

April 30th, 1930.

Joseph P. Chamberlain, Esq.,
510 Kent Hall,
Columbia University,
New York.

Dear Mr. Chamberlain,

Let me acknowledge your note of the 29th April, intimating that the meeting of the Advisory Committee on International Relations will be held during the weekend of May 30th.

It so happens that that is our Convocation week, or, as you would say, Commencement week. The degree-conferring ceremony takes place on the 29th, and it may be possible for me to leave that evening for New York. If it is possible, I shall gladly go. I shall send you definite information a little later in the month.

Ever yours faithfully,

Principal.
