RUSSIA HAS DECIDING WORD

Whether There Shall Be War or Peace.

HER MINIMUM PROPOSITION

Stated in Japan's Last Note — Russia's Answer Must Be Definite, Says Minister Takahira.

(By Special C. P. R. Wire.)
Washington, Dec. 30.—With war staring this country in the face Kozzo Takahira, the Japanese minister, was as calm as any official in Washington tonight, and he sat at his desk at a later hour preparing dispatches for transmission to Tokio. Having called at the state department and informed the officials of the gravity with which the Tokio government views the situation, Mr. Takahira said tonight he, with the other officials of the Japanese foreign service, were awaiting the answer of Russia to Japan's last note before making a second communication to the powers. Mr. Takahira said he would be glad to see the answer. "I can only say that Japan is waiting the arrival of Russia's reply to her last note. I think war is inevitable in fact in all the steps of our negotiations with Russia. In our last note we have stated the minimum proposition which we are prepared to accept. That country has the deciding vote whether there is to be war or peace in the far east. We have done our best. Mr. Takahira expressed the hope that war may yet be averted, but he regards the outlook as gloomy."

It can be further stated that Japan urged in her last note that the St. Petersburg government send a definite answer at the earliest possible moment. An indefinite answer will be regarded as wholly unsatisfactory.

AN ULTIMATUM.
Berlin, Dec. 29.—While the German government denies that Japan has informed the European powers that she has sent the contrary to the Russian government, information emanating from official circles here late tonight, Germany admits the possibility that the members of the Japanese cabinet, in their conversations with foreign diplomats, may have mentioned Germany's readiness to accept an ultimatum. It is believed that Japan has sent an ultimatum, and will continue to do so until she has been informed to the contrary by the Russian government. Japan paid $7,500,000 for the warships Moreno and Albatross.

A GERMAN VIEW.
The Post, in its morning view, a lengthy leading editorial on the Russo-Japanese situation in the far east. The editorial, which bears the evident marks of inspiration by the German government, in conclusion is still such that the hope of a peaceful solution of the difficulties need not be abandoned. The editorial ridicules the assertion of the French press that Germany is urging Russia to a policy of neutrality. It says that Germany is not a party to the Russo-Japanese war, and that no dependence can be placed on newspaper sympathetic articles in the newspapers of Western Europe. In conclusion, the Post says: "The Russian has not yet been crossed. If all the chances of such a struggle may be regarded as purely objective, from the standpoint taken by Japan, Japan must reach the conclusion that a peaceable understanding is best."

PEARL CAPTURE.
London Dec. 31.—The Daily Mail's London correspondent says that the Russian volunteer fleet cruiser Krizan and Ekaterinof, carrying armaments of war and munitions for the far east, have been reported to the Black sea as the possibility of their capture is feared.

Royal Cooper Vilas, of Chicago, president of the Pyle National Electric Lighting Company, is dead at his residence there. He was born at Ogdensburg, N. Y. Until seven years ago he was general freight traffic manager of the Erie Railroad, and at one time was president of the New York Air Brake Company.

Some were Burned to Death, many were Suffocated by Gas, while Life was Trampled Out of Scores.

ALL WITHIN TEN MINUTES OF TIME.

1,300 People, Nearly all Women and Children, Were in the Iroquois Theatre When the Fire Started—An Awful Panic Ensued While the Roaring Flames Rapidly Spread—Appalling Details of the Catastrophe.

(By Special C. P. R. Wire.)

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 30.—About 560 people were killed in ten minutes this afternoon during a fire in the Iroquois Theatre, the newest, the largest, and as far as human power could make it, the safest theatre in Chicago. Estimates of dead and injured vary. The police account of the dead is 536. The estimate of the newspapers is 562. Besides this there are 35 people missing at midnight, the majority of whom are probably among the dead in the morgue and various undertakers' establishments. Eighty-six of the dead have been positively identified. Ninety-two persons are known to be injured. A few of the dead were burned to death by fire, and scores were suffocated by gas, and scores were trampled to death in the panic that followed the mad plunge of the frightened audience for the exits. It will be many hours before the number of dead is accurately known, and many days before all of them will be identified. There are bodies lying by the dozens to-night in the undertaker rooms, in the police stations, and in the hospitals, from which nearly everything that could reveal their identity to those who knew them best, is gone. Their clothing is torn to rags or burned to cinders, and their faces have been trampled into an unrecognizable pulp by the crowd that fought and trampled them down as they fled for safety.

AN AFTERNOON FIRE.

Conflicting Accounts as to its Origin.

The fire broke out during the second act of the play "Mr. Blue Beard," the first production in the theatre since its erection. The theatrical company, which was very large, escaped to the street in safety, nearly all of them, however, being compelled to flee into the snow with no clothing but their stage costumes. A few members of the company sustained minor injuries, but none were seriously hurt.

THE CURTAIN STUCK.

Enabling the Flames to Spread With a Terrific Roar.

The fire in itself up to this time was not serious and possibly could have been checked had not the asbestos curtain failed to work. As soon as the fire was discovered, Eddie Poy, the comedian of the company, shouted to lower the curtain. It descended about half way and then stuck. The fire was thus given possession of a flue through which a strong draught set to the doors which had been thrown open in the front of the theatre. With a roar and a bound the flames shot out through the opening over the heads of the people on the first floor and up to those in the balcony, caught them and burned them to death. Immediately following this rush of flames which lifted the entire roof of the theatre from its walls, shattering the great skylight into fragments. As soon as the flames first appeared beyond the curtain a man in the rear of the hall shouted "Fire! Fire!" and the entire audience rose as one person and made for the doors. It is believed that the explosion was caused by the flames coming in contact with the gas reservoirs of theatre, causing them to burst. Will J. Davis, manager of the theatre, said, after the catastrophe, that if the people had remained in their seats and had not been excited by the cry of fire not a life would have been lost. This, however, is contradicted by the statements of firemen, who found the bodies of numbers of persons sitting in their seats.

There Came an Explosion

Their faces directed toward the stage as if the performance was still going on. It was the opinion of the firemen that these people were suffocated at once by the flow of gas and fire which came from behind the asbestos curtain.

As near as can be estimated at the present time about 1,300 people were in the theatre. Three hundred of these were on the first floor, the balance being in the two upper balconies, and in the hallways back of them. The theatre is modeled after the Opera Comique in Paris, and from the rear of each balcony there are three doors leading out to passage ways towards the front of the theatre. Two of these doorways are at the end of the balcony, and one being in the centre. The audience, in its rush for the outer air, seems to have, for the greater part, chosen to flee to the left entrance and to attempt to make its way down the eastern stairway, leading into the lobby of the theatre.

DEATH TRAPS.

Greatest Loss of Life at the Balcony Doorways.

Outside of the people burned and suffocated by gas it was in these two doorways on the first and second balconies that the greatest loss of life occurred. When the firemen entered the building the dead were found stretched in a pile reaching from the head of the stairway at least eight feet from the door back to a point about five feet in the rear of the door. This mass of dead bodies in the centre of the doorway reached to within two feet of the top of the passageway. All of the corpses at this point were women and children.

The right of life which must have taken place at these two points, is something that is simply beyond human power to adequately describe. Only a faint idea of its horror could be derived from the aspect of the bodies as they lay. Women on top of these masses of dead had been overtaken by death as they were crawling on their hands and knees over the bodies of those who had endeavored to pull down and trampled under foot as they fought for their own lives.

AN APPALLING SIGHT.

Police and Firemen Working Amongst the Layers of Dead.

As the police removed layer after layer of dead in these doorways the sight became too much even for the police and firemen, hardened as they are to such scenes. The bodies were in such an inextricable mass and so tightly were they jammed between the sides of door and walls that it was impossible to lift them one by one and carry them out. The only possible thing to do was to seize a limb or some other portion of body and pull with main strength. Men worked at the task with tears running down their cheeks, and the sobs of the rescuers could be heard even in the hall below where they lay, evidently suffocated by the rush of people for the doors, and killed with hardly a chance to raise from their chairs. One man was found with his back bent nearly double, his spinal column having been fractured as he was thrown backwards. A woman was found on nearly in half by the back of a seat, the having been forced over it face downwards.

In the aisles nearest to the doors the scenes were harrowing in the extreme. Bodies lay in every conceivable attitude, half-naked, the look on their faces revealing some of the agony which must have preceded their death.

Faces Trampled On.

There were scores and scores of people whose faces had literally been trampled completely off by the heels of those who rushed over them, and in one aisle the body of a man was found with hardly a vestige of clothing or flesh above his waist line. The entire upper portion of his body had been cut into mince-meat and carried away by the feet of those who trampled him, and a severe was carefully made with a hope of finding his head, but at a late hour to-night it had not been discovered, and all that will ever tell his friends who he was is the color and appearance of his clothing on the lower limbs, and this is in such a condition as to be hardly recognizable.
