girl ticket seller to admit the entire family for 50 cents. She said she would do so, but that it should not be considered as a precedent.

"You will never need to again," she said.

Mrs. Cooper, "because none of us will ever come here after tonight."

She treated the children to candy and peanuts, and they marched up and down the streets after the show, all in a happy mood and with Mrs. Cooper appearing especially cheerful.

Then they went home, and the killing evidently followed shortly afterward.

Leighton McCarthy was elected to the House of Commons at a by-election in Simcoe county, Ont., Dec. 14, 1898, and re-elected at the general elections of 1900 and 1904. He has been president of the Osgoode Legal and Literary Society.

LIFE ON A TORPEDO BOAT DESTROYER

Cramped and Uncomfortable, But Men Like Work Because of All Risks and Rewards

"A dog's life." That is the way the naval officer of years and experience describes existence in a torpedo boat destroyer.

The work is hard; the food often atrocious when the vessel is at sea, for the simple reason that in anything like rough weather it is impossible to cook or eat a meal in any comfort; the motion is harassing and violent—so harassing and violent that it used some years ago to be a favorite pastime in torpedo vessels whenever they put to sea to arrange a swopstake in the little wardroom, the prize going to the officer who drew the name of the last victim to succumb.

The space below deck is cramped and confined, intensely hot in summer, bitterly cold in winter, for the plates of the vessel are of the thinnest and conduct the heat or cold to perfection. All weight is cut down to the utmost, and when the enormously powerful engines are running at top speed the vibration is consequently most trying.

In blockade it is their duty to close in at night upon the hostile port, facing the danger of floating mines, which again and again damaged the Japanese destroyers off Port Arthur. At sea the crew may have to attack the enemy's battleships.

The crew numbers some sixty officers and men, the officers being a lieutenant, a sub-lieutenant, a gunner and an engineer-lieutenant. There is no doctor for the simple reason that there is no room for him.

The officers are berthed aft in tiny cubicles opening out of a little wardroom, or in the wardroom, where they try to eat and sleep when off duty. But their number is so small that they are almost continuously at work, and hence, owing to the speedy exhaustion of her crew, a destroyer cannot long keep the sea.

IN THE STOKESHOLD.
The seamen are berthed forward and aft.

Brandon, but her brother takes it upon himself to choose her husband, and he presents to her the Duke of Buckingham. Brandon and Buckingham quarrel and the latter is killed. Princess Mary and her lover then elope. Fire, Fire, one of the most remarkable pictures ever produced, showing the fire department of a large city rushing to a fire. Emperor Nero on the "War-path," this excellent picture will delight all full of good, bright comedy, do not miss it. Hear Mr. Wm. Lanyon sing, "At The Old Cross Roads."

Robert Butler will be heard in that beautiful song "A Little Boy Called Taps."

Under the Sea With Divers—The Nickel

The Nickel came to the front again yesterday with a show that was worth a quarter. The particular novelty was the photograph of the local militia and boys' companies as they appeared going down King street in Sunday's rags. As the slides were thrown upon the canvas the favorites received much applause. A startling bit of realism was introduced in the motion picture Down in a Submarine Boat, which showed the French submarine craft on the surface and under water. The thrilling drama enacted under the sea and the efforts of the divers to rescue the imprisoned heroes were spell-binding.

A gorgeous spectacle entitled Peace was a fitting conclusion to this drama of self-sacrifice for duty's sake. The pictures, The Little Match Girl, Sacrifice for Work, and A Lucky Accident, were new and entertaining. Mr. Cairns was well received in the new song By the Old Oaken Bucket, Louise, and Miss Wren sang Trading Smiles very prettily. Same show today with Teddy Bears extra for the afternoon kiddies.

Happy Half Hour

"They are getting better all the time" was the remark made by a patron of the Happy Half Hour last evening, his remark applying to the show now running. The pictures are all new.

A Night of Terror is a melodramatic picture, telling a strong and consistent story, and one that the audience enjoyed. It is a brand new picture, having only been published May 29th. A Trip Through Spain carries the spectator through Seville, Madrid, Granada, Barcelona and Cordoba, showing many beautiful gardens, castles and works of art for which Spain is noted.

A Bad Tempered Jester, and A Strong Man's Discretion, provide plenty of laughs for those who like comedy. Prof. Titus was heard to excellent advantage in Sweetheart, and Harry LeRoy made a hit with Diner In The Deep Let Me Sleep When I Die. From now on the scores of the ball games of the local leagues will be given each evening.

When Knighthood Was in Flower

This subject as a whole is one of the most beautifully staged and costumed productions ever made. This is a story of the 16th century and the plot is laid in the reign of Henry VII. He laid his household with absolute despatch. His sister, Princess Mary, is in love with a poor knight, named
