Godless Schools

We are able to expose to-day another nefarious attempt to fool the electorate on the matter of non-sectarian schools. It will be remembered that this campaign began by the publication of a false report of a meeting at Change Islands. Mr. Peter Cowan and Mr. Coaker disposed of that falsehood and we set forth in a plain and straightforward statement that non-sectarian education was no part of the policy of the Liberal Party or the Fishermen's Protective Union. Last night, however, the editor of the Evening Herald outheroded Herod by an intentional misrepresentation of the attitude of the Fishermen's Advocate, publishing under the heading of "Godless Schools" certain extracts from one of these under the sub-heading "From Coaker's Advocate" containing the following sentences: "You want free education and free education you must have, and undenominational education you must have. . . . The manifest intention of the quotation and the heading and the suppression of material facts is to create the impression (1) that this is an editorial utterance of Mr. Coaker; and (2) that it is made in pursuance of some policy of the F. P. U. That was the intention of the Herald in publishing the extract as he did and in making the suppressions he made. This will be absolutely clear when we point out what Mr. Coaker suppresses. He expresses first of all the fact that it is not taken from any editorial of the Advocate, and second that it is taken from a letter from a correspondent on the West Coast, where there is no Council of the F. P. U. established. We may add further that Mr. Coaker informs us that this letter was published in his absence from town. Could there be a more glaring, dishonest and deceitful attempt to fool the public on the part of Mr. Coaker? How would he like to have published extracts from letters published in the Evening Herald under the caption "From McGrath's Herald," and the fact suppressed that the opinions expressed were neither the views of the editor

Two Fishermen Drowned.

Mark Earles and Mark Whiteway the Victims.

A sad drowning accident in which two lives were lost occurred yesterday afternoon on the local fishing grounds. The victims are Mark Earles, aged 40, and Mark Whiteway, aged 40, who were returning home after the day's fishing when their boat swamped. Earles was a married man with a wife and two children lived at the north Battery while Whiteway, who was unmarried, boarded with his brother on Signal Hill. Both were natives of Western Cove.

On Monday at midnight they left their homes to go fishing and rowed off as far as Cape Spear, a distance of three miles. They found a good sign of fish and got a fairly good fare. They discontinued operations about noon when they bore up for home at that time there was a strong westerly wind raging, accompanied by choppy but heavy seas. A couple of fishermen who reported the accident said it was the roughest day for the season. Another old hand said that it was the wildest day he was ever outside the Narrows, speaking from twenty five years' experience. Whiteway and Earles were among the first to leave the Cape grounds to return home. One boat, belonging to Quidi Vidi, left about a quarter of an hour before them. The boat, which the two men that were lost were in, was coming along under full sail with a stiff breeze blowing when between Cape Spear and Blackhead a heavy squall struck the skiff and capsized it. Another story, which is supposed to be the correct one, is that the boat filled with water and sank stern foremost. The men in the Quidi Vidi boat, which was a short distance ahead, heard cries from their friends and returned to the spot where the boat went down only to find the caps of their lost friends and a water keg. A thorough search was made but nothing farther was found. Last evening the tug John Green was visiting the fishing grounds to try and recover the bodies but without success. The search for the bodies will be continued to-day but it is doubtful if ever they will be recovered owing to the depth of the water, where the unfortunate men went down.

It appears that there were no actual eye-witnesses of what exactly happened. It is thought that the victims who were heavily clothed succumbed quickly. The deceased men were well known and were a splendid type of fishermen. Last evening Mrs. Earles on being informed of her husband's sad ending became hysterical and could not be consoled. The tragedy has cast a gloom over the men who frequent local fishing grounds.

Farnham-Gowns Wedding Yesterday.

At 2.30 p.m. yesterday a pretty and interesting wedding took place at the residence of the bride's parents when Mr. Cyril Farnham led to the altar Miss Mary Gowns. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. J. S. Sutherland, M. A. The bride was given away by her father and looked charming in a suit of pale violet satin, with black picture hat and carried a bouquet of white roses and ferns. The bride was assisted by Miss Elsie Farnham, sister of the groom and wore a very pretty costume of cream embroidered net over silk and white hat. The flower girl was Miss Olive Bishop, niece of the bride, and the best man was Mr. Archie Gowns, brother of the bride. Both received very many pretty and valuable presents and after the ceremony motored to Holyrood where the honeymoon will be spent and will leave for their future home, Hear's Content, on Saturday. In the felicitation extended by their many friends The Evening Telegram heartily joins.

Brother Hurley Returns.

Rev. Brother Hurley, the pioneer teacher of the St. Patrick's Hall schools, arrived here by the Digby after a visit to his home in Ireland which he had not seen for over 30 years. Brother Hurley came here with the first Brothers under the Rev. Superior Holland and is the only survivor of the "old guard." The many pupils of the earlier days of the Orphan Asylum schools who studied under Brother Hurley will be glad to hear of his return and restoration to health. Two new Brothers accompanied him here, Brothers Hammond and O'Flanagan, and we hear that 3 others will arrive later.

Lost Her Anchor.

While coming in at pretty good speed from the northward yesterday afternoon, off the King's Wharf, the schooner Hager let go her anchor, the result was that when the weight of the vessel hove on the chain it parted and a good deal of chain with the anchor was lost. The crew spent hours looking for it but could not locate it.

Gathering Pebbles.

People going up on the trains the past few weeks have witnessed a lively scene at Manuels Beach. A crowd of men, women and children can be seen collecting beach pebbles and thousands of bags of them are stowed along the beach. There is a ship load there now and early next month a shipment will be made to New York.
