"Durward" Fall and Winter Overcoats

American tourists and visitors have always been delighted with big range, fall weight and winter weight overcoats, shown by the Simpson store. Boat trips, cool evenings, and trips in the northern country demand that you have an overcoat either in the light weight or in some of those warm blanket cloths. Then another consideration—you pay for the famous English Durward overcoats less money here than anywhere on the continent. The materials used in these famous English coats are the finest tweeds and blanket cloths that England can produce. They are made by individual tailors, who are specialists. They are perfect fitting, well draped garments. We have just unpacked a number of these excellent Durward coats, and would mention one line in particular. Made from a choice English tweed, in two colors, plain brown and plain light gray, with either the plain shoulder or the Raglan shoulder, single-breasted, buttoned through, fine silk sleeve linings.
