Olive Lost Off Twillingate.

At 12.30 to-day information reached the city that the schr. Olive, owned by Messrs. Goodridge & Sons, was lost off Twillingate this morning by colliding with ice. Nothing further of the happening was received. The Olive was chiefly used as a coaster by the owners, although she used to make an occasional trip to foreign ports. She left here five weeks ago with a freight for Nipper's Harbor. It is thought she got caught in the heavy ice jam reported by Capt. Kean of the s.s. Prospero off Twillingate, was stove in and sunk. The Olive was 87 tons nett, was an old vessel but was rebuilt 3 years ago.

Bad Cod and Salmon Fishery.

People who arrived here from the West Coast recently say that the fishing from Pashthrough down to Placentia up to date has been very poor both for bankers and shore men. Where last year up to date they had reported for about 10,000 qtls. fish, this season to date hardly a tenth of that figure is estimated. From Hermitage west last year big shipments of fresh salmon were made to the Provinces, but this year up to date this department of the fishery along the coast has been a blank.

A Query For The City Fathers.

The residents of King's Bridge and neighborhood are anxious to know when the long-promised light on Ken-na's Hill will be erected. They have been petitioning for one these several years, and definite promises were made by some of the City Fathers last fall. The time is now opportune for action and the people interested request that the east and Councilors bring the matter before the Council at next meeting. Will some of these gentlemen please make a note of it?

How Editors Get Rich.

After a great deal of worry and study we have at last figured out how so many country editors get rich. Here is the secret of their success. There is a child born in the neighborhood. The editor, gives the loud-lunged youngster a great send-off and gets $0. It is christened, and the minister gets $5, and the editor gets $90. It grows and marries. The editor publishes another long-winded flowery article and tells a dozen different lies about "the beautiful and accomplished bride." The minister gets $10 and a piece of cake. The editor gets $900 and a request to carry the groom's subscription account another year. In the course of time she dies.

The doctor gets from $5 to $100, the minister gets from $5 to $100, the editor publishes a notice of death and an obituary two columns long, lodge resolutions, a lot of poetry and a card of thanks and gets $9,000. No wonder so many country editors get rich.—Exchange.

Rev. Mr. Sutherland

Rev. Mr. Sutherland, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, left here by the Bruce express last evening, for Toronto where he will attend a full Assembly Conference of the Presbyterian Churches towards which ten men of Canada contributed $10,000 each inviting a clergyman and his wife from every congregation of the Presbyterian Church in Canada and Newfoundland with a lay delegate. Mr. Alex. Robertson is the lay delegate from St. John's, and Mrs. Sutherland accompanies her husband.

Noted Preacher Here.

Rev. Dr. McPhie, of Winchester, Mass., arrived here by the Morwenna and will take the services at the Kirk for the four Sundays Mr. Sutherland is absent. The Doctor is noted as a fluent and polished speaker and is Secretary of the Evangelical Alliance of America. His sermons at the services on Sunday last were of a character which impressed all who heard them.

Warning To Mariners.

On her way to port this morning the S. S. City of Sydney reports passing between Cape Race and Cape Spear about forty icebergs of various sizes all extending in the direction of the Southern Shore. Most of the bergs are honeycombed and falling apart, while "growlers" are also scattered about. They are a menace to shipping and mariners, particularly at night time, coming in and out of port should exercise extreme caution.

An Absent-minded Inventor.

Several new stories have just been told about the famous inventor whom Canadian and Americans both like to claim, though he is really a Scotchman, namely Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, who now makes his home in that beautiful city of Washington. It appears that Dr. Bell hates the sight of his great invention, the telephone, so much that he does not make use of it unless he has never appreciated its usefulness. Dr. Bell tells a story of how he was in a house where a child began to cough in the middle of the night, and the family feared the cough sounded croupy. He went to the telephone and asked a medical man to come over at once. It was an inconvenient hour, and the medical man desired some reason. When he heard what it was he asked why the child could not be brought to the phone. The inventor was immediately struck by the idea that it was quite possible, so the doctor decided over the telephone that the child did not have croup.

Another story is told by Dr. Bell regarding himself. He got home a few months ago about an hour late for dinner, and his apologies did not soothe his wife. "That is all very well," she said, "but in these days of telephones on every corner, there is no excuse for a man not calling up his home when he is going to be late." "Well now," replied her penitent husband, "I never thought of that."

New Fish Preserving Process.

Colonel Bianchi, of the Imperial Russian Army, accompanied by Professor Leonidas Spassky, His Excellency Vladimir Ivanovitch Kovalevsky, and Professor Danilevsky, member of the Russian State Council, paid a visit to Hull this week with the object of giving practical demonstration before a representative gathering of shipowners and traders of a scientific process of fish preservation. This process is the invention of Professor Danilevsky.

The demonstrations were made in the large room of the Institute at St. Andrew's Dock, where J. McEwan, President of the Hull Fishing Vessel Owners' Association, presided over a very large gathering of owners and merchants. Three processes of fish preservation were described in detail by Professor Danilevsky, who claimed that by their use vessels might be in the White Sea for a month or six weeks and yet bring their fish to market in an absolutely fresh condition.

The ingredients used were neither drugs nor antiseptics, but a food which was used in everyday life. All that had to be done was to immerse the fish in the solutions, and all that was needed was a moderate cool temperature. Fish he claimed, might be preserved for months, and by one process it could be kept in shop or market uncovered for a considerable time. Quantities of fish were then placed in tubs and will remain undisturbed in the solution for about three weeks on the premises of the St. Andrew's Club. At the end of that time the Professor and his colleagues will return to Hull and the result of the experiment will be announced.—From The Fish Trade Gazette of London.

Lenses in their different stages of construction from the rough glass to the finished lens, also a few of the laps used in grinding and polishing, are being exhibited in the window of R. H. TRAPNELL, Eyebright Specialist. It's interesting to stop and take a look at them.—m28,tf

Lord Avebury died to-day of heart disease. Under this title hides the identity of Sir John Lubbock, the well known banker, scientist and publicist. The deceased was a great worker and devoted much time and energy to public affairs. He was also a prolific writer. He is perhaps best known for his successful efforts to establish bank holidays in England.

The Browning Letters.

Although one may wish that the Browning love-letters had never come into the market at all, yet it is possible to find in the fact that they were sold in an auction room for £6,500 a cause for satisfaction rather than regret. It is far better that they should be the property of some private person than their exposure to the public gaze should be made perpetual by putting them in a museum. He, at any rate, will regard them with reverence and with an unflinching interest.

The M.S. of 'Aurora Leigh' was sold to Mr. Quaritch for £930 and the manuscript of forty-three 'Sonnets' from the Portuguese went for £1130.
