—The London Shipping Gazette, in a recent leading article, cites the evidence of the captain at an inquiry concerning the loss of the Loch Awe as powerful testimony of the Value of oil in quieting the sea, and refers to the similar experience of the Montrose lifeboat crew, who made two careful experiments. —Mr. Salvini, son of the famous Italian tragedian, made his first appearance on any stage last Thursday, appearing at the Union Square theatre, New York, as "Geo. Duhamel" in "Article 47." The Evening Post says of him: "He is still very young, only twenty years of age, and his figure is not yet fully set, but his presence and carriage are good, his voice is rich, deep, and strong, and his face is flexible and expressive. Lord Wilton, just deceased, was brother of the late Marquis of Westminster and Lord Ebury, and succeeded his natural grandfather in the earldom of Wilton under a special patent. He also inherited from him very valuable estates. He was a voluptuary, and in early life a debauchee, and was never of the slightest use to the body politic; but, inasmuch as he rode well to hounds at Melton, and gave underniable dinners, especially to turfmen, in Grosvenor square, it was the fashion among a certain class in "high life" to estimate his qualities very highly. He married for his first wife an aunt of Lord Derby, by whom he had several children.

—The British Medical Journal says the revelations made from time to time by medical officers of health describe so much ignorance and neglect, and such fatal sources of disease, that it is not surprising that "milk epidemics" are so numerous. Dr. Goldie has been investigating the probability of the spread of a certain epidemic which has just been visiting Leeds through the medium of the milk supply. He has come to the conclusion that the way in which some of the milk supplies are stored in dairy houses where all the usual operations of a whole where all the of the late Marquis of Westminster and —I am told, says Edmund Yates in the London World, that, although on the days when she has a morning as well as an evening performance to go through, Mrs. Langtry feels fatigued, yet that she is, on the whole pleased and satisfied with her new career; that she is indefatigable in her study, and determined to take a high position in the dramatic profession on other and more solid grounds than those which first recommended her to the favor of a London audience. The Registry Office is already in course of erection, and Clearwater will anon be the Capital of the Disclear, therefore, as the surface of Clearwater itself, that those who buy on the ground floor or at the present auction must of necessity double or even quadruple their purchase money.
