

"And whereas there also exists an extreme agricultural depression largely due to our inability to sell our wheat and other agricultural products at profitable prices, thereby contributing to unemployment;

"And whereas the government has introduced as a remedy for the existing economic depression a steeply graded increase in our tariff schedules:

"While this House welcomes the assurance of the Prime Minister that prices will not be raised, this House is not convinced that any adequate means of enforcement is provided.

"Further, this House regrets that there is no definite provision for safeguarding the standards of labour.

"This House is of the opinion that the proposals of the Government do not constitute a permanent or general cure for unemployment.

"In particular they will not enable us to secure markets for our agricultural products.

"In general this House is further of the opinion that a solution of our problem can be found only by the adoption of co-operative principles in production and distribution, and by the public control of credit."

And a Debate arising thereon, the said Debate was, on motion of Mr. Campbell, adjourned.

A Message was received from the Senate informing this House that the Senate had passed the following Bill, without any amendment:—

Bill No. 2, An Act for the granting of aid for the Relief of Unemployment.

At eleven o'clock, p.m., Mr. Speaker adjourned the House without question put, pursuant to Standing Order 7, until to-morrow, at three o'clock, p.m.

GEORGE BLACK,

Speaker.
