A Noval Horse Race.—The Harriston Tribune says: On Saturday, 21st June, the residents along the 6th one. Of Minto were entertained to quite a novel horse race. It appears that a couple of farmers who each own a good team of horses had been out to town. They took their wives and neighbors' wives with them in the lumber wagen. When through with their business in town they started for home, and on the way were feeling the speed of each other's team when finally it came down to a running race. Each man was bounded over the stones, the women became frightened and screamed, hats, bonnets and paraseds went up, but not a stop would the farmers make until one reached his own gate where he turned in and passed by the other with a cheer. With the exception of a good fright to the women and a long search for hats, etc., no damage was done.
