WHAT THE REV. PROFESSOR CLARK THINKS:

The Bishop of Albany has done essential service with the rising generation by sending forth under his sanction a series of works of wholesome fiction adapted to the use of the young.

From a careful examination of a good many of the books before us we can testify that they are exactly of the character which we would wish to see in the hands of our boys and young people. (Sgd.) WM. CLARK.

We can also recommend a series of small books from the same house (Publishers' Syndicate) adapted for a younger class of readers. They are brief stories, chiefly of a religious character, three or four of them being contained in each of the dainty little volumes of which the series is composed.
