HURTING CANADA

Special to The Advertiser.
Kitchener, Oct. 16.—Gordon Waldron addressed an enthusiastic Liberal rally in behalf of W. D. Euler in Jackson hall, Elmira, tonight. The hall was filled long before the time for the meeting to begin.

On the platform was Daniel Hibner, former mayor of Kitchener and one of Canada's pioneer furniture manufacturers, who deplored the blue-ruin talk of Mr. Meighen, declaring that it was doing more to injure Canada than any political cry ever raised in any campaign. He endorsed the candidature of Mr. Euler, referring to his independent stand at Ottawa in behalf of North Waterloo and praising the former North Waterloo member for his splendid aggressiveness and his statesmanlike grasp of great national issues.

Mr. Euler was given a rousing ovation when he arose. He reiterated his stand for reasonable tariff to protect industries. He declared himself in favor of the amalgamation of the National railways.
The meeting was one of the most enthusiastic of the campaign, and was a tribute to Mr. Euler's record in the house of commons during the past eight years.

THREE ARE REMANDED ON ASSAULT CHARGES

Fourth Member of Zone Township Quartet Released On $1,000 Bail.

Special to The Advertiser.
Chatham, Oct. 16.—Maximum penalties were urged by Crown Attorney S. D. Smith, K. C., upon two young men and two young married women, the latter sisters, at the close of their trial in county police court today on various charges which were a sequel to a brawl in a Zone township dwelling last Sunday night.

The accused were William Daner of Windsor, Archie Rennie of Walkerville, Mrs. Joyce McCarty, and Mrs. June St. Louis of Pike Creek. They were all charged with violations of the O. T. A. and with assaulting and causing bodily harm to Norman St. Louis, husband of Mrs. June St. Louis. The two women also faced charges of assault.

Evidence showed that the quartet visited the St. Louis place, taking with them a supply of beer and whiskey. St. Louis alleged that during a quarrel with his wife, which ensued after he took her to task for being in the company of a strange man, that his sister-in-law, Mrs. McCarty struck him down with a beer bottle, rendering him unconscious.
The charges were denied. Reserving judgment on all charges, the magistrate remanded three to jail for a week, but Rennie, whose wife was reported to be seriously ill, was released on cash bail of $1,000.

HOME

HOME!

Home is the sailor, home from sea.

Home from the conquests of peace—home with the prize of goodwill—the most popular sailor in all the world is home again in England.

A thousand years and more the little sea-girt isle has sent out its emissaries—some to carry civilization to the uttermost parts of the world, some to negotiate treaties, some to lay the course for commerce, some in the spirit of high adventure, some to fight "for England, home and beauty"—all to carry the flag across the Seven Seas.

Great as have been the maritime glories of days that are gone, none have appealed to the imagination of a wider world than the voyage that has ended at Portsmouth.

The spirit of goodwill accompanied the Repulse wherever it went. It was the outward and visible sign of Great Britain's goodwill to others. And it found a response in the hearts of British Dominions and foreign lands alike.

No other person could have so signally typified that British spirit of goodwill unless it were the King himself. No other person could have magnetized the great world over the seas so effectively as the Sailor Prince.

He conquered the world with a smile.

With royal dignity he combined the sincere desire for brotherhood among the peoples of the world, the faculty of sensing popular feeling and the tact and capacity to crystallize that feeling into goodwill.

Bonds of Empire strengthened—international relations happily established—hope for world peace strengthened—with such a triumph the Prince comes home from sea.

H.M.S. Repulse Arrives in England after Epoch-Making Cruise

The arrival of H. M. S. Repulse at Portsmouth completes a six and a half months' cruise that sets a new record for royal touring.

Between 25,000 and 30,000 miles were covered on this trip by H. R. H. the Prince of Wales.

While in West and South Africa and South America the peoples he visited vied with each other in entertainment. Aboard the battleship various forms of recreation were arranged, chief among them being the music so dear to the Prince.

Naturally, in music as in everything else, the world's best was provided.

Through the medium of Duo-Art the Prince had available the greatest pianists of modern times, a library of Duo-Art rolls being installed on the Repulse, with a magnificent Duo-Art Reproducing Piano.

Duo-Art re-creates the actual interpretation of the artist. When fancy suggested a Padrewski selection, it was just like summoning that virtuoso to the royal presence—his playing was reproduced with every shade of touch, tempo and tone.

Or if the mood was for lighter airs, as an accompaniment to the Prince's banjo—the Duo-Art library provided a selection as varied as the islands of the Atlantic. And what entrancing dance music, as the Prince "slipped across the summer of the world"! Perhaps never before at the Equator were such dreamy waltzes or perfect jazz heard as on this trip. For only where there's Duo-Art can dance music be reproduced so alluringly.

Duo-Art is the greatest musical triumph of all time. To those who are interested in this wonderful advancement in Music, it is gratifying that a Duo-Art Reproducing Piano and a Duo-Art Library contributed so much to the enjoyment of the royal party.

Course taken by Repulse from Portsmouth to Africa, across Atlantic to South America and home.

In Canada, the DUO-ART is installed exclusively in the Mason & Risch—"The Piano with a Soul."
