SPEBCHES.

Speeches were delivered by Mayor McMurrich, J A Proctor, Ald Taylor, J B Hay, G C McLaughlin, R W Phipps and others.

Mayor McMurrich, in the course of a short address, remarked that protection might be considered a dead issue in the present elections, as both parties had, from epposite directions, reached the common conclusion that a high tariff, to meet the high and increasing expenditure of the country, would be necessary for, at all events, a considerable period.

would be necessary for, at all events, a considerable period.

Mr. Phipps replied, complimenting his worship on the eloquent and agreeable manner of his speech, but pointing out that it possessed on the main point in question, no argumentative force. For, said Mr. Phipps, supposing the reformers get into power, and I say to them, "Now give us a continuance of protection, as you promised," they may reply: "We promised no such thing; we said high tariff would be necessary to meet the high expenditure, and we are going to give you one. But we will put that high tariff on tea and coffee, and on raw sugar, and on the many articles you cannot make in this country. But as for those articles which you can make here, and on which you have placed duties for protective purposes, we mean to lower those duties for protective purposes, we mean to lower those duties very considerably indeed, for, as we have always said, we are free traders." If, said Mr. Phipps, the reform leaders would have promised to carry out the experiment of protection fairly they should leng age have had my hearty support. But the valuation hardly high enough and suggested that the committee should obtain a copy of the evidence given before the arbitrators for reference in future cases. The committee regarded the suggestion as timely and valuable, and decided to act upon it.

THE TRADES COUNCIL.

There was a full attendance of delegates at the fortnightly meeting of the trades and labor council at Dufferin hall last night. President Beecher occupied the chair. A long and profitable discussion took place on the factory act, the relations existing between members of parliament and workingmen, the Chinese immigration question and other matters of interest to working people. It is gratifying to be able to record the clear, able and intelligent manner in which the members of the council carry on their debates. Every man who got up last night had something to say, and he knew how to say it The business was conducted quietly and in order, and without waste of time. The legislation committee reported with reference to the withdrawal of the factory act of which a report was brought up at the last meeting, this having been done by the government without assigning any reasons and in the face of the very faithful report of the factory commission which in itself fully demonstrates the necessity for such legislation, and we would recommend that all candidates for parliamentary honors should be interviewed as to what will be their action should they be returned to commistee.

clause securing to workmen their wages. The question of Chinese immigration has also been before the house of commons, and the committee recommended that a public meeting be called at an early date to consider the whole question of immigration. Other bills are under consideration, notably the seaman's criminal law amendment act, which the committee hopes to report upon at the next meeting. report upon at the next meeting.

The council had this report under consideration for over an hour. Mr. Duncan denounced the member for East Toronto for the manner in which he had trifled with the factory act. The government, he said, had also fooled the working people. To avoid further nonsense, Mr. Duncan recommended that the work people demand the forthcoming candidates to pledge themselves to further their interests, and every subsequent speaker insisted on the same being done. The members were in dead earnest on this point and candidates may prepare themselves for a severe catechising at the hands of the work people during the coming elections and for a cool recention. coming elections, and for a cool reception if they do not fill the bill, so to speak. Mr. Mor spoke strongly on this point. The immigration question was the subject of considerable remark. While no member objected to immigrants coming here from Europe, still they protested against the government using the people's taxes to bring immigrants out to compete against them. They were willing that everbody should have a fair field, but they would not submit to the new comer being assisted at
