EEF steak and gravy. The best steak for this is the reasonably priced flank as it has no waste of bone or gristle. Score it well on both sides after removing all the tissue and rub flour into the cuts and over the entire surface. Heat two tablespoons of dripping and when this smokes place the steak in it. Cover and let it cook until you know the flour is commencing to brown. Turn it now, cover again and cook as before. Finish cooking slowly, keeping the cover over the meat. Dish on a heated Procession of the Blessed Sacplatter and cover. Make the gravy by blending two tablespoons of flour with the dripping and meat juices in the frying pan. When this mixture is mooth pour on a pint and a half of cold milk, or milk and cold water. Stir continually until it is as thick as you like it. If the flour browns too much in the fat it will not thicken the milk, but if it does not brown a little the gravy will lack the rich flavor you want.

Stuffed corn beef. This is a different way of cooking this familiar meat. Select a lean, chunky piece and after cooking or soaking it in fresh water, to remove the brine; make several deep incisions in it. Fill these cuts with bread stuffing, highly seasoned with pepper and onion. The the stuffed meat tightly in a cloth, dip it in vinegar and then simmer it in boiling water. Allow twenty minutes for each pound of meat. Drain well beore untying the cloth.

Boiled sait pork is so often the target of the dictician's sharp arrows that no one ever admits that the men of the family like it or that they ever cook it for them, but cooking teachers know that there are times when it is cooked and eaten heartily, so why not prepare it in the most wholesome

Two pounds will not be too much for five men (young people and women seldom eat it). Scrape and wash the meat well and put to cook in three quarts of cold water, add a pinch of soda. At the end of an hour change the water, filling up with boiling water from the tea kettle. Boil it another hour, then place it on a tin in the oven; incline the tin so the green will be sold. draw away from the meat as it tries out. As often as a crust forms on the meat, turn it over until the whole outside is crisp. Serve with hot baked mass. Ham Balls: Chop cooked ham very fine, add other meat or not as you like, mix with cracker crumbs and egg. Form into balls and roll in flour, brown in a little butter.

Scotch Hash (sometimes called "Hamburg" hash): One pound of chopped raw beef browned in a tablespoon of dripping and butter, salt and pepper to season, and add one minced onion and three cold-boiled, diced potatoes and a little parsiey cut fine.
