THUNDER STORM COST CHARITY
A NICE $10,000

Came Just at Church Time On London's Hospital Fund Sunday
GREAT SUMS FOR CHARITY
Record Year Was 1903 When Collections on This Day Totaled $246,000 — How The Money is Apportioned Among The Institutions of London

(Times' Special Correspondence) of London, June 22.—It seems that a lively thunderstorm that broke over London last Sunday morning was probably one of the costliest on record—at least so far as this metropolis is concerned. All because of it, the London hospitals, which are dependent on charity for their support, stand to lose a sum which, at a conservative estimate, may be put at $10,000, or a little more today by the secretary of the Hospital Sunday Fund, who said that exact figures will not be available for a week or two yet.
Last Sunday was Hospital Sunday, on which the collection at practically every place of worship in the metropolis is for the benefit of the London hospitals, and it had been hoped to make it a record, eclipsing the proceeds of Hospital Sunday in 1903, which amounted to $246,000, the biggest in the history of the fund.
Probably this object would have been achieved, too, had it not been for the thunderstorm, which started just before church-time and lasted for about an hour, thus making the cost of it about $100 a minute. It kept at home the bulk of church-goers—more particularly the extensive class of the aristocratic "West End," who are the most liberal contributors to the Hospital Sunday Fund—and so far the reports received from clerical staffs at the offices of the fund, in Victoria street, and the Hospital Sunday office in the Strand, which are the headquarters of the annual expenditure and the ordinary income of London's hospitals. Last year the former was $8,462,770 as against an expected income of $5,300,000, meaning a deficiency of $3,162,770. Luckily, the legacies received by the hospitals in 1911 were enough to cover the difference and a bit more, but these sums vary widely from year to year, and the Hospital Sunday Fund is the most reliable standby of the medical charities of the metropolis.

The Distribution
The annual proceeds of the fund, which was started in 1872, amount to about 250 hospitals, dispensaries, and nursing homes. These institutions took in 144,387 patients in the course of last year, and granted advice and medicine to 6,023,421 out-patients during the same period. In the distribution of the proceeds from Hospital Sunday among all these charities, there is followed a principle which makes it the most equitable and the most active institutions will get the most. To decide which these are, the regular income of each institution is taken into account, as well as the amount of money received in legacies in each particular year. This amount is compared with the ordinary expenditure, and careful consideration is given to the outlay on expenses of management, and the less on management the more favorable is the claim of an institution considered by the distribution committee.
Besides helping the regular medical charities of London, the fund is also a fund for the needy victims of accidents of life-long afflictions. Purchases of this kind total some $200 every year, and vary from wigs and false teeth and eye and surgical boots and steel jackets. In 1911, the amount appropriated to this branch of the work done was about $20,000.

Some of the Contributions
Churches to the number of more than 2,000 join in swelling the fund, and, as might be expected, St. Paul's Cathedral each year furnishes the biggest collection. Last year, $21,015 came from the cathedral, the nearest rival being Christ Church, in the fashionable Lancaster Gate neighborhood, with $5,000. From the Church in London came $1,000, from the London Synagogue, $170, from the Greek church $75, and the Dutch Reformed church $75. The total amount of the fund is $100,000,000, and the income from securities and the like which he left to be devoted to it amounting to nearly $125,000 a year.
By a box way the largest beneficiary from the fund is the London Hospital, one of the biggest in the world which treats 10,000 in-patients and more than 600,000 out-patients in the course of a year, and has an annual expenditure of $500,000 and an income of only $485,000. The Hospital Sunday Fund furnishes about $25,000 of the $100,000 needed to balance accounts.
The figures published by the fund show, however, on what a shaky footing the finances of all the big London hospitals stand and how dependent they are on the good-will of the charitable. They have to be the most persistent of beggars, and resort to all sorts of devices for raising money. All over London for example, are penny-in-the-slot arrangements with clock faces showing that the expenses of running the London hospital is one penny, or two cents, a second, and pavers by are entreated to "Please Support the London Hospital for One Second."

Sick to Pastor
Boston, June 25.—Rev. William B. Ayer pastor of the Norfolk Down Congregational church, who is being sued by Chester A. Bynnton, a Boston lawyer, for $25,000 for the alleged alienation of the affections of his wife, Mrs. Helen W. Bynnton, will not be asked to resign his pastorate, it is declared by leaders in the congregation.

NECK WAS BROKEN

Waldorf Miller, Injured by Dive into Shallow Water a Year Ago, Rises From His Chair—Mother Frantic With Joy
(New York American)
Waldorf Miller stood up half a minute yesterday and every surgeon in an available hospital in Montreal said he would be interested when he learns it. For Waldorf Miller, who is twenty-one years old, broke his neck—fractured his sixth cervical vertebra—when he dove into shallow water at New Rochelle on July 3, 1911. The presence of the broken bone in his spinal cord paralyzed him completely below the point of injury.
Any surgeon will admit that the chance of survival is small, but that he would be paralyzed all his life and that his life would be cut mightly short. But Miller disagreed with the learned surgeons. When he was taken to the hospital he remarked: "I think I'm going to die, but I'll fool them."
His grit and cheerful determination have done much to help him toward recovery, the surgeons say, but the rigid plaster cast with which they encircled his neck has helped, too. Miller was sitting in an invalid's chair at a tree at his home No. 131 Clinton avenue, New Rochelle, yesterday. He was proudly showing his friends that he could raise his legs from the chair and sit up.
"Can you stand, Waldy?" asked one of the young fellows.
"Sure I can," said Miller, although he had not ventured to try. "Just watch me." Raising himself, he stood for about five seconds, then fell back in his chair. He was as surprised as his friends were.
"Mother, mother," he cried "come and see me stand!"
Supported by his mother and Edward J. Corral, his uncle, Miller stood for half a minute. His mother threw her arms around him and kissed him. In that brief half minute she had her reward for months of devoted nursing as any loving mother would.
"I'll be out on crutches in a couple of months," Miller prophesied confidently.
Of course, Miller's improvement has been very gradual. Several months after he broke his neck he gave the first sign that the paralysis was decreasing, that his nerves could carry a message from his brain to his muscles—he moved his hand a little. Slowly, very slowly, he regained the use of his fingers and arms. Then he found he could wiggle his toes. No baby on first discovering it could wiggle its toes was ever half so pleased as Miller was when he found he could wiggle his. Now he can write and scribble a pencil and stand for half a minute.

FEARS FINANCIAL CRISIS

French Official Says it is Coming in 1914 or 1917
Paris, June 25.—Pierre Baudin, who has held several important public offices, after quoting Herr von Gwinner's warning of last month that a financial crisis is coming and laying stress on the importance of such a warning coming from the director of the Deutsche Bank, who was the first to announce the industrial crisis of 1907, says the permanent committee against employment, of which he is a member, has concluded that an economic crisis is coming about 1914 to 1917. M. Baudin says these economic crises seem to have chosen two countries as the places of their origin, the United States and Germany, such disturbances arising from excessive production and the over-abuse of credit.
He believes that by the collection of proper statistics such crises might be prevented to a certain degree. It has been proposed to create an office in France for observation of the world's prices. Meanwhile the committee of which M. Baudin is a member, although lacking full equipment, has collected data leading it to expect financial outbreaks in two to five years, and recommends that the government should take such an eventuality into account in arranging its programme.

At a meeting of the official board of Centenary church yesterday afternoon, a resolution was passed making Centenary a missionary church. The St. John Brass Band will give its first open air concert this evening in the West End band stand. The band was organized among the colored young men of the city recently.
President Waters of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada will arrive in the city this afternoon and will address the carpenter's union this evening and the trades and labor council tomorrow evening.
