THE RECRUITING CAMPAIGN

The province of New Brunswick has n opportunity to be represented by a poor showing. Apparently many of the former Progressives have returned to the Republican ranks. Woman suffrage Muster the Apron-String Guards on the content of the Republican ranks. The province of New Brunswick has an opportunity to be represented by a regiment in the second Canadian contingent. It is true that Prince Edward Island recruits are to be incorporated with this body; but it is not anticipated that the number from that province will be large, and it is up to the young men of New Brunswick to fill up the ranks so that the province may be fittingly resolved. so that the province may be fittingly represented.

The campaign which was inaugurated at a meeting in the mayor's office yesterday has a larger purpose than that of arousing interest in recruiting for the present contingent. We are in for a long war. More contingents must go from Canada. It will be continually necessary to add more and more men to the ranks. It has been thrown at us as a reproach that of the first contingent which went little more than fifteen per cent were native born Canadians. Of those who have been recruited in the city of St. John since the first contingent sailed a large proportion are men born sailed a large proportion are men born in the Old Country. Canada must con-in the Old Country. Canada must contribute at least 100,000 men to the army of Sir John French before the war is over, and a greater number may be needed.

It is necessary, moreover, that our people should realise very cleary all that is involved in the war, in addition to the contribution of men. There is the Patriotic Fund, the Red Cross fund, the Belgian Fund, the care of the families of those who have gone to the front, and other important considerations which ought to be impressed very strongly up-on the minds of the people from one end of the province to the other. One of the of the province to the other. One of the reasons that there is so much more enthusiasm in upper province cities and towns is that public meetings have been held, the best speakers available have been secured, and public attention has been directed continually and effectively to the great crisis and the great task which now confront the Canadian people.

In the province to the other. One of the reasons that public at home and over sea, which are now being made, is that of the Barnardo Homes. The little quarterly published by the Barnardo Homes Association presents in its October issue some very interesting facts. There is a full report of the addresses given at a great meeting held on July 4, on the 48th anniversary of the founding of the Homes. The chairman was His Grace the Archbishop of Armagh, and he pointed out that durpublic at home and over sea, which are

Brunswick, and surely we may hope that it will not be discouraged by any militia officer in Fredericton or any other militia officer in Fredericton or any other militia officer in Fredericton or any other portion of the province.

THE WAR NEWS.

Off the coast of Chile yesterday a German squadron sank the British cruiser Monmouth, seriously damaged, if not destroyed, the cruiser Good Hope, on board of which was Rear Admiral Sir Christopher Cradock, and forced the War. This is the news that came from Valparaiso last night. Five German yeases opposed the British, and they were armed with more powerful guas. The question naturally arises why it has occurred that with British, French and Japanese naval yessels on the look out for them it should be possible for the German vessels to get together and thus easily relieve themselves of any further danger from three British craft. The exploit of the German squadron with make the South American sea route will make the South American sea route will make the South American sea route in Pacific waters much less safe for Brit.

further danger from three British craft. The exploit of the German squadron will make the South American sea route in Pacific waters much less safe for British commerce. The Emden and the Karlsruhe are not the only German vessels making trouble for their enemies.

There was also a German raid in the North Sea yesterday, which was carried close to the British coast, with the result that a British submarine and two mine drifters were sunk. On the whole, therefore, yesterday was a decidedly unfortunate one for the British navy. There was a rumor late last night that the German fleet was coming out from its base, and that a number of battleships and cruisers had put to sea from Kiel. Today's news will perhaps furnish fuller information.

Germany certainly needs all the success she can gain at sea, for she is gettern and the success she can success she can success she can success she can gain at sea, for she is getter

Germany certainly needs all the success she can gain at sea, for she is getting decidedly the worst of it on land.

The raid on Calais has failed, and the attempt to drive through the British lines farther south has not succeeded. The official reports show that the German army which attempted to drive back the Belgians has itself been driven back with heavy loss leaving its dead. back the Belgians has itself been driven back with heavy loss, leaving its dead and wounded on the field. At no point along the line in Belgium and France have the Germans been able to claim even a partial victory, while in the east the Russians claim to have driven the German armies back into East Prussia, and followed them over the German the lumber industry of this city and the lumber industry of this city and and followed them over the German border into that region. They are also continuing the offensive in Poland and universally esteemed.

A demonstration hostile to the Germans in Persia, shows that Britain and Russia have nothing to fear from that quarter, while the spiritual head of the Mohammedans in India, East Africa and Central Asia has counselled his people that, Turkey having drawn her sword in an unholy cause, it is the duty of Moslems to remain loyal in their allegiance to their own rulers. The German effort, therefore, to induce the Moslems to engage in a holy war has not lems to engage in a holy war has not
