GAMBLING IS OPEN AT PALM BEACH

Temple of Chance Which Rivals The Casino at Monte Carlo

PROFITS ARE GREAT

Wealthy Men Accompanied There By Wives and Daughters—The Story of an Evening Spent There—Some Big Sums Lost

This is a story of what I saw in one night in the greatest wide-open gambling establishment in the United States, writes Kay K. Kitchin in the Boston Post. The place is the Beach club, commonly known as Bradley's, at Palm Beach, Fla., the most luxurious temple of chance on this side of the Atlantic. It bears the same relation to Palm Beach that the Casino does to Monte Carlo. It is an approved part of the general scheme. Though the gambling is wide open, there is not even a hint of interference by the state authorities.

Why? Palm Beach is owned by Henry M. Flagler, who is most of the state of Florida. Like Monaco, the prosperity of Palm Beach is supposed to depend upon the prosperity of its gambling establishment. It is generally reported that "Bradley's" makes a net profit of half a million a year, which is not a bad thing to do if it is open only three months out of the twelve.

John R. Bradley, hunter of big game and backer of Doctor Cook, is the man who operates this establishment. Hot Springs, Ark., French Lick, and Palm Beach are the three resorts in America where there is wide-open gambling for both men and women, free from interference by the state and local authorities. But the games at Hot Springs and French Lick are for millionaires or for those who can live like millionaires for a few days in that delightful spot. It is a place where pikers cannot pike.

It was ten at night when I arrived in Palm Beach, and with other New Yorkers I hastily donned my evening clothes and hurried to the Beach Club. Evening dress is a strict rule at "Bradley's" after seven p. m. But that and twenty-five years of age are practically the only requirements—except a bank roll. If one is fashionably attired and "looks good" to Mr. Hesse, the secretary of the club, he is admitted without question. To be sure, he is given a membership ticket and a little book of rules, but there are no dues, and membership only entitles you to risk your money.

When I received my membership card I passed from the lobby of the club building—a two-story structure—into the main gambling room, and to an atmosphere of purest air fairly laden with perfume. I found myself in the presence of perhaps 200 men and handsomely gowned women grouped around six roulette and two bazaar tables in a beautiful octagonal room.

From the appearance of the crowd one would suppose they were attending an evening function at a fashionable Fifth Avenue home. The women were as numerous as the men, and their gowns were as elaborate as one would see at a night at the Metropolitan. Most of them were ablaze with diamonds. Every person in the room except the black-coated croupiers seemed to have an aura of luxury—not merely the luxury of wealth but the luxury of its possession for at least two generations.

The men were gentlemen, the women their wives and daughters. There were no touts, bartenders, no vacationists, horse-men with pasta or girls from the chorus. The Beach club is no place for such people. If by any chance they do get in, they are asked to leave the moment they are spotted—and when a "mamma" is asked to leave, there is no argument.

The game was at its height when I was told by E. R. Bradley, brother of John R. and the president of the "club" to make myself at home. I turned to the roulette table nearest at hand—a handsome man of fifty-five or sixty—one of the leading lawyers of New York—and two young women, his niece, were sitting $200 bills while three or four others who were seated at the table were playing with five and ten dollar chips.

At the next table a young couple, the son of a millionaire and his wife, were playing with dollar chips. They were merely "seeing life."

Later in the evening, when the crowd thinned out, the son of a millionaire was playing at the same table with $500 bills, and rumor had it that he dropped $30,000 in less than an hour. It is well to keep in mind that this is not a story of Monte Carlo. It concerns Palm Beach, the Mecca of fashionable New York for three months in the year. San Francisco in its early chuck-a-luck days was never more open. Canfield's at Saratoga had a Puritanical atmosphere compared with the life and gaiety at the Beach club.

There are gambling houses in New York today—I was in one less than a month ago—but the games are behind barred doors, no women are admitted, and, furthermore, there is little playing. People will not play roulette in New York since Chief Flynn's raids showed that most of the wheels were crooked. But at Palm Beach there is no suggestion of crookedness.

People at Palm Beach do not play to win. They play for amusement, because it is fashionable, because they have more money than they know what to do with. What if they do drop half a million in three months? They have had a good time.

Considering the multitude, part of which is continually moving, there is surprisingly little noise. In fact, the most profound tranquillity prevails; scarcely a word is spoken. The spinning of the marble alone breaks the silence. When it falls, the croupier indicates the winning number by pointing to the board, sweeping in the chips and money and paying the winners.

There is no drinking in the gambling room. In the restaurant, however, there is a continuous popping of champagneorks until two in the morning, when most of the "members" leave for the hotels.

Practically every one who visits Palm Beach visits "Bradley's" so it would be impossible to give the names of those who

ONE DOLLAR GAS

The Perfect Domestic Which Reduces Drudgery to the Minimum and Gives More Time for Rest and Recreation

Meals Are Never Late Because there is less work to be done. When you cook with coal or wood a good deal of time is required to get the proper fire, which needs feeding and watching, besides the necessity of shaking down and taking up the ashes. Not so with One Dollar Gas. All you have to do is to turn the tap, light a match and you have a working flame at once, thus enabling you to go right ahead and cook the meals, which with this clean, sanitary fuel, is done more quickly and always with good results owing to the quick distribution of heat.

Cheaper Than Other Fuel because the gas burns only in use. When done cooking turn it off and there you expense ceases.

Our Next Free Cooking Demonstration will be given in our showrooms on Tuesday afternoon next, from three until five o'clock.

Our Extensive Display of Modern Gas Stoves and Ranges embraces a large variety of styles, any of which we furnish for cash or on easy payments.

THE ST. JOHN RAILWAY COMPANY SHOWROOMS COR. DOCK AND UNION STREETS

THE YOUTHFULNESS OF CRIME (The World, New York.) Magistrate McKidoo in his annual report says: There is growing up in this city a menacing army of boys and young men who are the most troublesome element we have to deal with. . . . From the ranks of these lawless, reckless rowdies that are organized in bands or bound up with chains or pale come most of the crop of burglars, truck thieves, hold-up men, gun-bearers, so-called "bad men" and other criminals and dangerous characters." This is but a new statement of an old story. It comes every year from every great city. This year it comes in its most startling form from Paris, where in running down a desperate gang of motor-car bandits the police found that the first to be arrested was a frail, consumptive youth, and the leader, when caught in his turn, is found to be a boy of eighteen. The youthfulness of daring criminals has in fact long been noted. It was so in the old days of Jack Sheppard and Claude Duval. It will always be so. A large proportion of this dare-devil crime is done not for the sake of the crime but for the sake of the daring. The brain of youth is full of romance and the heart of youth is brave and reckless. In the country this directed they may become of high value excess of energy works itself out in hunting and fishing, in bill-climbing or boating or swimming, with an occasional raid on a neighboring orchard. But in the city the one thing to fight against that a red-blooded boy sees in the police, and through sheer love of adventure he violates the law. It is noted by Emerson among the great qualities of Napoleon that he took banquets, snufflers, highway robbers and all sorts of lawless men out of the jails of France, making superb soldiers of all of them and heroes of many. We cannot in our form of government imitate Napoleonic methods, but we may at least learn from his example that the reckless energies of youth are not necessarily criminal. If rightly directed they may become of high value.
