The Provisional Government .- Are these men to be the founders of a great republic, or the authors of anarchy? The description is from a Paris journal:

"On Saturday evening, as a sitting of the Provisional Go-Vernment, very high words arose between the two parties, ultra-Republicans, and the moderate members. M. Ledaw Rollinivas particularly energetic, decisaring that matters were not urged on with sufficient vigour, and that if some decided steps were not taken, the elections would prove a complete failure, and be the means of checking the progress of the Republic, in place of aiding it. M. Marrast, on the other side, declared himself altogether opposed to the views of his honourable colleague, and declared it to be his firm intention as well as that of his more moderate colleagues, to respond to the general withes of the nation, and proceed with moderation, as otherwise multiple could great out the progression of the state of the nation. tion, as otherwise nothing could ensue out civil wer and bloodshed. The discussion continued for some time on the same point, M. Ledru Rollin and M. darriest being the chief speakers, until the former, or adding resident in finding himself so strongly opposed, and likely to be out oted, if the question came to a decision, accessed M. Marrast of betraying his principles, and called him a lacke. No sooner was the diagraceful epithet uttered than M. Jarrast gave M. Ledru Rollin a blow or slap in the face (souffet!) The other members interfered and prevented further violence; but M. Ledru Rollin, it is said, being convenced that the working classes were with him, gave the mot d'ordre for the gathering
