THE DAYLIGHT BURGLARS SENT UL FOR TRIAL

what the Detectives Overheard the Prisoners Say to Each Other in the Cellz-Another Charge Against the Edgr Archer.—Picked Out By a Young Woman Whom He Gagged.

The four persons whose names have been in "everybody's mouth for the past few days and whose deeds have made them famous were on view at the Police Court yesterday morning. The room was crewded with apectators. William Archer was the first to climb the prisoner's stairway and make his appearance in the dock. His countenance is one that does not give the spectator a favorable impression. His thick lips and the prominence of his lower law indicate a degged determination sch and the prominence of his lower law indicate a degged determination sch and the prominence of his lower law indicate a degged determination sch and the prominence of his lower law indicate a degged determination sch and the prominence of his lower law indicates a degged determination sch and the law of the law of the law of the professional backers. His younger brother, Edward, who came next, bears a marked likeness to the first a maned, but his face has not entirely lost the innocent look of boyhood. Neither of the Archer boys has a sign of the down that presages the mustache. Bennett was the third to enter the dock. He looked as though he felb he had had a stroke of hard luck. Norris, the last of the quartet, stood outside the dock, and was the only one who bore a repentant air. He evidently felt that he had been in bad company.

Coll Denison was in his place, and at his right as Melville Parker, J.P., of Oakville, and Justices Baxter and Miller eat at the magistrate's right.

As Mr. Ammon Davis declared only three men had takes part in the robbery of his store Crown Attorney Curry withdrew the charge against the younger Archer. The evidence in all the cases proved the facts as already published. About $150 worth of the professional provides and the contract of the contract

How long have you been here?

Archer: Since 9 p.m. How much would you give for your chance?

Bennett: I have no chance. They have my wife locked up at No. 1. I would like te get her out of it.

Bennett: Did they get you to squeal?

Archer: No; they told me my brother Will squealed.

Bennett: What is the best thing to do?

Archer: Yes. You don't intend to open into by parents not giving them a trade.

Archer: I would not care a damn if it Archer: I would not care a damn if it was not for the old woman. The disgrace will kill her and I will never see her again.

The same trick was worked on Norris and William Kelly at No. 2 by Detective Slemin. Here, too, valuable evidence was obtained, which clearly shows that these stated that the plan was made up that the four should do the job, and that two or three days in succession they went to the corner of Adelaide and Church-streets, but at last he repented and refused to undertake the job. On the evening of the day in which the attempt was made he was met by the others in Louisa-street and was told that the job was done.

by the others in Louisa-street and was told that the job was done.

William Archer was also positively identified as one of the two men who had entered the house of George Smith in Lakeview-avenue, about six weeks ago. It will be remembered that two men entered that house on the plea that they wanted to that house on the plea that two men entered that house on the plea that they wanted to inspect the gas meter, and that they assaulted and gagged the servant, Emma Moff. They finally decamped without accomplishing anything. "The last I saw of them was their four legs flying over the back fence," said the servant. All were committed for trial.

Investments Carefully Made.

John J. Dixon & Co. received the following despatch over their private wire from H. Allen & Co., New York, to-day:

There were no features of particular interest in the market to-day. The opening was dull Co. New York, to-day:

There were no features of particular interest in the market to-day. The opening was dull and during the day there was very little activity. Considerable strength developed, especially during the afternoon, and the closing was firm. Burlington was strong, although generally there was some pressure brought to sell the grangers. Western Union was firm, then had a slight decline, and afterwards it advanced. The directors of Western Union met, but did not appoint a successor to Dr. Norvin Green. Mr. Eckert is prominently mentioned as possible new president of this corporation, but the chances are that there will be no change made until the next quarterly meeting. The market seemed to be in a waiting mood. As yet no one seems to know just what particular policy will be adopted by the Treasury Department to relieve the situation. Secretary Foster was down town, but left on the afternoon train for Washington. There will be a Cabinet meeting to-morrow and this official expects to lay before the President and the Cabinet the results of his conferences with the leading bankers of this city. He has announced that nothing will be made public until after a full discussion of the subject at Washington, and it is even possible that Mr. Carlisle, who is to be the new Secretary of the Treasury, will be consulted as to his views on the subject and as to the views of President-Elect Cleveland. Some more gold is going Wednesday, and while there seems to be no cause for alarm, so much has been said about the monetary situation and the continued outflow of gold that there does not seems to be no the views of President-Elect Cleveland.
