NO DEMAND FOR LIST OF SALARIES

Mayor Fails To Carry Out Plan Rumored He Announced SURPLUS IN WATERWORKS Balance of $10,000 Above Interest and Sinking Fund Reported

Although Mayor Wenige was present throughout the regular semi-monthly meeting of the Public Utilities Commission, held last night, and was given ample opportunity to carry out the announcement it is rumored he made, that he would demand publication of a complete list of all salaries paid to the employees of the commission, the mayor said nothing.

Just why he failed to carry out his threat is as yet a mystery, for he was quoted in a local paper last night as being prepared to make his demand at the earliest opportunity.

A number of important questions were discussed at the meeting, among them being the matter of completing the removal of overhead wires in the city's downtown district. General Manager Buchanan announced that Manager King, of the street railway, had asked if the commission would permit him to remove all high tension feed wires to a back street. Mr. Buchanan recommended that this be allowed, with the understanding that as soon as the back street wires were placed underground street railway wires would go also.

"If doesn't matter, there'll be no street cars by that time," remarked the mayor.

ACTION DEFERRED.

The matter of street lighting was discussed, but action was deferred until the long-promised conference between the City Council and utilities commission can be held. Mayor Wenige stated that this had been arranged for and would be held in due time.

"We are ready at any time to meet you and discuss the project," advised Chairman Vining, of the utilities commission.

Mr. Buchanan stated that the only solution of London's lighting troubles would be to double the lights on all

BOARD OF HEALTH GUTS ESTIMATES

Cost To Be Nearly $900 Below Last Year's Expenses NO SALARY INCREASES Dr. Downham Will Have To Pay Upkeep of His Auto

Cutting off all proposed salary increases and the amount set aside for Dr. Downham's car, the Board of Health last night slashed the estimates to nearly $900 below those of last year.

The board's estimates for this year now stand at $17,180, as compared with $18,888 last year. Mayor Wenige insisted there should be no salary increases at this time. There are 5,000 citizens of London who have had no increase for a year, and he pointed out that by metering all services in the city a saving in water consumption of approximately 1,500,000 could be made. This amount would total well over $3,000, or a sufficient sum to meet interest and sinking fund payments on debentures used in purchasing meters. In addition to this there was also the rental of meters, which would be another source of revenue.

The statement of the waterworks department indicated that total revenue from private consumers during the year amounted to $206,500. This, together with municipal service charges and miscellaneous income, brings the total revenue up to $240,643.50.

Expenses totaled during the year $112,833.37, as against $115,632 in 1921. The general manager states that there has been a general downward trend in costs for some time.

The largest individual expenditure in connection with the expense account was $23,554.48 for the Rideau street plant. The Springbank plant required $17,722, and general expenses amounted to $14,173.

These amounts are slightly increased for 1923, with the exception of total operating costs, which Mr. Buchanan estimates will be $110,500, a decrease of nearly $7,000. The gross surplus for the year was $122,731, and it is expected that this will be increased to $130,000 in 1923. There was no surplus in 1921.

Out of this gross surplus, in addition to debenture charges and sinking fund, capital expenditures amounting to $14,842 must be met, leaving a net surplus for the department of $115,000.

In the playgrounds department the total appropriation required will reach approximately $21,000, a portion of this being a deficit carried over from last year. The City of London appropriation amounts to $20,000. Thames Park stands high in the list of proposed expenditures, the sum of $9,230 being set aside for this center. Queen's comes next with $2,500.

The total for the parks department in 1923 from the City of London is $25,000. Other revenue will make a total appropriation available for parks of $33,613.41. Springbank stands high in the list of parks with a total requirement of $12,000. Victoria comes next with $5,100, and the zoo will require $3,600.

STRONG BILL AT LOEW'S THEATER

Thomas Meighan in Fine Picture and Good Vaudeville

Humorous, wholesome and human. The three qualifications aptly sum up "Back Home and Broke," which opened an engaging and popular balance of the week at Loew's Theater yesterday. Thomas Meighan plays the part of a young man who leaves his home to make his fortune in the West. He is supposed to be a millionaire, but his home town folk, having given him the cold shoulder immediately it was known that he had returned, are surprised to find him a pauper. The picture is a most interesting way. Lila Lee is the leading woman, and possibly the best in any recent production has these two artists been shown to better advantage.

The story was written by George Ads, the well-known humorist, and into its plot he has woven some subtle touches characteristic of his work. The picture tells of a young man in the Great West, his supposedly wealthy father having died, he is left by and his mother almost penniless. Oil supplies the means which bring him back to fortune, but his home town folk, having given him the cold shoulder immediately it was known that he had returned, are surprised to find him a pauper. The picture is a most interesting way. Lila Lee is the leading woman, and possibly the best in any recent production has these two artists been shown to better advantage.

VALENTINO IN GRAND'S FEATURE

Idol of Screen Scores In "Stolen Moments"

Words of love, written during periods of infatuation for a false lover, how often they reflect on the happiness in later years and lead to complications that often have the effect of destroying happiness altogether. This is the theme around "Stolen Moments," which opened yesterday at the Grand Theater for an engagement lasting for the remainder of the week. Rodolphe Valentino, the lover of the movie world, and whose performances are always a source of keen enjoyment for the followers of the silver screen, takes the leading role.

The engagement at the Grand is the first release of the picture in Canada, and the size of the audiences yesterday indicate the large following Valentino has among movie fans in London. The leading woman is Marguerite Namara and she is well adapted to her part.

In "Stolen Moments" Valentino plays the part of Jose Dalmarez, a native of Brazil, but living in America, and an author of note. Vera Blaine (Marguerite Namara) becomes infatuated with the handsome foreigner and her letters to him are of the warmest type. He proves false, however, and later she becomes the wife of a promising young attorney, Hugh Conway. Dalmarez leaves for Brazil, where he betrays a daughter of a high Government official, whose mother fosters for him nothing but intense hatred.

His departure from Brazil made necessary as the result of his escapade, Dalmarez returns to his old haunts and immediately centers his attentions on his former sweetheart, now the wife of the district attorney, using her letters as a means of coercion to gain his ends. Dalmarez is murdered one night following a visit to the home of the attorney's wife and the evidence, though her husband is not aware of it, points strongly to her as the culprit. The solution of the mystery comes from an unexpected quarter and entirely clears the wife of the responsibility for the crime.

An Al St. John comedy, and a Pathe news reel are added features.

DUSTIN FARNUM IN FINE PHOTOPLAY

Scores In "White Justice Waits" At Patricia

One of the most pleasing photo-plays shown at the Patricia Theater in some time is "White Justice Waits," with the ever-popular star, Dustin Farnum. In the leading role, "The offering is one of exceptional merit and should play to crowded houses for the balance of the run.

In the singing and dancing act of dainty little Miss Josephine Le Bourdais and Marion Kane, Manager Stewart has secured possibly the best offering of its kind that has ever appeared in London. Josephine is indeed a child wonder and a dancer who will go far in the profession should she decide to continue on the stage, and her little partner, Marion Kane, of Detroit, were forced to respond to several well-deserved encores. These children are ethereal Le Bourdais being especially delightful.

The Century comedy was good, while the 15th chapter of Buffalo Bill, the big serial picture, was one continual thrill.

"White Justice Waits" is a William Fox production directed by Edward J. Durnin, who has packed the picture with stunts and rousing action. Dustin Farnum is seen at the opening of the story as a gold prospector. On the day that he discovers the long-sought metal in quantities he returns home only to find that his wife has left home with the leader of a gang of bandits, and later he joins the band.

While working with the bandits the desperadoes rob a church and bring the loot to be divided. Farnum wins all the spoils from them and when he returns to the church he meets a youngster of seven years of age to whom he is strangely attracted.

In a near-by town Farnum finally meets his wife, who explains that she was kidnapped by the robber leader and did not elope with him as was first suspected. Furthermore, she has been hunting for her husband for seven years. Farnum's joy is complete when he finds out that the lad he is so fond of is really his own son.

The settings are extremely picturesque and Mr. Farnum is supported by an excellent cast, including Irene Rich, Earl Metcalf, Frankie Lee, Hester Sarno, Peaches Jackson and Getchen Hartman.

ASKS EXAMINATION BEFORE MARRIAGE

Stringent Laws to Prevent Desertion of Family Are Recommended.

A Dominion law providing for a physical and mental examination of all who intend to marry was recommended by Dr. H. W. Hill at a meeting of the London Social Service Council last night.

Special attention was drawn to the increased number of family desertions in London by T. D. McCullough, secretary of the council. He suggested more strict laws which would compel the husband to provide for his family.

He suggested many improvements for present social conditions, including: Im-

GLADKE PLAYERS AT THE MAJESTIC

Large Audience Sees Capable Company's Inaugural

The Marie Gladke Players opening their local season at the Majestic Theater last night at popular prices, were greeted by a large house, and to say that the audience enjoyed the play would be putting it mildly. The highest admission price charged was 20 cents, and they kept up the pace set last night in a three-act comedy "Here Comes the Bride."

Miss Gladke has a pleasing presence and made an instant hit with her audience. She carried the play along with a vim and dash that was most refreshing. Tillie McDonald, as a slavey, was also very good, and the same can be said for Freda McCree, as Dolorie, an actress out for herself and herself only. Dixie Malone handled a difficult part most successfully.

Herbert O'Connor, who played opposite Miss Gladke last night, showed that he has had much experience in theatrical work. Tom O'Dare, a gay old sport from a small town, was possibly the best of the men, while Mack Allan and Will Bailey were also very good.

Vaudeville specialties by members of the company were introduced between acts and that the audience appreciated their songs and ruminations could be gathered from the hearty applause they received.

Mr. O'Connor announced between the second and third acts that the players would put on a two-act play, and that on Monday and Thursday nights two tickets would be given for the price of one. There would be a revival of old-time favorites, including East of Eden, but that party will be postponed until New York would also be staged. The company had a splendid list of plays to choose from having played for 18 months in Lansing, Mich., as well as Pontiac and Brantford.

Miss Gladke and her players should play to large houses during the remainder of the week.

A new serial, "There Shall Be No More Deaths" is in the hands of the Chicago Herald and Examiner. Circulation over a million. Buy it to-day.—Adv.
