How a Man Up Against 5.000 of Them Saved

Five thousand volts of electricity were hurled into E. I. Price an electrician at the Edison Company plant yesterday, and he walked over 10 the City Hospital to tell em about it. I proved to be the tallest thing in the line of a story of that kind the doctors had ever heard.

A very few hundred of those things volts of electricity-kill a person, remarked one of the doctors, eying the electrician ask-

Just so, said the electrician, but always put in providing a circuit be formed.

You say 5,000 volts of the stuff entered your body? inquired another one. grzing at the man in wonder.

Yes sir, Price replied; 5,000 volts registered. Didn't it do anything at all to you? asked a physician. Nothing but this, replied Price, and holding up his left hand he showed the two middle fingers split a little at the tips.

Toat's all except kind of a queer teelings in my breast, as it somebody nit me there. but not very hard. When my fingers touch ed the 5,000 volt wire I knew enough not to try and put the wire away from 'em with my other hand. It I had ot, course, my life would have been snuffed out quicker's a match in a gale. But at that I might have done so, for the shock as it was was enough to make the oldest hand at the business forget for the instant all he knew. It's the old question of keeping your presence of mind, no matter what happens. Let a person one part of whose body come in contact with a live wire of whatever strength keep presence of mind enough his body, like the other hand or a toot or any other part of his body, and he will most generally get away alive. This of course, is providing there's somebody else around or within call to come and knock the wire away with a club.

And the rescuer, under such circum stances, should not try to push the wire away, for this may cause him to get fasten, ed to it himselt. It should always be knocked away with a blow, any kind of a blow. This gives only instantaneous contact, and the momentum of the blow, sends the wire away from the club the next Schley's Courtmartial.

This is the silly season. The public knows it, and hence should not be deceived by much of the silly twaddle that is being sent out from Washington, in anticipation of the Schley court martial. If all of that stuff were to be taken seriously. it might be imagined that the trial was to determine the right of Schley or Sampson to stay in the U.S. navy; that the defence had brought about the trial for the purofficers 'squirm' and ot holding them up to public obloquy; and that either Schley must be shown to be a dastard and a craven or else that he must prove that there has been a deep and dark plot to drive him out of the navy by intamous and abuminable methods of conspiracy.

In view of all this talk, it may be timely to say that the purpose of the coming courtmartial is merely to determine whether Schley did or did not perform his duties in the late war in a satisfactory manner. It is not the province of the court to say to whom most of the credit for the victory at Santiago belongs; or whether Schley has been unjustly treated since that time; or whether Schley should be promoted over Sampson, or vice versa; or whether one or the other is more popular in the navy. The whole question before the court will be one of naval records. and it is merely tried to put an end to certain aspirations which have been gossiped at Washington by some busybodies and which have been repeated by an officious understrapper at the Brooklyn navy yard, who wrote an alleged 'history' under the circumstances in which he was placed, from time to time, it will then be in order to settle other questions, which cannot properly come before this court, ly as great a rarity as a white black bird it

VOLTS AND PRESENCE OF MIND. The set lement will be largely in the hands of the present secretary of the navy. and Secy Long can always be trusted to do the right thing, the just thing, and the proper thing, at the right time.

In Leslie's Monthly for September Mr. E. Hough explains what stuff the reputation of the typical 'Bad Man' is made of. At one stage of his career the story of how Mr. Williamson threw Peterson over the counter of the Lorne Star Hotel spread rapidly through the town. Whiteman, the Jew, told it to Jackson, the ranchman, and he Jackson repeated it to one of his cow-punchers who come into town with him and the latter told it to the barber. and the barber told it to everybody else. 'I reckon we sure have got a new bad man in town,' said the barber 'and he is real bad too. Fight? He'll fight as quick as he'd eat and so d-d industrious about fighting that he don't think to pull his gun. Why he just grabs hold of Paterson like a baby and throws him over the desk same as he would a bag of potatoes.'

He did make troubl . Inside of first week in Arroyo City be had whipped three men, one of them drunk, two being sober and at their best. His method of warfare was so peculiar that the public seemed dezed and mystified. Never yet had the stranger been known to go after his gun in the accepted tachion of the Southwest Arroyo City reasoned that if he could fight thus without resorting to a gun he would be strictly dangerous when he took to fire-

'In all his violent deeds,' writes E. Hough in his vivid story of a 'Bad Man' in not to touch the wire with another part of Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for September, 'Harrison had never been known to resort to the use of weapons. He fought simply with the tools that nature had given him, and able indeed at rough and tumble must be the man who would oppose him. Under the creed of the country, he was commonly met at his own terms, and as commonly he was victorious. Once upon a time it occurred to one of his former victims that, though the cranium of William Harrison might be impervious to the human fist in so far as such fist was possessed by himself, James Babcock, this same cranium might cone the less be susceptible to the impact of a well-aimed brickbat. Accordingly, he stepped up behind William Harrison one fall day at the county fair and tried the effect of his theory in regard to the brickbat and the skull. Mr. Harrison, smitten to the earth for the first time in his career, fell heavily forward, and for some moments remained quite unconscious. His tearful wife, Min, appeared upon the scene, led him to the nearest pump, and for some time bathed his wounds. The expression of the champion's countenance was one of mingled surprise, rage and determination. He remarked to his wife that he would

The lover who fears to tread being near-

is interesting to cite one in a professional entertainer, Ernest Blum of Paris. A long time ago, when he was a young and very bashful man, Blum met and danced and fell in love with a young woman, and determined to ask her to marry him. Atter several att: mpts, which came to nothing, he led her one evening at a party, to a secluded corner and told ber he had something importtant to say to her. The lady was politely attentive, but Blum failed to follow his advantage; he blushed, stammered and fin-

I wished-I only wished to ask you if you think it will rain to morrow?

He returned to the attack on several ocasions, but never got farther than the weather, and the lady did not know his secret till many years later, when she was a white haired grandmother. Then she

It was just as well you did not say it, for I should have refused you. You danced the polks so horribly!

Possibly if Blum's feet had been nimbler the lady might have helped bim to limber up his tongue, for being a girl, she must have guessed the cause of its paralysis. When the lady of Victor Hugo's choice wanted to find out what was the meaning of his tongue tied admiration, she said:

I am sure you have secrets. Have you not one secret greater than all? Victor acknowledged that he had secrets and that one of them was greater than all the rest. Just like me! cried his lady. Well come now, tell me your greatest secret and I will tell you mine. My great secret, Victor replied, is that I love you!

And my great secret is that I love you said the lady, like an echo. And so they were married-as Blum and his heart's tancy might have been had ner assistance been forthcoming.

London's Cadi.

The English papers are printing many anecdotes of Commissioner Kerr, who recently at the age of eighty retired court, which he had occupied for forty two years. The aged Scotsman has been a fine old judge, says the London Daily Mailcapable, caustic, rugged, original, teareasly honest, concealing under a crusty exterior a kindly heart

He was an enormous worker, and always alert to economize time, one of his aving methods being to cut off redundant suidence. Don't want any more witnesses,' Halifax, Aug 20, Robert Bushell, to Maggie Purhe would say to a lawyer, 'You've proved your case now you are trying to run up osts. Sit down.

More saving of time was effected by his nethod of summing up. Frequently it was something like this: 'Gentlemen-You have hear-r-d the eevidence just as weel as I ha' hear-r-d it mysel'. I just leave the case to the cawman sense which juries are supposed to possess. Cawnseeder your vardict.'

He was a maker of phrases. That now famour maxim, 'Every dog is entitled to his first bite,' was the commissioner's way of setting forth that a dog must have won a character for savageness before a claim could be made against its master.

In a housebreaking charge before him once the delinquent was an eleven year old boy who had broken and entered a shop by litting a latch and descending two steps in order to secure a handful of sweets. whale the life out of Jim Babcock the next employment of the whole criminal machinhearing, and Old Bailey trial-in so small a case. 'The proper course to adopt,' he said, 'would have been to take the child into the back yard and to have inflicted punishment upon that part of his anotomy which a beneficent and far seeing Nature had provided for the specific purpose,'

He was the scourge of the money lenders in the days of their unfettered exorbitance, and one Shylock who claimed his pound of flesh was served with Portia-like justice. The defendant had to pay. Although he had paid the original loan some four times over, he still owed as interest and charges nearly twice as much as he had borrowed. 'You must pay this debt,' said the commissioner, sternly, 'but you will pay it at the rate of one penny a month.' It will take that defendant exactly three hundred and eighty five years to repay the amount at the specified rate.

A Retort From Nature.

Among the useful results of aerial excursions are the satisfactory experiments in the way of echoes and reverberations. John Mackenzie Bacon had many opportunities of testing the carrying of sounds to and from a baloon at a great height, and Mr. Wise, the American aneonaut, relates a case in point.

He was balooning one day above a dense cloud-stream when he heard a cow-bell and the sounds of a wood-chopper's axe, waish, st.

laborer he shouted 'Halloc!, He was immediately answered by another 'Halloc!' from the ground.

He then asked the question : 'How far is this from Lancaster?' and was annoyed by being mocked by his own words.

Being in the clouds, 'he says, 'and not able to see things above or below, I felt somewhat nettled at this clownish display of wit, and in a very audible tone of voice. while the toregoing was still reverberating in my ear, I sang out: 'You're a tool!' which in a very few seconds was answered by an equally distinct and measured tone of voice, 'You're a tool!'

'Then it suddenly flashed upon my mind that it was the echo of my own voice, which opinion was ratified by the dying reverberations of my own words, which had now became as numerous as though a whole regiment had caught the watchword and were passing it in quick succession through the whole line.'

An Unselfish Boy .- 'Tommy,' said Mrs. Glim, 'you should not shoot your fire-
