Boston Women Wrestle- New York Fair Ones Do Not

ILLUSTRATING THE HAMMERLOCK AND QUATER NELSON, WHICH BOSTON WOMEN SAY MAKE FOR GRACE AND STRENGTH.

Some Boston women advocate wrestling as a road to grace and robustness. New York women are opposed to the sport and if Gotham's physical culturists can prevent it, its women will not trail the Hub's daughters.

Jack Cooper, who made Warren Barbour amateur heavyweight champion and instructed New York's society women who were affected with the athletic bug, says "Women must not wrestle."

"Women," says Cooper, "must not train like men. If they do their figures will become mannish. Their muscles will bulk and they will lose that grace which is woman's chief attractiveness."
"Women must train in curves. They must arrive at lines of grace as a racehorse does, not flatfooted like a man. Wrestling and boxing will throw a woman's muscles out of proportion to her frame. Many have tried both, but were glad to overcome the results."

ACADIAS DEFEATED ST. JOHNS

Last evening on the government grounds the Acadias defeated the St. Johns on Fort Howe Stars by a four-run game by a score of 3 to 2. The Acadias showed their supremacy over the St. Johns from the first, and easily earned their victory. The batters were—For the St. Johns, Totten and Britain; and for the Acadias, Brison and Kennedy. Fred Northrup umpired. Any arrangements for games, etc., can be made with Mr. Kennedy, captain, or Mr. Steen, the manager. Many reports have been made about the Acadias not being in the class with the St. Johns, but last night proved they were a classy bunch of boys.
Address all mail matter to J. T. Steen, 54 Chapel street, or Robert Kennedy, Camden street.

HOODOO WENNER DETERMINED TO WIN OUT THIS YEAR

"If Michigan had a few more 'Dutch' Wenners she would be unbeatable in almost everything; unbeatable if dogged determination and splendid fighting spirit would win," said one of the Wolverine trainers.
Wenner is the highest type of athlete, although he has failed to "make good." Hard luck has held him from the ranks of letter men twice, although he was far up in front.
The winter of '08 Michigan had a varsity basketball. Wenner was barred because it was his freshman year, although he was the best player on the campus. They haven't played basketball since, so he lost his chance to win an "M."
The next fall Wenner was out for football. He looked good, but the faculty got him on a technicality, so he had to wait another year. Last fall he showed up for practice, but was injured. He had shown variety calibre, but he limped for months and again lost his "M."
Wenner is known as "Hoodoo" Wenner, but his splendid spirit has fired the trainers to give him special attention and if preparation and care can land him on a team he will gain the coveted initial this year.
Wenner does not know what it means to quit. He is not discouraged by repeated failure and dives into everything with his whole soul. He is "DUTCH" WENNER, a brilliant student and is expected to accomplish wonders for Michigan athletics this year.

TWO MEMBERS OF THE CANADIAN BALL TEAM

BEAUDOIN AND LAUZON OF MONTREAL CANADIEN'S OUTFIELD.

Everything looks bright for a grand opening of the baseball season tomorrow when hundreds of people will see two lively games of ball on the Shamrock grounds. In the morning the St. Johns will battle with the Marathons, the game commencing at an o'clock.
In the afternoon the Marathons will have a fast game with the Canadians of Montreal.
The grounds are in excellent shape. Rolling and draining has been carried out with such good effect that after a few final touches the diamond will be in first class condition. Five hundred loads of cinders have been hauled on the grounds and the approaches.
The pavilion at the entrance has been repaired and painted.
The old grand stand can scarcely be recognized so great are the additions and repairs made in this quarter. Double the space has been provided by building a large extension on the western end of the structure. Space has been provided for refreshment booths at one end of the stand. In front of the stand are six boxes for private use and which will seat about thirty and on the opening day these will be occupied by Lieut. Gov. Tweedie and his staff, as well as the Mayor and members of the Common Council, who will attend as guests.
The whole structure will be painted a dull red.
To the left of the grand stand on entering, two rooms for players have been fitted up and every convenience added.
One of the features will be the addition of advertising signs which are erected on piling driven into the ground at regular intervals clear around the grounds. Already space on twenty of these large signs has been contracted for and when the others are sold they are expected to serve the double purpose of providing income and of preventing the dead-ends from seeding the games from the surrounding hills. An up-to-date score board in deep centre field directly facing the grand stand is also a desirable feature.
Before opening it is expected that the old fence surrounding the grounds will be whitewashed, thus improving the general appearance and bringing out very plainly the diamond and the players in their bright uniforms.
Tomorrow the teams will drive to the grounds in buckboards headed by a brass band and it is the intention of both local organizations to put up the best of ball.
The Canadians of Montreal will arrive in the city tomorrow morning and one big day of fast ball is expected.

409. Ty is the first major league player to get 50 safe hits, and he was followed on Saturday by Jackson, of Cleveland.
Harry Lord, of the Chicago White Sox, has jumped into fifth place with the average of .391. He has been hitting all the eastern leaguers, including all the eastern pitchers, as has Jimmy Callaghan and Matty Melnyk, who made large gains last week. These three men are practically responsible for the high standing of the White Sox this year.
Boston this week is represented by four men in the honor class: Earl Gardner, Jack Knight's understudy at second base, of the New York Highlanders, is batting strongly, so much so that it is doubtful if he will be benched when Hal Chase returns to the team. Though Jackson, of the Cleveland, lost a few points, he ranks well up with the leaders and is hitting consistently.
Milan, of the Washingtons is the best batsman on that team. For the past few weeks he and Elberfeld have been running neck and neck for the team's batting honors. Last week Elberfeld had the big slump, while Milan got hits every day and pulled away from his rival, Almsmith and Schaefer are other Washington players in the honor class.
George Mullin and Ed Walsh stand so far as the hitting pitchers in the league. Both are in the .300 class and have been holding on well for the last few weeks.
St. Louis has three representatives among the big hitters, in Jimmy Stephens, Paul Melton, ex-White Sox player and Jimmy Austin, ex-Highlander. The averages:

AMERICAN FIGHAER SUCCESSFUL IN HIS BATTLES IN ENGLAND

EDDIE MCGOORTY.

This husky young man, Eddie McGoorty, has the number one title in the fish midgetweights. He hurled defiance at Champion Jim Sullivan until he grew weary and then packed his trunk for the United States.
McGoorty erred in England. He took on heavies and knocked them out while waiting for Sullivan. The performance shocked Sullivan and he shielded whenever anyone uttered McGoorty's name.
Among the exploits of the American was knocking out Jerry Sunshine, one time pretender to the British heavyweight title, who outweighed McGoorty 50 pounds. He outpointed Pat O'Keefe, a light-heavy and moved up several less important ones.

The Batting Averages In the Big Leagues

The National League.
In the National League there are 22 players who have participated in 10 or more games, who have a batting average of .300 or better. Several new faces appear among the leaders this week, and the list has a new leader in "Doc" Miller, the slugging right fielder of the Boston Nationals. His average is no better than that of Doolin, the Quaker manager, but preference in the standing must be given Miller in view of the fact that he has been in more games and has been on base at bat.
Young Wilson, the Glaneta's recruit, catcher, who topped the list a week ago, went to the bat four times during the week without getting a hit and his average fell 80 points, but he still has a figure that keeps him close to the top. J. Doyle of the Cubs hit very poorly last week and disappeared from among the leading stick artists. Newcomers in the list are Burch of Brooklyn, who has been doing effective work since he got into the game regularly last week. Fletcher, the utility man of the Giants, Roger Bresnahan of the Cardinals, Luderus of the Quakers, Tom Clarke of Cincinnati and Carey, the Pirates' Central league recruit.
All of the clubs are represented in the .300 list now. Pittsburgh leads with five men, followed by New York and Philadelphia with four each, while Boston has three, Chicago and Brooklyn two, and Cincinnati and St. Louis one each. Jake Daubert continues to maintain a high average and Honus Wagner has made an advance toward the top since a week ago. Boston has Graham and Goode among the honor men, though both men fell off a little from their figures of the previous week. The averages:

The American League.
There are 39 men in the American League, who have taken part in 10 or more games, who are batting for .300 or better and the list is again headed by Melins, Connie Mack's Gloucester adjunct. This boy again walloped the ball to all corners of the field last week and gave no sign of letting up. Next to him is his side partner, Ed Cobb, who has the superb mark of .444. Cobb is still standing at
