British and Continental Notes.

LONDON AS IT IS NOW.

IN AND OUT OF TOWN.

Certainly those of the Londoners who are still in town are more to be envied than pitied for being cooped up within the Metropolitan cage, the weather being about the worst for holiday making that could be imagined. The rain is raineth every day. From every part of the country come complaints of incessant storm. The Prince of Wales who has been but yachting has been compelled to put a stop to his cruise and put into Southampton, and at most of the watering-places the visitors look at each other, and at as much of the sea as can be seen for the disagreeable haze, in a most uncomfortable way. In fact on the whole, London is the best place just now after all. Here you can remain indoors and be perfectly happy. Anywhere else the monotony and unrelieved dreariness is something unbearable.

UNIFORMITY IN UNIFORMS.

There is shortly to be a change in the uniform of the volunteer force. The present medley of dresses, it is said, has long been felt to be unsatisfactory, and the war office hopes presently to put an end to it. Mr. Hardy's idea seems to be to assimilate the uniforms of the Volunteer and Regular forces.

THE BONAPARTISTS AT THE POLLS.

The Bonapartists have scored another and a startling victory in the French elections, having secured the election of their candidate for the vacancy in the Calvados Department by an overwhelming majority over his Republican and Legitimist opponents. The result of this election coming after that of the Nièvre, in which the Bonapartist, to the general surprise, was elected so easily, is undoubtedly a grave political event. The long succession of Republican victories has not been interrupted merely, but apparently broken, and the popular favor has completely swung back to the Empire.

TRIBUTES TO NAPOLEON III.

Monday being the "Fete Napoleon," a large number of Bonapartists went to Chiselhurst and threw flowers on the tomb of the deceased Emperor. An individual more enthusiastic than the rest distributed broadcast a poem, which he had composed, headed "Sur Ma Tombe," an apostrophe to the dead and a fast, tering address to the living Napoleon. A verse will give an idea of its quality:—

Vous saurez bru, consolante avgurion,
Que l'ame au ciel nous voyait ici bas,
Prier pour nous et regarder la France,
A votre fils le pays tend les bras.

H. M. STANLEY,

who goes out for the Daily Telegraph and New York Herald, on a journey of discovery in Africa, left here on the 17th for the scene of his labors. He was in excellent health and spirits, and anticipated success in his undertaking.

THE KING OF DENMARK

and Prince Waldemar have been paying a short visit to Scotland. The Princess of Wales met them at Edinburgh. She accompanied the royal visitors to Norway.

THE CROWN PRINCESS OF GERMANY

laid the foundation-stone of the new school of Art at Rhyde, Isle of Wight, on Monday. An immense concourse of people was gathered on the occasion and the town was tastefully decorated with flags and evergreens.

NEW STATUES.

London is about to have a surfeit of statues. On Monday a marble representation of her Majesty, from the studio of Mrs. Noble, was conveyed to St. Thomas's Hospital, where it is to be uncovered in the course of a week or two. It is intended to adorn the main entrance to the building, and is said to be an excellent likeness. Not far from the same place, but on the other side of the Thames, a bronze statue of Lord Palmerston is shortly to be erected. The statue is to be a sort of companion to that of the late Earl of Derby, and is to stand in the open space between Palace Yard and the Westminster Sessions House. Rumor adds that an additional half dozen or so of historical celebrities are to have their statues in the same area, and that among the number the memory of the great protector of the Commonwealth is to be permitted by a strong-minded Government considering the persistency with which Cromwell was refused a statue within the walls of Parliament, seems highly improbable, especially at the present moment, when the Department of Public Works is in the hands of a Tory Administration.

THE MAN FOR GALWAY.

It is rumored that Disraeli intends paying a visit to Ireland this autumn, and that after honoring the metropolis of the sister kingdom with his presence he will, among other places, make a brief sojourn in Galway.

ROWING AND CRICKET.

At the Thames Regatta on Monday Biffin's crew won the Champion Fours by several lengths, beating the Tyne crew, and also one stroked by the champion, Sadler.

The cricket match between twelve of Sheffield and eighteen of America has been won by the latter by an inning and 42 runs.

A BICYCLE FEAT.

Mr. Stanton who backed himself to ride from Bath to London on his bicycle in eight hours and a half has won his wager, accomplishing the 106 miles in two minutes under the time. The last part of the journey was performed under great difficulties, through an accident he left arm and shoulder were disabled, and for the last 26 miles he could only use his right hand.

A ROYAL IRISH RESIDENCE.

It is rumored that a Royal Irish residence is at length resolved upon, and that Mr. Disraeli is really to go to Ireland in October himself and inspect two or three places which are recommended as the site. With a duke of the blood royal, bearing an Irish title, named after an Irish warrior, it would be easy to gratify the vanity of the Irish by giving to them a Prince of their own, while it would tend greatly to keep in the island the gentry whose chief fault is that they will stay anywhere but at home.

THE GRAVESEND FAIR.

There was a grand fair held at Gravesend yesterday. It far exceeded the Greenwich Fair which used to be the great institution, in fact it was a day long to be remembered by those who had the pleasure of being present. The town was crowded with visitors from all parts of the country. Among the sights to be seen there were ancient pastimes across, chinese, negro minstrels, Doughty's performing dogs, wizard of the sky, and the English giants, a balloon ascent by Mr. Youens, art collection and pictures of all kind, Mrs. Jarley's waxworks, a maypole dance by twenty-four young ladies of Gravesend, to costume the band of the Royal Marines, Punch and Judy, &c., &c.

AN HEIRESS ARRESTED AS A TRAMP.

A very funny incident occurred a morning or two ago in the suburbs of London. A gentleman connected with one of the Metropolitan morning papers, a person, by the way, of the highest respectability, and related to some most influential people, has every morning to leave his office for home about two o'clock. The railway companies run no trains at that hour, and the journalist has, of course, to avail himself either of cab or his own walking powers. The gentleman generally walks. The distance he has to traverse is great, but the exercise suits him so he shoulders his carpet bag of books, slung to the handle of a large umbrella. It is not only usually but invariably that he thus marches homeward, and in doing so he must have been seen hundreds of times by policemen. Yet it was reserved for a more than ordinarily inquisitive "Bobby" to stop him and demand to look at the contents of his bag. The result of this was the journalist refused to open it. He represented that only his books were there, and that he, being a respectably-dressed, bald-headed party, walking quietly along, had given no reason why he should be arrested and searched. But the "Robert" was immovable. He did not know the party was respectable, nor did he know that there were books in that bag, so he should look, or he would run the gentleman in. Of course further remonstrance was useless, so the suspicious bag had to be unslung, and as they produced, whereupon the "peeler" opened it, rummaged amongst the books and papers with a pair of remarkably dirty hands, and then very politely told the editor that he could "be off." The respectably connected journalist not being of a very uncomfortable turn of mind took the matter philosophically and departed forthwith.

A STUDENTS' ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.

An extremely good movement has been begun by the authorities of St. Paul's in relation to the Cathedral, namely, allowing parties of young men to go all over the building every Saturday afternoon free of charge, and under the care of a qualified person to explain them various matters of interest connected with the history of the edifice. Further than this, refreshments are pretty liberally given to these parties.

Fighting to the Death.

Despatch to the San Francisco Chronicle:

HOLLISTER, Aug. 25.

A desperate shooting affray took place here to-day, resulting in the immediate death of one of the chief actors, and the probable fatal wounding of the other. The scene of the tragedy was Goodhue's saloon. At 10 o'clock this morning a man named Leander T. Robinson, more commonly called "Tod" Robinson, entered the saloon and invited all hands to take a drink. Among those in the room was a man known as Tony Harris, between whom and Robinson some ill-feeling was existing. Robinson had no sooner finished his invitation than Harris remarked that he "wouldn't drink with a d—d horse thief," using a very obscene epithet. Robinson replied, "Well, I always pay for my drinks." Harris then said, "Well, this is an old grudge between you and me, and we might as well settle it right now," drawing a Derringer as he spoke. Robinson instantly drew his pistol and fire shots almost simultaneously. Harris's shot struck Robinson in the left breast, cutting the aorta, and the blood gushed forth in a torrent. Robinson's first shot missed Harris. The latter, immediately after firing, threw his weapon at Robinson, and, having nothing else to defend himself with, ran into the billiard room back of the saloon, hoping there to escape from his antagonist. Although mortally wounded, however, and with his life-blood gushing from the terrible hole in his breast, Robinson staggered after his assailant, whom he had now cornered in the billiard room. Steadying himself against one of the tables, he took deliberate aim and fired at Harris, who was facing him at the opposite side of the table, the ball taking effect near the navel and inflicting a wound which is likely to prove fatal. Again the dying man raised his pistol and fired, the ball striking Harris in the hand and tearing off the thumb and two fingers of his right hand.

Some of the men from the saloon had by this time entered the billiard room, supposing the shooting to be finished. But Robinson's vengeance was not yet satisfied, and though the glaze of death was already in his eyes, he again fired his pistol, and then dropped dead. The last shot struck the night watchman's trousers pocket, but owing to the lucky circumstance of his having a bunch of keys and a pocket-knife just in the right spot, the pellet was turned aside, and in the course of the deadly missile was stopped, the only damage being the breaking of the whistle.

Coroner Black held an inquest soon after the killing. The jury found a verdict in accordance with the facts above set forth, and Robinson was buried this afternoon, which many people around here consider rather quick work, even for a California town. The deceased was what is generally known as a sporting man, and is said to have a wife living in Merced. His age was about 30 years. Harris, whose real name is said to be Calvin, is a blacksmith, and has no relatives in California. The formality of placing him under arrest has been gone through with, but from present appearances he will not trouble the courts much.

A Thrilling Tragedy.

Among the many tragedies recently enacted in the South, few are more thrilling in their details than the one recently witnessed in the village of Brockhaven, Miss. The residence of Mrs. Burnley, a widow, living with four daughters, an elegant and refined ladies, was broken into in the night time by three negroes, who, not satisfied with taking possession of all the moveable valuables in the house, perpetrated the most fiendish outrages on their helpless victims. Mrs. Burnley implored the negroes to spare her and her daughters, telling them that they were welcome to everything they wanted in the house, and also to the two horses in the stable, but the wretches would listen to nothing. Vexed at the efforts of Mrs. Burnley to save her children, the fiends snatched the distracted mother from the bed and choked her nearly to death. Mrs. Burnley's residence was in a thinly settled district, and it was some time after the negroes had fled before the neighbors reached the scene. Nearly every citizen in the place scoured the country for miles around, and the negroes were finally overtaken with their booty. The people were wild with excitement, and it was determined to execute the fiends at once. Capt. Haskins, a Republican in politics, was elected to act as executioner and cheerfully performed the duty. The prisoners were led out, placed in a wagon, the rope tied around their necks, and the wagon pulled from under them. They acknowledged the horrible crime for which they were hanged, as well as the commission of many other outrages.

TOOTH-ACHE REMEDY

In The Dominion

IT WILL NOT SOIL THE FINEST LINEN!

Remove Instantly from the Teeth, and Prevent Decay. Sold in bottles at 25 cents each. Directions in English, French and German. Each bottle is not necessary if used as directed, but if not found perfectly satisfactory in all cases, the money will be refunded by the agent who sold it. Read the opinions of the independent farmers of Kentucky, and if you are not satisfied, write to me, and I will refund your money.

Mr. Darrow, one of our patrons, in a grateful written letter, says:

"DEAR SIR—I have used your Tooth-ache Anodyne, and therefore can recommend it to all who may be afflicted with the tooth-ache. I will say to you, that I have used a great many remedies for the tooth-ache, but as a pain reliever it is far superior. I call it a 'hit of it.' We want to decorate our residences."

WHAT IT DOES.

A pre-judiced pioneer in railways writes:—

"My wife ruined a magnificent set of false teeth with your villainous compound. It destroyed the gold and silver entirely. The cost I'll see you about it. Look out for the magic when the bell rings."

We are receiving daily testimonials in Gaelic from the lovely Indians of New Zealand-shire. There is nothing immoral or objectionable in it. Every five cent bottle of the Anodyne.
