One Thing Men Hate.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"She keeps at it, and then she's at me about getting home early on account of the kids. 'If it isn't one thing it's another, that's all.'"

Later, I tried to translate this as gently as possible to the wife. Instead of opening her mind and trying to understand, she burst into tears of self pity. "That's the way he is, all the time," she said, "always finding fault with me!"

The next day she went at him about that. And yet she says she would do anything in the world to bring back the old harmony. Anything, I am afraid, but try to realize that there is something inherent in the masculine nature that resents being "cabbined, cribbed, confined," even by love and good intentions.

Had ship's anchor fall on my knee and leg, and knee swelled up and for six days I could not move it or get help. I then started to use MINARD'S LINIMENT and two bottles cured me. PROSPER FERGUSON.

"Doesn't seem as if I could stand it, sometimes," he went on, "if I'm reading, she'll ask what I'm reading. If I sit thinking, she wants to know what I'm thinking about. She's always asking me what I've been doing during the day. There's nothing I'm ashamed of (proudly), but I hate this giving an account of myself all the time."

"And then, she's always at me to do this or that--things she thinks I ought to do--write my mother, or something like that. I suppose she's right, sometimes, but her keeping at me, so, only sets me more against it. And if I ever show a fool as to say anything decent about another woman, Goodnight! She's everlasting-ly at me about that! Queer, I should think her so pretty, when I always used to prefer blondes (his wife is a blonde). And what was I talking to this other woman about, coming up the street, when I looked so interested? And maybe I wouldn't be so cranky if I was married to her."

About Getting Home Early. "Then, if we go anywhere she's always at me about getting there ear-

Your Boys and Girls.

A good rainy day game for the kiddies is played as follows: Dolls and toys have a way of breaking, it is true, but tears and pennies may be saved if they are laid away in a box--the crippled chair, the tailless dog, and the headless doll--for a rainy day when the children are clamoring for something besides soap bubbles to play.

Then the trainload of wounded is brought in, the dolls and animals are put to bed each being numbered with a little ticket and the furniture is placed on the table, where nails and hammer and glue are ready for use. As each number is called, the patients are operated upon with needle and glue, and when they are once more hale and hearty the furniture is taken in hand and the hospital is turned into a carpenter shop.

MOTHER'S DAY.

They will not come to you to-day To kiss you in their old-time way. No petted tributes, white and pink. May show how much of you they think.

And yet, oh mothers, brave and fair, Because they love you they are there. Because they honor you they chance The pain and death in troubled France.

On Picard and Flanders' field Your living tributes stand revealed: They are your tributes, mothers, all! They who are not afraid to fall. If, falling, they shall pledge to you The memory of manhood true, And leave, as their bequest, the things Which longer live than crowns of kings.

Oh, mothers of the boys who die, They speak your tributes more than I. They will not come to you to-day To kiss you in the old-time way. And yet because they love you so, To die for you they bravely go. In all they are, in all they do, Mothers of men, they honour you.

Tag Day for Red Cross

On Thursday next, May 23rd, the customary annual Tag Day in connection with the Empire Day Red Cross collection will take place. This year in view of the heavy requirements of the W.P.A., the proceeds of the tagging process will be given to our local organization, because every dollar so appropriated can be made do the work of two through the fact that it will be used in buying materials to be converted into Red Cross requirements in the workrooms of the organization in this city. The large collection, however, an appeal on behalf of which is being made all over the country, is for the Imperial Red Cross organization, which, according to its circulars, needs assistance now to a greater extent than ever heretofore in the progress of the war. In a circular recently issued by the Joint Committee of the Red Cross Society and the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, it was intimated that the organization had run behind to the extent of nearly one million dollars, though in spite of the enormous increase in outlay, the administration expenses had declined from sevenpence to less than fourpence in the pound. From the beginning of the war until the end of the last financial year (October 20) the public had subscribed roughly $4 million pounds for war purposes, and last year alone the Committee spent over 3½ million pounds more than the totals of the two previous years together. The Committee therefore appeals specially for more generous assistance if possible than in the past, and we trust that the fact that the organization is running behind in its financial activities will inspire our people to greater effort. Put briefly, the position in 1917 was that the income increased by one-eighth, while the expenditure doubled, and this year with the increased number of men from all parts of the Empire engaged in the war, a still larger outlay will, it is believed, become necessary. Perhaps the best evidence of the service which the Imperial Red Cross organization is doing is that afforded by the fact that the kindred organization in America recently made a contribution of half a million dollars towards its funds in recognition of the service it had given and would continue to give to American soldiers on the western front.

Exemption Tribunal.

The Exemption Tribunal at Saturday's sitting, held in the War Department that cable operators were to be considered essential to keep the wires going. Four cable operators were exempted on those grounds.

The following exemptions were granted: Llewellyn Carter, under (b); John Fitzgerald, under (b); Robert C. Trapnell, under (a); Wilfred Mercer, under (a); Raymond Normanton, under (a); Philip J. Skanes, under (b); Charles Grace, under (b); Thomas Bradbury, under (d); Gilbert Samson, under (c); William J. Walsh, under (b); Nathan Ralph, under (b); William F. Guy, under (c).

Seven applicants were disqualified, as follows: M. H. Kelly, Frederick Leslie, John S. Smith, Ambrose McDonald, Francis Sansom, Edgar Sansom, Lewis Sansom. Five applicants were sent for medical examination, and three cases were reserved. One applicant was given until the end of the month to prove that a son was with the U. S. soldiers. Those coming under class (d) when ever the applicant claims exemption on the grounds of main support, cause much trouble as it is necessary to prove the bona fide of the claim. To date 29 applications have been called. There have been 31 allowed exemptions; 13 refusals to exempt; and 25 deferred.

ALL ABOUT IRELAND.

LONDON, May 18. Ireland and Irish affairs again have come to the fore. Discovery of a German plot involving certain persons in Ireland was announced last night in Dublin by the issuance of a proclamation signed by Edward Shortt, Secretary for Ireland in the name of the Lord Lieut. Viscount Curzon. The proclamation asserts that British subjects resident in Ireland have entered into treasonable communication with the German effort and calls for drastic measures to put down the German plot. Voluntary recruiting is urged in order that the Irish may assist in putting down the conspiracy. Communication with the British is slow but a despatch to the press says that a large number of persons already have been arrested in Dublin and other parts of Ireland. The reference to voluntary enlistment in the proclamation appears to confirm predictions that the Government is changing its policy concerning the Irish in Ireland owing to Nationalists and Sinn Fein opposition. report became current in Ireland Friday that the Government contemplated launching a recruiting scheme in the lines of that formerly conducted by the Earl of Derby in England. It gained much prominence in Irish papers and was discussed widely. However, a Dublin despatch to the Daily News says the report met with ridicule, the despatch adds "the atmosphere is completely unsuitable and it is doubtful if a single man with
