WINDOW CLEANERS.

Working in Skyscrapers is Hard on Nerves and Stomachs.

"The reason that we are always advertising for window cleaners," said the foreman of a company that employs 200 men in this business, "is that so many men throw up their jobs after they have been at it a week or so. Some of them even do not last so long as that. A window cleaner can make as good wages as a mechanic or a morman. The work is steady because nearly all the window cleaning in New York's big buildings is done by contract."

"Any number of likely young fellows really in need of work who promise well enough at the start give out within a few days. Sometimes it is their nerves that go back on them, but more often it is their stomachs. We send away half the men who apply for jobs without even giving them a trial. If a man drinks or is so nervous that he has to dodge trolley cars he should keep out of this business."

"When we take a man on trial the foreman breaks him in gradually. We don't put him on a skyscraper job right away. A great many private houses in this city have their windows cleaned by contract, and we start him on that. If a man is no good at ladder work it is no use bothering with him. From private houses the beginner is sent to department stores and finally to the tall buildings. Once in awhile we find a man who can start in on skyscraper jobs right away without any trouble."

"Don't look down. Look up all the time," is the constant admonition of the foreman. Not one man in ten is able to obey that order. The temptation to look down is irresistible. If a man can't break himself of the looking down habit it is all up with him. He is sure to come around sooner or later and give up his job."

YOUNG ALLIGATORS.

They Feed but Once a Month and Then Prefer Live Food.

"The thing of it being difficult to induce an alligator in captivity to eat is a mistaken idea," said a man who owns a young alligator and knows all about them. "The question is how. First of all, an alligator feeds but once a month and then prefers to eat anything that suggests life—anything that moves. For this reason alligators, besides being good food for it, prove attractive to the eye of a small girl and later disappears with the same relish it would were the alligator in the streams of its native regions. Again, a small portion of raw beef makes excellent food for it, and the alligator never refuses to eat of a piece that is tied to a string and slowly drawn along in front of him, in this way giving a suggestion of life to the food. Another thing very important to know in the care of an alligator is to exactly understand how to make it comfortable. The best and simplest plan is to secure a box, any ordinary wooden box, and fill the bottom with sand, which is then covered with moss. Also have placed inside of the box, which must be kept in the sun as much as possible, a flower-pot saucer filled with water. This must be changed frequently. All of which makes the alligator very comfortable, for in case it should become tired of the water there are the moss and sand for it to get out upon. So with a properly arranged home or box and a little care as to its diet there is no reason why the little alligator tourist so frequently delight in sending their friends from Florida should not thrive in captivity."

Never Touched the Scotchman.

It is related of the late Shirley Brooks that he had at one time a very favorite pig who, alas, went the way of all pigs and was converted into bacon. Brooks sent some of the delicacy to a friend, with a note as follows: "His end was peace, and I send you a piece of his end."

The joke was related to a Scotchman, who laughed very heartily and shortly afterward having occasion to kill a pig of his own sent some to a relative, with the remark, "His end was peace, and I send you a piece of the pig." And he wondered why nobody saw the joke.—London King.

The Worst of It.

"Barker is not much on form," said the first commuter. "Why, the other day I saw him eating breakfast food for supper. And that wasn't the worst of it."

"What could be worse?" broke in the second commuter.

"Why, this," replied the first commuter, with a grin: "He actually had on evening dress at the time, with a morning glori in his buttonhole."

A New Doctrine.

The Rev. Dr. Fourtally was making one of his pastoral calls at the Upjohn mansion.

"Doctor," said little Johnny during a pause in the conversation, "I wish you would tell me what you think of the doctrine of prestidigitation."

Parental Assistance.

Barnes—When I was young my mother always used to sing me to sleep.

Shedd—Yes, women are good at that sort of thing, but it takes the father's voice to wake a fellow up in the morning.

Simple Mediocrity.

"Why did she marry him?"

"I give it up. He wasn't bad enough to need reforming nor good enough to make a desirable husband."

In finding fault it is very easy to be truthful and unfair.—Athens Globe.

Study Both Sides.

We are all partisans by nature, and the judicial habit of study of both sides of a question must be acquired. But few acquire it. The average man takes his opinions apart from some biased authority and never bothers to inquire whether they are right or wrong. He accepts statements of fact without question, and once having adopted them and lodged them in his mind, it is not unusual for him to resent any attempt to correct them.

It is a matter of observation that the most violent and fanatical advocates and partisans are those who know least about the other side. Ignorance is the mother of bigots, but knowledge tends to make a man tolerant.

No man has a right to have an opinion and no man's opinion on any question is respectable unless he has studied both sides. A man ought to be ashamed to give judgment on any question unless he has heard and considered the arguments for and against.

We decide the weightiest matters without either information or reflection. How many citizens are in favor of free trade? A man ought to be ashamed to give judgment on any question unless he has heard and considered the arguments for and against.

If education and culture train a man to study both sides of a question before he voices an opinion of it they accomplish all that can be expected of them. Even among educated men it is the exception to find one who studies both sides of questions.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Value of Charcoal.

Permit me to urge all breeders of poultry who wish healthy fowls to be liberal in supplying their birds with charcoal. It is one of the best preventatives of disease and purifiers of the animal system we have, or at least that we know of. It helps to purify the digestive organs and acts as a stimulant by purifying the blood and toning up the system in general. It does not need to be crushed fine, mixed with other food and compelled to eat it, but all that is necessary is to break it up in small pieces convenient for them to swallow. They will produce more eggs if they have plenty of charcoal of easy access. The cost of charcoal is but a trifle, even when bought, and if you burn wood in your stove the black coals and feed box are pieces about the size of a grain of corn and placed in small pieces where the fowls can get it easily. It is especially valuable during the spring and summer months, for then it is that the blood is sluggish and needs something to purify it, and it is from this reason principally that most of the poultry diseases come during these months.—Poultry.

The Horse's Manger.

In feeding hay to horses, arrange the manger so as to be the most convenient height to suit the horse's reach of the bottom, which is made of slats and about inches from the floor. The fine dust, etc., goes through and is easily cleaned out. The horse, of all animals, is most easily hurt by dust and filthy food. The horse's manger should be half full of dust and trash. The top of the manger and feed box should be so arranged that the top of the horse's head will be even with his back when he is eating. This plan gives the horse most comfort and he seems to take his feed with more ease than any other way. In giving him the most comfortable and stable, he will show himself off better in the harness. It seems unreasonable to expect a horse to hold his head high when he must twist his neck in all shapes to get his hay out of a rack or stand on his tiptoes to reach over in a high manger. Do you use a high table and low chairs to make your children walk with head and shoulders erect and a quick, smart step?

Building a New House.

The Earl and Countess of Aberdeen who have been in London most of the season, are building a new house for themselves on their Aberdeenshire estates. It is in a different part of the country from their chief seat, Haddo, which gives the title to their eldest son, Lord Haddo. On one occasion Mr. Gladstone visited it, and it has of course, associations with another Prime Minister, the fourth Lord Aberdeen. He was Premier about the time that Queen Victoria and Prince Albert first went to Balmoral. Lord Aberdeen has a second estate towards that beautiful quarter of Aberdeenshire, and he is replacing the old mansion on it with a new one.

As it happens, a neighboring proprietor is John Clark, whose father, Sir James Clark, the eminent physician, had a large voice in determining on Decide for a Royal residence. The west coast of Scotland had been thought about, but Queen Victoria and Prince Albert accepted Sir James' Highlands as having a drier and more bracing climate.

Miss Jamieson's French Appointment.

The appointment of Miss Jamieson of Darlington to be professor of the English language at Grenoble University has now been ratified by the French Minister of Public Instruction. This is the first time that a lady has been appointed to a professional chair in a French university. Miss Jamieson is of Scottish descent. She was educated at the Edinburgh Ladies' College of the Merchants' Company, took first-class honors last year at Edinburgh University, and also holds the Heriot traveling scholarship given by the same institution.

Variety Is the Spice of Good Eating.

Kohl rabi is a useful vegetable that helps to give variety to the culinary list. It may not be generally understood that the roots from sowings made in July and August make a tender dish in winter. They can be stored like turnips. Sow Early Vienna in drills fifteen inches apart and thin to four or five inches in the drill.

BEWARE OF OINTMENTS FOR CATARRH THAT CONTAIN MERCURY.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely arrange the whole system, when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co., Testimonials free.

There are none so deaf as those who won't hear any good of their neighbors.

The popular view of the relation of the blood to human character and conduct is marked in many a familiar expression. We speak of their being "bad blood," between people at enmity, of "blue blood" as indicating ancestry, of "black blood" as describing a treacherous nature, and in many another phrase mark our belief that in "mental, moral and physical man, 'the blood is the life.' The cure of a healthy, happy and one basis of a pure blood. With the blood pure, disease has no permanent lodging place in the system. For this reason the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery ride the body of diseases which have their origin in impurity of the blood. It absolutely purifies the blood, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter, increasing the action of the blood making glands, and building up the body by supplying the blood in quantity such as is essential to a condition of health. It cures ninety-eight people out of every hundred who give it a fair trial.
