Motion by deorder to allay all honest doubt upon the matter, we have expressed ourin the home rule bill all possible safeguards which would make it quite im-possible for an Irish government to mete out anything but justice and fair play. Personally, I speak with some authority upon this phase of the Irish question, because for seven years I-represented a constituency in the very heart of Ulster—he County of Fermanagh—I know the feeling which exists between the Nationalists and the Conservatives, between the Catholics and the Protestants. I am convinced, as we all are, that one of the first duties of the Irish parliament will be the plaintiff may how have leaved to discontinue on the terms approved of in Schlund v. Foster, in which case the costs of the motion will be in the cause. If the plaintiff desires to proer to shoulder in a logislative chamber to shoulder to shoulder the benefit of their own country. I believe I voice the sentition of the Nationalists and the Catholic people of Ireland when I say that we have no desire to retailate. We believe that the day is near at hand when these country men of ours who are opposed to us, will be by our side, and great as the provocation is, we are anxious to do nothing which would make the coming self-government of all Irishmen more difficult and further off. The whole world is practically in favor of home rule today—certainly the whole British Empire and the majority in the United Kingdom. If the Irish members had taken no part in the home rule division, there would still be a majority of 40 in favor of our parliament. The United States of America is in favor of home rule, and we have much sympathy in Europe. Eighty-four out of 108 Irish members are earnestly in favor of the present policy of the government. The United States of America is in favor of the present policy of the government. The United States of America is in favor of the present policy of the government. Judgment: I am of opinion that the order cannot stand. Such a question of law as is raised here should not be determined in chambers on an inter-locutory application, but should be set flown for argument as a question of law arising on the pleadings under C.R. 259 or preferably determined by the judge at the trial. I think the application should not have been made, and that the appeal should be allowed with costs here and below, pay-able forthwith.
