

1. a request for his extradition is not received by the requested State within thirty days of his apprehension, or
2. the warrant, certificate or other document, or copy thereof, required by Article 8 and sufficient evidence to warrant his extradition are not produced within forty-five days from the date of his apprehension, or within such further time as the requested State or in the case of Canada a competent authority, directs.

Article 14

The release of the fugitive or dismissal of the proceedings under Article 13 shall not prevent extradition proceedings again being initiated if, subsequent to the time mentioned in that Article, the documents or other evidence required thereby are produced.

Article 15

A fugitive shall not be extradited until after the expiration of fifteen days from the day of his committal for extradition, or if, according to the law of the requested State, proceedings are taken to test the validity of the committal, until after the decision is given in such proceedings.

Article 16

If extradition is granted, the requested state shall cause the fugitive to be surrendered to the persons who are authorized by the requesting State to receive him and such persons may convey the fugitive within the jurisdiction of the requesting State.

Article 17

The requested State may postpone the surrender of a fugitive in order that he may be prosecuted and punished for an offence within the jurisdiction of the requested State.

Article 18

A fugitive who has not been conveyed out of the requested State within sixty days after his committal for extradition, or if proceedings are taken to test the validity of the committal within sixty days after the decision in such proceedings, may be released and the requested State may refuse to extradite him for the same offence.

Article 19

(1) When a request for extradition is granted, the requested State shall, so far as its law allows, hand over to the requesting State all articles (including sums of money):

- (a) which may serve as proof of the offence; or
- (b) which have been acquired by the fugitive as a result of the offence and are in his possession.

(2) If the articles in question are liable to seizure or confiscation in the territory of the requested State, the latter may, in connection with pending proceedings, temporarily retain them or hand them over on condition that they are returned.

(3) These provisions shall not prejudice the rights of the requested State or of any persons other than the fugitive. When these rights exist, the articles shall on request be returned to the requested State without charge as soon as possible after the end of the proceedings.
