

Table of public works and grants, including items like 'New Road from Netas Darby's to the Shore', 'Special Grant to Crapaud Wharf', and 'District No. 9, comprising Lots Nos. 27 and 28'.

Table listing various wharves and grants, such as 'Special Grant to Crapaud Wharf', 'District No. 10, comprising Lots Nos. 13 & 14', and 'Crapaud Wharf, (special grant)'.

FRIDAY, April 21, 1854. TEACHERS' CLAIMS.

Mr. Mooney presented to the House the Report of the Committee on Teachers' claims, which report was thereupon committed to a Committee of the whole House, and finally adopted as follows:—

Your Committee, to whom were referred the several Petitions of School Teachers not entitled by Law to the Public Allowance, under the provisions of the present School Act, have examined the same, and recommend that the under-mentioned persons be allowed as follows, viz:

Table listing names and amounts for teachers' claims, including 'Arohibald C. Bookford', 'Thomas LeMarquand', 'Henry Locky', etc.

Your Committee cannot recommend that the prayer of the undermentioned Petitions be complied with, viz: James H. Fitzgerald and of W. H. Nells, both complaining of the limited provision made for Schoolmasters under the Free Education Act.

ROAD APPROPRIATIONS.

The House next went into Committee on the further consideration of all matters relating to Roads, Bridges and Wharves; and after some time spent therein, the Scales for King's and Queen's Counties were reported and agreed to by the House, they will appear in our next.

HOGS AT LARGE.

Hon. Mr. Montgomery presented a Petition from divers inhabitants of Princeton Royalty, praying the House not to accede to the prayer of a Petition largely presented, by procuring the raising of large Hogs, &c.—Referred to the Committee appointed to report on the latter Petition.

EASTER SHOW, 1854.

We promised to give some further remarks on the state of the Market on Saturday evening, and, in order to make our description as correct as possible, the writer went to every stall in the Market, and requested the occupiers to leave a note at the Office, on the Monday, stating the kinds of meat exhibited by them, and the weight of each respectively, two only, however, Messrs. Beer and Holman, have responded to our invitation; we shall, nevertheless, give the results, as far as we are able, from information afforded by the Secretary of the Royal Agricultural Society. In the first place, it becomes our duty to protest against the want of room and accommodation in the present Market House. The display of meat, would have been much more effective, had it not been so huddled up—far we can find no better term—and placed of necessity, in situations where there was no getting a view of the articles on all sides, in a proper light. We say if a joint of meat that is a perfect picture, and when it is fine, well-fatted, juicy and plump, the lean delicately melted, and finely streaked with fat, as if there had been a generous combat as to which should obtain the superiority, and the fat itself of intermediate shades between dazzling whiteness or rich yellow, it does form a picture which few are averse from contemplating, and which all are desirous of possessing, and is, therefore, worthy of a suitable exhibition room. The greatest connoisseurs, and the most skillful critics, would have found much to admire, and little to censure in the Easter Exhibition. There is always a diversity of opinion in matters, which depend solely on the peculiar taste of the individual, and, therefore, we shall not obtrude our private judgment as to which was the finest beef exhibited. We heard the opinions of a great many, competent to form a just estimate of the respective merits of each, and were not a little amused at finding the opinions almost as various as the articles to be adjudicated upon; in fact, it greatly depended on fancy, all were so excellent in their kind—or, to speak more technically, so prima. There were people from all parts of the Mother Country, from the other Colonies, and who had been in the United States, and other parts of the world, present; and all unanimously agreed that they had never seen better articles, of their size and kind, exhibited in any market. We are particular in mentioning this, for we do not pretend to vie with the over-fatted mammoth specimens of the bullock tribe, as shown in Britain and elsewhere. Without incurring the suspicion of partiality, we think we should not do our duty if we did not point out the specimen exhibited by Mr. Holmes, 1st prize, 2d class, which was remarkable from being only one year and eleven months old, and weighed when killed 617 lbs. Our market has of late years become famous for its show of mutton; but we think that the carcass of the wether exhibited at the Show by John Lyall, Esq., and purchased and shown by Holman, was the fattest, and altogether the finest we have ever seen. We are gratified that a bunch of this animal, judiciously kept for about a month or six weeks, and enveloped in a coarse paste and cooked as venison, would have done honor to the festive board of the most generous Amphitryon among us. There was other mutton, however, that did credit to their feeders and exhibitors. There was not much poultry, though there were a few turkeys, geese and geans. Some wild geese were there. We were disappointed at seeing no veal on that day; though we have seen some previously, and of a superior quality. On the whole, however, no person present could fail to remark the great improvement that has taken place within these few years, in stock of all kinds. We gladly record this state of the market; for it more than anything else shows the increasing prosperity of the Colony, and will tend to induce people with limited incomes, in other and more expensive countries, to remove to Prince Edward Island, secure of having all the necessities and comforts, and most of the luxuries of life, within their reach and at moderate rates.

The following is a list of the prize animals, with the weights alive and when slaughtered— 1st prize Ox, fed on Government Farm, 1st class, 1530 lbs. 2d do., not killed. 2d do., 2d class, Holman, 1055 917 2d do., do., Dodd, 1550 930 Best Cow, Beer, 1265 775 2d do., McLaren, 1055 600 1st prize Mutton, Holman, 108 lbs. 2d do., Beer, 100 lbs.

TO THE HONORABLE WILLIAM SWARTZ, 1. Member of Her Majesty's Legislative Council 2. Justice of the Peace for Queen's County 3. Chairman of the Board of Road Justices 4. Visiting Justice of Queen's County Jail 5. Commissioner of Prison Discipline 6. Trustee and Governor of Lunatic Asylum 7. Registrar of Court of Vice Admiralty 8. Commissioner of Small Debts Court 9. Member of the Board of Education 10. Trustee and Governor of Central Academy 11. Governor of Royal Agricultural Society 12. Adjutant General and Inspector of Militia 13. Lieut. Colonel of a Regiment of Militia 14. Trustee of the Incorporated Society for the Propagation of the Gospel 15. Chairman of Assault and Battery Court 16. President of Cricket Club 17. Treasurer of the Society for the Protection of Property 18. Co-Editor, with Andrew Mitchell, of the Advertiser Newspaper, &c., &c., &c.

And late one of the members of Her Majesty's Privy Council, Justice of the Peace for the whole Island, one of the Judges of Vice Admiralty Court, one of the Judges of the Court of Divorce, and Registrar of Deeds and Keeper of Plans, &c., &c., &c.

Most Respected Sir, Admitting that your antecedents before you came to this Colony, and since, were of that character as to render you worthy to be the recipient of the many distinctions above enumerated, which have been conferred upon you, my object in addressing you thus publicly is, to ask you how you can, as an honest man (for such you are presumed to be)—not having been alleged against you, as I am aware of, that you ever betrayed any trust imposed in you, or that you ever defrauded the laborer of his hire, or ever refused to pay your just debts, conscientiously continue to hold so many appointments? Seeing that each must require some time, and if any three of them be properly attended to, you must of necessity neglect all the rest; or, to use a homely phrase, having so many irons in the fire, must not some of them burn? These thoughts have been suggested, by seeing that you have been of late (notwithstanding the many legitimate ways you have of occupying your time) taking upon yourself to spend a portion of the time which the public have a right to expect you would devote to their service, in attending to the duties of one or other of the offices you hold, in meddling with matters that are not within your province; I allude to your recent movements in the Legislative Council. No individual in the community knows, Sir, better than yourself, that to the Representative Branch of the Legislature alone belongs or appertains the subjects in which you have of late been endeavoring to involve that branch of the Legislature in which you at present hold a seat. Have you ever heard, or known, Sir, in your great experience of the House of Lords,—of which the House to which you belong is supposed to be a feeble representation,—or of the Legislative Council in any of the other dependencies of Her Majesty, having entertained any such measure as either of the questions which you have moved your House to entertain,—I allude, Sir, to your attempt to involve it in party or political warfare, and thereby, it is to be feared, erecting it into an obstructive body, which, by the turn of the wheel of fortune, might again place you in one of the lucrative offices you some time since held. Has not the House of Lords, and the upper branch of the Legislature in all the Colonies, always been considered, although a distinct Branch, merely as a check between the influence of the Crown on one side, and the popular Branch on the other,—a mere balancing power, with the right of initiating Bills. But, Sir, if you were allowed to follow out your scheme, you would soon make the Legislative Council what I before stated, a partisan body, torn by political strife,—and thus render it altogether unfit to answer the purposes for which the constitution intended it. I would here take the liberty of asking you another question: Have you ever contemplated that your having been appointed to a seat in the Legislative Council, and your being allowed to sit there one day, and vote on any question, is a gross infringement of the constitution—which you seem to desire by allowing Captain Rice to continue in the office of Treasurer after he resented from the Legislative Council? In proof of your holding a seat in Council being an infringement of the constitution, I would refer you to the following, being an extract from the Royal Instructions under which the Legislative Council is formed:—

Extract from Instructions to the Governor General, Sir John Colborne.

"We do hereby give and grant unto you, the said Sir John Colborne, full power and authority to choose as many persons out of the principal Freeholders, inhabitants of our said Island Prince Edward, as shall be necessary to supply any vacancy which may from time to time occur in our said Council."

Now, Sir, under these circumstances, it is undoubtedly a fact that you are an interloper; you are sitting the seat of some duly qualified person. You perhaps will say, that you are not the only member of your body similarly situated. That may be the case;—I merely answer: Two wrongs do not make one right. And even if such be the case, none of the others make themselves so conspicuous; they rather keep in the background,—they may give an obstructive vote; but they do not make an obstructive move, as you have done.

I would make one further remark, Sir, that if I were similarly situated to you, I would at once resign my seat; I would not usurp a seat that it was so clear I had no right to,—and I must say, if you did not, if I were a member of the Government I would at once move His Excellency to inform you that your services would in future be dispensed with. You know that you are not a Freeholder of an inch of ground on the Island; and how can you attempt any longer to usurp the place of a Freeholder? A great deal has of late been said, in the lower branch, by the party to which, I suppose, you profess to belong, (although you resided from them a short time since, before they sent,—perhaps in example of the rate, who, it is said, always desert a sinking ship) about members of that Branch not having legal qualifications; but, Sir, I am of opinion it is equally, if not of more consequence to the well-being of the State, that members of the upper Branch should be duly qualified. Since I commenced this letter, it has occurred to me that your having resigned your seat in the Legislative Council, in the time of your friend and patron Sir Henry Hunt, to enable you to offer your services to one of the country constituencies, was because that either your patron or, perhaps, yourself, thought that you were not qualified to hold your seat in the upper House; but, strange to say, when you were defeated at the hustings, such was your thirst for parliamentary honors, that you immediately repossessed yourself of your former seat—how, I know not. In contemplating this matter, I have been thinking what you could have qualified on at the Sheriff's Court previous to the election referred to. Trusting you will pardon the liberty I have taken with you, and that you will no longer subject yourself to be remarked on, but at once resign your seat, and thereby the better enable you to give your attention to the various duties attached to the different offices you hold.

I remain, with much respect, Your obedient Servant, EXAMINER.
